THE SIXTH REPORT

OF THE

DEPUTY KEEPER OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS IN IRELAND.

TO HIS GRACE THE MOST NOBLE JAMES, DUKE OF ABERCORN, K.G.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE,

1. At the close of the year 1872 it was thought that the removal of the collection of Queen's Bench Records from the dome of the Four Courts had been completed. However, before handing over the keys to the Clerk of the Works, it was judged expedient to examine the cavity between the floor of the dome and the domed ceiling of the hall beneath, as it seemed not improbable, from the mode in which the former arrangement had been conducted, that some of the documents might have been thrust out of sight into that receptacle. On examination, several heaps of such Records were discovered there. These constitute 184 parcels, which have been deposited in the Record Treasury, and await further examination. They are of a miscellaneous nature and unequal value; and their arrangement and introduction into the series to which they belong will be a work of time.

3. The offices formerly occupied by Master Litton being required for other purposes, and the transfer of the Deeds and Muniments directed by the order of the Court of Chancery, of 10th March, 1870, to the offices of Master Brooke, Master Murphy, and Master Fitzgibbon respectively, having been carried into effect, the residue, exclusive of the subsequently mentioned books, and pertaining, for the most part, to causes in the collection already deposited here, was transferred to this office early in January, 1873, under the direction of Mr. Davies, to whose report I beg leave to refer. These papers are undergoing a similar process of arrangement to that of the Equity Exchequer Cause Papers, previously to their being collated and interpolated with the principal series arranged and indexed in 1869. This process has been completed for 3,300 causes to letter R.

4. Among the documents lodged in the progress of causes, which constitute a large portion of Master Litton's collection, were the books, &c. of the late banking firm of Newcomen & Co., comprising 987 pieces, of which 450 are heavy folio volumes, and to which I more particularly refer in order that the persons properly entitled thereto may have notice of their being here, and may upon proper application to the Rolls Court, obtain authority to take them away. They were deposited in a vault under the Court of Nisi Prius, where they had been stored, for want of room in the Master's offices. At present, they occupy valuable space here, which will be required for the reception of documents of a public nature.

5. I have received from the Keeper of the State Papers a consignment of Cartons containing Heads of Parliamentary Bills from the Office of the Privy Council of Ireland. The Heads of Bills preserved in this and in the collections from the Parliament-room of the Record Tower already deposited here, express the sense of the late Irish Legislature on various subjects of public interest not appearing on the Statute Book. Although the effect of Poyning's Act was to prevent the introduction, in a form capable of passing into law, of any measure not previously authorized under the Great Seal, it offered no impediment to the introduction and provisional discussion of such subjects as the Houses of Parliament from time to time thought fit to entertain; and the result of these deliberations constitutes the Heads of Bills which might or might not afterwards assume the form of Transmisses, capable of being entertained for legislative purposes. Many of them rest in the form of rejected suggestions, and in these the historian may find a record of the sentiments of the Irish Parliament not accessible in the Acts or Transmisses.

6. The Report of the Keeper of the State Papers, accompanying this last transmission will be found in the Appendix.

7. From the Record and Writ Office Chancery, 43 volumes of Affidavits from January, 1852, to December, 1853, which had been filed in the late Chancery Affidavit Office, were transferred on the 27th January.

8. The deposit of the principal series of Pleadings in Chancery, which was begun in the summer of 1869, was brought to a conclusion on the 28th March, 1873. The work during the year in this operation comprised the re-casting of 254 bundles of Bills, which previously occupied Bays 4.O., 4.N., and 4.M. These have been folded, formed into 3,337 books, and deposited, with the rest of the collection, in Bay 4.D., completing the fasciculi in this series to the total number of 43,850. My estimate that the whole collection would fit into a space of 20,000 cubic feet as compared with 60,000 in its former arrangement, has not been exceeded.

Pleadings completed.

9. The several Bills and Answers in Chancery which have been found out of place during this process, including those discovered during the last year, number 145 Bills and 161 Answers. A list of the names of the causes and parties in these, which might, for all practical purposes, be considered as lost records, is appended.

Chancery Bills and Answers out of place.

Appendix III.

10. Of the series known as "Ancient Pleadings" in Chancery, which were preserved on files, but so soiled and crumpled as to be practically useless for purposes of reference, there remained, in that state, at the end of 1872, 19 files or bundles. These have been cleansed, flattened, and made up in temporary wrappers for adjustment by class and date, preparatory to the formation of a regular index by way of Bill Book for the particular series. When so indexed they will be folded and arranged in spaces left for their reception in the great series.

Ancient Pleadings in Chancery.

11. The arrangement of the miscellaneous cause papers of the Court of Equity Exchequer, which, at the close of 1872, had advanced to letters I and L respectively, has been completed. The papers in 2,426 causes have been collected, labelled and deposited. The whole collection now forms a uniform series of Charges, Discharges, Interrogatories, Depositions, Notes of Hearings, Reports, Exceptions, and Ancillary Instruments, in 5,911 causes arranged in dictionary order.

Arrangement of Equity Exchequer Cause Papers completed.

12. It will be seen from the Report of Mr. Mills, to which I refer, that the residue of the large collection of documents brought in sacks from the vaults of the Court of Common Pleas has, so far as at present practicable, been arranged and deposited. There still remains, of this collection, sixteen sackfuls of documents, "of which, from their state of damage and neglect, it has been found impossible to make any practicable assortment."

Appendix IV.

Residue of Common Pleas Records.

13. Twenty-three Deeds affecting the rights of the Crown, including sixteen conveyances of Quit and Crown Rents, have been received and deposited during the year.

Crown Deeds.

14. The assortment of Inventions'-Patents has proceeded, pari passu, with their receipt through the Court of Chancery from the London Office. For special arrangements for this deposit see post, 43.

Inventions' Patents.

15. The work of indexing has been chiefly prosecuted in the Testamentary Department. Besides the indorsing of the envelopes, which constitute a self-indexing series for each collection, Indexes have been compiled for the Dioceses tabulated below, and have been bound and placed in the Search Room for the use of the public. These Indexes are complete for the whole of each collection up to the close of the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in 1858, and include as well the Wills deposited here as the several residues still left in the District Registries. They also include occasional cross-entries, so that the numbers are somewhat in excess of the actual number of instruments.

Binding, &c.

16. An Index has been prepared to a contemporary manuscript calendar of the Communia Rolls of the Exchequer from 1605 to 1627, transferred from the Office of the Master of the Exchequer in 1870.

17. The Calendaring of Disentailing Deed Rolls has been advanced from Deed 2,426, enrolled 13th February, 1851, to Deed 2,872, enrolled 23rd June, 1854.

18. New Indexes have been prepared to the Equity Exchequer Bill Books in lieu of the volumes for 1704-6, 1719-20, which had become illegible.

19. A Calendar has been formed of the First Series of Pleadings (A.D. 1662-1691) in the Court of Chancery of the Palatinate of Tipperary, and also an Index to the Chancery Rolls of that jurisdiction. The publication of the list of Fines and Recoveries in this jurisdiction, appended to my last Report, has been so much appreciated that it is thought well also to publish lists of the causes in the above-mentioned series of Pleadings and an abstract of the Rolls in the Chancery of the Palatinate. These lists form part of the further Report on the Records of the Palatinate, by the Assistant Deputy Keeper, which will be found in the Appendix.

20. In the Binding and Repairing Room of the Department, 163 volumes of the Testamentary series have been bound; 723 membranes of Plea Rolls, to Roll 80 inclusive, have been cleansed, flattened, and made good with transparent tissue-paper; and 213 Pleadings of the Court of Equity have been repaired.

The work undertaken during the year 1873 comprised:—

Extern.

Preparation for transfer and removal of the Records of the former Writ, Appearance, and Seal Office of the Court of Queen's Bench, in charge of the Clerk of the Records and Writs of Chancery, post, 21.

Preparation for transfer and removal of the Original Wills and Records of the Court of Probate for the Dioceses of Armagh and Clogher, and District of Drogheda, respectively, from the District Registry of the Court of Probate at Armagh, post, 22-26.

Like, of the Ecclesiastical Records of the Dioceses of Armagh and Clogher, and of the Primatial Court of Armagh, respectively, from the Provincial Registry at Armagh, post, 27-30.

Like, of the Original Wills and Records of the Court of Probate for the Dioceses of Down and Connor and Dromore, and exempt jurisdiction of Mourne, respectively, from the District Registry of the Court of Probate at Belfast, post, 31-35.

Like, of the Ecclesiastical Records of the Dioceses of Down, Connor, and Dromore from same Registry, post, 36.

Like, of the Original Wills and Records of the Court of Probate for the Dioceses of Derry and Raphoe from the District Registry of the Court of Probate at Londonderry, post, 37.

Like, of the Ecclesiastical Records of the same Dioceses from the same Registry, and from the town of Raphoe, post, 38.

Like, of the Ecclesiastical Records of the Diocese of Meath from Cookstown, Kells, post, 40.

Intern.

Erection of fittings, post, 43-44.

21. I refer to the Report of Mr. Berry, abstracted in the Appendix, for the particulars of the Records of the former Writ, Appearance, and Seal Office of the Court of Queen's Bench, which, in the course of the internal changes of offices, had come into the custody of the Clerk of the Records and Writs of Chancery, and have now been removed to this department.

22. The preparation of the Testamentary collections at Armagh, which began on the 4th of April, 1873, was discontinued from the 10th of April to the 19th of May, owing to the vacancy in the Registrarship, and, being resumed, occupied from the 19th to the 27th of May inclusive.

Proceedings at Armagh District Registry

Probate.

23. The District Registrar, considering that no necessity existed for withholding any portion of the Wills included in the Warrant, and seeing the small number which would thus be left in the Registry, was good enough to assent to my executing the warrant in full and removing the general Index.

Warrant fully executed.

Wills removed.

24. There were removed from Armagh Registry for the Diocese of Armagh, 8,509 Wills, dated from 1667 to 1846; for the Diocese of Clogher, 5,646 Wills, dated from 1658 to 1846; and for the District of Drogheda, 1,001 Wills, dated from 1687 to 1846. These numbers include unproved as well as proved Wills, the instruments being so intermixed for Armagh and Drogheda that an undue time would have been required for their separate enumeration. These numbers also, here as elsewhere, include Monitions and copies where original Wills are not forthcoming in the District Registry.

25. There were also removed for Armagh Diocese, seven Will Books (1816 to 1856); one Grant Book (1803 to 1808); and one volume of Entries of Renunciations and Caveats (1850 to 1857); for Clogher Diocese, nine Will Books, subsequently discovered, as after mentioned (1793 to 1807); and for Drogheda District four Will and Grant Books, and three Marriage Fee Books (1784 to 1844). In respect of entries such as the last, I beg leave to refer to my Fifth Report, par. 48.

Books removed.

to Administrations for Armagh Diocese, dated from 1812 to 1857, and one Index to, and copies of, Administrations for the Diocese of Clogher, dated from 1839 to 1857.

Ecclesiastical
Records at Provincial Registry,
Armagh.

27. The collection of Ecclesiastical Records at Armagh was, as might be expected at the seat of the Primacy, large and well kept in a building called the Provincial Registry. The Records occupied twelve repositories in three apartments, the largest being fire-proof, detached and specially built for Record purposes. The collection comprised:—

1. Patents and Consecrations of Bishops.
2. Patents, Presentations, and Collations to Benefices.
3. Subscription Books and Rolls.
4. Petitions for Licenses for Non-residence.
5. Sequestrations of Benefices.
6. Deeds of Consecrations of Churches.
7. Faculties for Rebuilding and Altering, &c.
8. Deeds establishing Perpetual Cures.
9. Registry Books containing Entries of foregoing and other Records.
10. Duplicate Returns to Privy Council.
11. Visitation Books, Rural Deans' Reports, &c.
12. Copies of Parochial Registries.
13. Presentments at Vestries.
14. Documents relating to Royal Schools.
15. Citations, Pleadings, &c.

Including
matter.

28. Together with these, there was a large amount of Testamentary matter, including the Will Books for Clogher, above referred to, which had not been transferred to the District Registry of the Court of Probate.

Classes of
left unremoved.

29. As the Warrant extended only to the Records and Documents of any Court, Commission, or Public Office, that had ceased to exist within the meaning of the Sixth Sub-section of Section 4 of the Act, and as it is not altogether clear whether the expression "Public Office" refers to the establishment in which, or to the function in discharge of which, the Records were made, I did not think myself warranted in removing the classes numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, 6, 7, 14, but, considering a Visitation to be a Court within the meaning of the Act, I intimated my desire to remove the documents under No. 11, together with the residue of the other classes. Finding the Registrar unwilling to assent to this course without further advice, and seeing the probability of some legislative solution of the questions which have arisen on the Act, it was thought expedient that such opportunity of having deliberate advice should be afforded, especially as the books are in safe custody and easy of future removal. These books were accordingly left in their former custody. No further communication in regard to them has been received. Books of the like nature have been removed from the other Ecclesiastical repositories hitherto visited without objection.

part of collection relating to

30. As regards class 8 and other documents relating to the property of the late Established Church, which had not yet been transferred to the Church Commissioners, and which are by the Church Act destined for ultimate deposit here, I obtained the sanction of the Commissioners to their direct transfer, and proceeded with their removal along with the other classes covered by the Warrant. The preparations for its removal began on the 27th, and the removal was completed on the 31st of May, 1873. The Books found in the repositories did not include the Registers of the See.

Register Books not found.

31. In proceeding with the removal of the Testamentary Records from the District Registry of the Court of Probate at Belfast, the execution of the Act was much facilitated by the withdrawal of any further objection on the part of the Court of Probate to the complete execution of the Warrant which embraced all instruments twenty years old at the time of the passing of the Act. Operations were further facilitated by the arrangement in which the major part of the collection was found. This was not alphabetical, but according to the successions of proof, with consecutive numbers, for the Wills of the respective Dioceses. A complete Index existed, which the District Registrar was good enough to allow to be removed, on being supplied with a copy of so much as related to the residue of the Wills less than twenty years old at the time of the passing of the Act, which has been left in his charge.

Belfast District
Registry.

Warrant fully
executed.

32. From the Belfast District Registry there were removed, for the Diocese of Connor, two series of Wills, the first dated from 1622 to 1810, numbered consecutively, and containing 10,427 Wills, and the second, dated 1810 to 1846, numbered consecutively, and containing 6,868 Wills, together with eighty-six unproved Wills.

Wills removed for Diocese of Connor.

33. For the Diocese of Down, there were removed 2,489 Wills, dated from 1659 to 1788, in alphabetical arrangement, and 6,212 Wills, numbered consecutively for the entire series, dated from 1789 to 1846, together with sixty-three unproved Wills.

Do. for Diocese of Down.

34. The Wills for the Diocese of Dromore, in 149 bundles, dated from 1678 to 1846, purporting to contain 5,218 Wills, together with twenty bundles of unproved Wills (347) for the same Diocese, and fifty-eight Wills for the exempt jurisdiction of Newry and Mourne, were also removed.

Do. for Dromore and
Mourne.

35. There were removed from Belfast four Will Books for the Diocese of Down (1807 to 1850), containing entries and copies of the Wills, numbered 2,434 to 6,612; seven Will Books for the Diocese of Connor (1810 to 1853), containing entries and copies of the Wills, numbered 1 to 8,214, of the second series, and one Grant Book, dated from 1790 to 1814.

Will Books
Registry.

36. The Ecclesiastical Collection at Belfast (post, 47), owing to previous transmissions to the Court of Matrimony and the Church Commissioners, was not large. The proceedings in its removal, and in the heavier operation of transferring the Testamentary Records, occupied from the 6th to the 18th of June.

Ecclesiastical
Records
Belfast District
Registry.

37. The District Registry of the Court of Probate at Londonderry was next visited. Here were deposited the Wills and Testamentary instruments for the Dioceses of Derry and Raphoe, together with a portion of the Ecclesiastical Records of the former Diocese. There were removed for the Diocese of Derry 4,919 Wills, dated from 1612 to 1846, and for the Diocese of Raphoe 1,513 Wills, dated from 1684 to 1846, being all that the Warrant included. There were also removed two Will Books for the former Diocese, containing entries and copies of Wills from 178 to 1799; and two Will Books for the latter, containing like matter from 1819 to 1844. One Will Book, from 1844 to the present time, was left in the District Registry.

Ecclesiastical
removed from
and Raphoe.

38. The Ecclesiastical Collections for the Diocese of Raphoe were deposited in private custody, at the town of Raphoe, from whence they were brought to Londonderry, and thence removed with the other Ecclesiastical and Testamentary documents, to this office. The proceedings in both series occupied from the 18th to the 28th of June.

Take from Cavan.

39. On their return from Londonderry, the servants of this office effected the removal of the Ecclesiastical Collections for the Dioceses of Ardagh and Kilmore, deposited in private custody in the town of Cavan.

Take from Cookstown, Kells.

40. The Ecclesiastical Collections for the Diocese of Meath were subsequently brought to this office from private custody of the Rev. Garrett Nugent, at Cookstown, Kells.

Condition of Ecclesiastical
Collection.

41. The general character and extent of the several collections of this nature will be seen by the table, post, 47. For the most part these Records are in great confusion, and of very unequal value.

Warrant for Cork fully executed.
[V. 43.]

42. The District Registrar of the Court of Probate, at Cork, having satisfied himself that no necessity existed for further retaining the residue of the Wills included in the first Warrant and left in his charge on the first transmission, these Wills, numbering for the Diocese of Cork and Ross, 876 Wills, for Cloyne, 648 Wills, and for Ardfert and Aghadoe, 807 Wills, were brought to this office on the 29th of October.

Special fittings for Inventions'
Patents.

43. The fittings for the reception of the Testamentary Collections and Equity Exchequer Pleadings having been completed, it has been found necessary to provide special fittings for the accumulation of Inventions' Patents, and the reception of other collections consisting of heavy books. These fittings have been commenced in Bay 1 R. The economy of space resulting from the arrangement here in progress will be as three to two, compared with the old arrangement, while the central floor and window space will be left unobstructed.

Ditto.

44. Fittings have also been erected for the sorting and distributing of the Inventions' Patents, in Bay 1 D.

Deposit of Pleadings of the Court of Equity
commenced.

45. The same principle carried out in the deposit of the Chancery Pleadings has been adopted with those of the Court of Equity Exchequer. Their original arrangement was simpler than that observed in the Chancery series, there being, previous to 1800, no distinction between Bills, Answers, or other Pleadings, and no sub-division among six Clerks, but each Pleading succeeding the other chronologically in the order of receipt in the office. After 1800, the distinction into Bills and Answers has been observed, but the labour of folding has been obviated by their being made up in a uniform size, conformable to the existing fittings. The deposit of this collection may be expected to occupy less time than that of the Chancery series.

&c., of Fiant

46. Having completed the cleansing and flattening of the Early Pleadings in Chancery, the same process has been begun with the

48. I have had the honour in several previous reports to refer to the expediency of continuing some of the more practically useful publications left unfinished by the late Record Commissioners for Ireland, and for the completion of which material exists in an advanced state of preparation. The Incorporated Society of Solicitors and Attorneys has expressed its desire that copies in some form of autotype should be produced of the Down Survey Maps, and that the printing of the Inquisitions for Munster and Connaught should be completed.

Record publications recommended. [III. 31, 32; IV. 52; V. 20.]

49. The Judgment Rolls retained in the several superior Courts of Law, pending arrangements as to making the necessary entries on them after transfer to this office, remain unremoved. I beg leave to refer to the several statements respecting this delay in the execution of the Act, in my former Reports.

Judgment Rolls of Law Courts remaining unremoved. [III. 41; IV. 54; V. 3.]

50. An order was made on the 23rd of July, 1873, by the House of Commons, for a return of "all leases, grants, or charters, of any rights of the Crown to Foreshores, or of any rights of the Crown along the sea shore, or to the beds or shores of tidal rivers of the County of Louth, from Clogher Head to the river of Newry at Omeath, made previous to the year 1827, distinguishing such rights, to whom and for what cause or motives granted, date of grant, name of grantee, and name of such place whereof such grant has been made." The indefinite nature of this inquiry, and the great extent of time included in it, caused the withdrawal of two officers from their ordinary occupations for a lengthened period, and the result was, that, in the absence of extrinsic evidence, no such grant, &c., appeared to have been made.

Order of House of Commons in relation to Foreshores.

Time involved in search. Search nugatory.

51. I annex the usual sectional diagram of the Record Treasury, exhibiting the present state of the Repositories, and distinguishing in red colour the work performed during the past year.

52. The Fees received for Inspections, Transcripts, and Attendances, during the year 1873, amounted to £545 8s. 6d.

53. Mr. Gilbert, Secretary of the Public Record Office, has, under the direction of the Right Hon. the Master of the Rolls in Ireland, selected, classified, and arranged the specimens of the documents for reproduction by the photozincographic process at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, to accompany the letterpress, also prepared by him as editor, of the "Fac-similes of National MSS. of Ireland." The letterpress matter of the first portion of this work has been for some time in type at Dublin, awaiting final impressions of the plates. These are now understood to be in process of printing, so that the Right Hon. the Master of the Rolls will be enabled to lay a complete copy of Part I. before your Grace at an early date.

"Fac-similes of National MSS. of Ireland," edited by Secretary.

54. Mr. Gilbert's statement of the nature and progress of his work will be found in the Appendix, in the form of a letter to the Right Hon. the Master of the Rolls. I may be allowed to express the great satisfaction I experience in reporting to your Grace that a work of so much curiosity and splendour in its material, and of such great erudition and accuracy in its editorial treatment, has been advanced so far towards completion in connexion with this Office.

APPENDIX 1.

EXTRACT from REPORT of JAMES H. DAVIES, esq., on the removal of the RESIDUE of the COLLECTIONS deposited in the OFFICES of the late Right Honorable EDWARD LITTON, M.C.

Proceedings were commenced on the 15th November, 1872; but owing to the intervention of more urgent official business, it was not until the 17th January, 1873, that the final transfer was effected.

The collection comprising Books, Cause Papers, Deeds Boxes, and Miscellanea, was contained in presses and on shelves in Master Litton's Examiner's office and in a small room adjoining; as regards the books and documents in the "Newcomen Bank" Case, in a vault under the Court of Nisi Prius. With the exception of last lot and of the Deeds Boxes, it has been deposited in bay 2 P in the Record Treasury. The Deeds Boxes were lodged in vault D, and the "Newcomen Bank" deposit in bay 1 H.

The Books comprise—

Cause Books, 1835–1859.

Do. (Minors' and Lunatics), 1806–1809.

Costs Books, 2 vols., 1800–1804 and 1807–1812.

Note Books and Memoranda, 1793–1869; prior to 1835, these Books appear to have been rather irregularly kept; but, after that date, they form a complete series.

Order Books, 1835–1855.

Do. (Cause Petitions), February, 1851, to March, 1857.

Official Account Books of various date.

Summons Books, one for 1821, and a complete series from 1827–1869.

There were, besides, various Private Account Books, Rentals, &c., which had been lodged as exhibits in different causes, and a few Maps and Plans.

CAUSE PAPERS.—The nature of these has been given by Mr. Mills in his Report on the part of the Collection previously removed, to which Report I beg to refer (2nd Report of Deputy Keeper, p. 32). A similar process of arrangement has been commenced, and carried out to the end of letter R. To this point papers have been found in 3,300 Causes. When the arrangements shall have been completed, these documents will be interpolated in the Index already made, as mentioned by Mr. Mills.

DEEDS BOXES.—Twelve Deeds Boxes and two large wooden cases containing Rentals were removed to this office. Each box was carefully examined and furnished with lock and key where wanting. All have been entered in the Search-room Index.

MISCELLANEA comprise Attested Copies lodged in progress of Causes, Receipts for Deeds Boxes handed out, and fragments of Documents. These have been put up with the Cause Papers when practicable.

The arrangement and indexing of the Cause Papers is in progress.

APPENDIX 2.

To the Right Honorable the MASTER of the ROLLS in IRELAND. —
THE SIXTH REPORT of SIR JOHN BERNARD BURKE, C.B., ULSTER, KEEPER of the STATE PAPERS in the RECORD TOWER, DUBLIN
CASTLE, dated 1st February, 1874.

SIR,—I beg leave to place before your Honor my annual Report on the progress of the work of the State Paper Department from 1st February, 1873, to 1st February, 1874.

TRANSFER OF DOCUMENTS.

HEADS OF BILLS, PUBLIC AND PRIVATE, OF THE IRISH PARLIAMENT.—1711–1782, contained in cartons 909 to 980, inclusive, have been transferred to the Public Record Office.

TRANSMISSES OF BILLS.—1753–1780, contained in four bundles, have also been transferred to the Public Record Office.

ARRANGEMENT, CLASSIFICATION, INDEXING, &C., OF THE STATE PAPER DEPARTMENT.

I. ARRANGEMENT OF THE MODERN STATE PAPERS.—1821–1852. These papers consist of a vast mass: those of the year 1821 have been folded and placed in 34 cartons. A great number of these documents had become displaced, from having been sent over to London at the request of the Chief Secretaries for Ireland on various occasions when reference was required to them for parliamentary and other purposes. When the occasions were over, they were not replaced in their proper series, causing much trouble when further reference was required, as I myself have experienced. These detached papers have now been replaced in their proper series, and the same course will be observed in the consecutive years. A great many miscellaneous papers belonging to this year, not included in the current Indexes, received from the Chief Secretary's Office, have been arranged, numbered, indexed in slips preparatory to making a catalogue, and likewise placed in cartons. While the papers of the year 1821 were being arranged, those of other years have been partly sorted. At pages 31 and 32 of my last (5th) Report I have alluded to the considerable amount of labour and care that this large and important series will require to render it of easy access for the public service. The papers of this collection of the year 1821 are now arranged in complete order in 38 cartons (Nos. 621 to 658, inclusive), and can be readily and promptly referred to. The documents of the succeeding years become gradually, year by year, of larger bulk down to 1852, the papers of which period are the latest, with few exceptions, that have been, up to the present, transferred from the Chief Secretary's Office. It is very desirable, as I have stated in my last (5th) Report, p. 32, that these papers should be in perfect order, as constant references are made by Government, and much time is occupied by searches through such an immense body of documents. Once the arrangement and indexing, which I am having done, is completed, the series will be available at a moment's notice.

II. PRESENTMENTS, AFFIDAVITS, EXAMINATIONS, INFORMATIONS, &C.—This series has been sorted in counties, each county arranged chronologically, indexed in slips, and placed in cartons. When the Index shall have been transcribed, the collection will be ready for transfer to the Public Record Office. The series, numbering about 2,500 documents, consists chiefly of Presentments by the Grand Juries at Assizes and Quarter Sessions, for the purpose of obtaining Proclamations by the Lord Lieutenant or Lords Justices under the Acts against Tories, Robbers, and Rapparees as out upon their keeping in arms and not amenable to justice, for various crimes, viz. :—Political offences, murders, robberies, burglaries, smuggling, abductions, rapes, houghing of cattle, taking illegal and forcible possession of lands, arson, jail breaking, running of goods, &c., &c. The sworn informations on which these Presentments were made—and they are very numerous—are annexed to the documents.

The series also contains Certificates, Affidavits, Oaths, &c., of a miscellaneous nature. The collection affords important information as to the state of the country between the years 1701 and 1800. A comprehensive Index has been compiled to the whole collection. I append a copy of a presentment, with an information annexed, to show the nature of these proceedings.

III. HEADS OF BILLS, PUBLIC AND PRIVATE, OF THE IRISH PARLIAMENT.—1711-1782. This large collection has been arranged and placed in 74 cartons (Nos. 909 to 980, inclusive). The Public Bills have been separated from the Private Bills, arranged chronologically, and numbered, and a comprehensive Index has been made to them. The Private Bills have been indexed alphabetically, that is, according to the names of the parties to whom the bills refer. The Private Bills, which are mostly for the sale of settled estates, set forth the settlements and the state of the family and genealogical history.

The whole series, consisting of more than 1,500 documents,* has been transferred to the Public Record Office.

IV.—TRANSMISSES OF BILLS.—1753-1780. These documents, comprising 4 bundles not adapted for preservation in cartons, have been arranged, indexed, and transferred to the Public Record Office.

TRANSMISSES were the Bills transmitted by the King in Council to the Council Board of Ireland, as having the King's sanction to be debated and passed by the Parliament of Ireland, and this form exhibits very fully the bonds imposed on the Irish Parliament by Poynning's Act. The Bills took their rise with the Lord Lieutenant and Council of Ireland, and were then sent over for the approval of the King in Council. On being approved there, they were transmitted to Ireland as sanctioned by the King, and thus took the name of Transmisses. Each bill is on parchment, and the several sheets being made up in the form of a deed, a parchment label, with the Great Seal appended, is affixed, in the same manner as the Warrant of the Prerogative Court is attached to the Probate of a Will. This Warrant directs the Lord Lieutenant to file the Bill, with the Warrant annexed, in Chancery, and authorizes him to give the Royal assent when passed. The following is a copy of the Warrant annexed to a Transmiss of a private Act of the reign of George I., of the year 1720. The Lords Justices were Lords Justices of England during the King's absence in Hanover.

The same forms were continued until the Legislative Independence of Ireland was restored in 1782.

"George by the Grace of God, &c. to Our Right trusty and Right entirely beloved Cousin and Counsellor Charles Duke of Bolton our Lieutenant Generall and Generall Governour of our Kingdom of Ireland and other our Chief Governours of our said realme for the time being or which hereafter shall be Greeting: Whereas wee have lately received from you our said Lieutenant General and Generall Governor and others of our Counsell of that realme certain Bills to be considered upon concerning matters necessary for our said realme. And having had consideration thereof, We do by these presents declare our Royall approbation of one of them hereunto annexed and hereinafter particularly named, that is to say, An Act for confirming an agreement made between Nicholas Plunkett and Henry Plunkett his brother for exchanging their Estates and securing to severall Protestant Legatees the lagacies to them bequeathed by the last will of Nicholas Plunkett deceased. The Great Seal of England is pendent by a silk string passed through the several sheets of parchment of the Bill and Warrant for its being passed by the Parliament.

V. PETITIONS, AND OTHER PAPERS CONNECTED THEREWITH, being addressed to the Lord Lieutenant and Council, and Lords Justices of Ireland.

This mass of papers, extending to full 18,000, has been arranged alphabetically according to the surnames of the petitioners; and the numbering, preparatory to their being indexed, has been proceeded with.

These documents are of infinite variety, and afford information on various subjects of public interest, and supply much historical and genealogical matter, giving, as they do, details of private transactions and occurrences.

The "petitions" are addressed to the Lord Lieutenant, or Justices and Council of Ireland, by various public authorities and private persons, including Governors of Counties and Castles; High Sheriffs; Justices of the Peace; Naval and Military officers and authorities; Mayors and members of Corporations; Local Officials; Merchants and Traders; Inhabitants of Counties; Manufacturers; Government Officials; State Officers; Captains of Ships; French Refugees; Law Officials; Private Individuals, &c., &c.

The subjects to which they refer are very numerous, such, for instance, as exportation of goods; recovery of estates; reversal of outlawries; rewards as to capture of Tories, Robbers, and Rapparees, as well as of pirates; protection against French privateers; houghers of cattle; issue of Proclamations; raising a fund of credit by charging estates and fortunes to circulate bills for answering the exigencies of the kingdom occasioned by the scarcity of coin and the want of employment for the great number of the poor of the country; renewals of Patents; Pensions; divisions of Parishes; removals of the sites of Churches; Military aids, &c., &c.

A couple of these petitions may serve as specimens.

"To His Grace Charles Duke of Bolton Lord Lieutenn^t Gen^l and Gen^l Governour of Ireland And to our R^y Hono^{ble}. the Privy Council thereof.

"The Humble Peticon of Patrick Bellew esq. and the R^y Hon^{ble}. Frances Viscountess Dowager Dillon his wife.

"HUMBLY SHEWETH—That your Peticoners were on the 30th day of June last after a very expens[ive trial] Decreed (int al.) to the possession of the Castle, Towne, and Lands of Loughlin in the county of Rosco[mmon] pursuant to which Decree an Injunction issued under the seale of his Majestyes high Court of Chancery in this Kingdom by virtue of which the Sheriffe of the s^d County on the 12th of August last gave your Peticoners the actual possession of the s^d Castle, Towne and Lands.

"That on the 18th of August last about one of the clock in the afternoon a fire was discovered to be between the Cock-loft and roofo of the staircase of the s^d Castle of Loughlin which in a few hours burnt all the s^d Castle to the ground with part of the household goods.

"That your Peticoners have good reason to believe that the s^d fire was designedly putt into the s^d Cockloft in prejudice to your Pet^{rs} in order to Deterr and hinder them from enjoying the s^d Castle Towne and Lands, for that severall of the Tenn^{ts} and Inhabitants of the s^d Towne of Loughlin and the adjacent villages have sevⁿ times these twelve months past Declared (if your Pet^{rs} should goe to live in the s^d Castle or dwelling-house of Loughlin) they would (if they could not be otherwise revenged) sett the s^d house on fire as by an Examination upon oath taken before Barthol. Mahon esq. one of his Majestyes Justices of the Peace of the s^d county of Roscommon appears.

"That it also appears by the Examinacons on oath of severall persons that were in the said dwelling house or Castle of Loughlin at the time the fire was first discovered to be in the s^d Cockloft that there was then or at any time before on that day any fire or candle light in any chimney or room in the s^d Castle and that the s^d Cockloft under the s^d rooffe of the staircase was never frequented or made use of by any of the family, there being neither Door or passage into the same except a small break or hole about two foot wide to which there was noe access without some steps of a Ladder.

"That as a further Instance of the Barbarity and cruelty of the Tenn^a and Inhabitants of the s^d Town of Loughlin and the adjacent villages they on the s^d 18th of August last (as your Pet^r and their servants were coming away from Loughlin after the s^d house was burnt) sent upwards of one hundred women upon the high road at some distance from Loughlin who in a most riotous & Tumultuous manner assaulted & insulted your Pet^r and their servants by throwing stones at them and crying out and cursing your Pet^r and their servants. In soe much that if they had not been kept off by some Gentl^a that rode along with your Pet^r that had fire arms they would in all probability have killed some of your Pet^r or their serv^ts as by the above examinacons will fully appeare.

"That your Pet^r are convinced that the house was designedly sett on fire by y^e contrivance of some wicked person or persons out of prejudice to your Peticoners and their interest in that country and have some reasons to believe the same may be discovered if a reasonable reward and pardon were promised and secured to the Discov[erers w^h yo^r Pet^r are advised cannot be otherwise done than by Proclamacon.

"That inasmuch as your Peticoners are willing to secure and pay the sume of £100 ster^s to any person or persons that will discover the person or persons that sett the s^d house on fire or that contrived or procured the same to be sett on fire—Soe as any person or persons soe to be discovered be convict thereof.

"May it therefore please your Grace to give direcons that such Proclamacon be Issued on this occasion as the nature of the case requires and as your Grace in your great Wisdom shall judge proper and that some directions may be given to the Judge of Assize for the Province of Connaught to inquire into this matter at the Assizes to be held at Roscomon on the 18th Instant.

"And your Peticoners will pray, &c.

"PATRICK BELLEW.
"F. DILLON."

"COM. ROSCOMON. The Exon. of Wm. Davis Gentleman taken before E. Sandys Reynolds Esq., one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the said County the day Augt., 1719.

"The said Exam^t being duely sworn on the Holy Evangelists deposeth that on the 18th day of August last, he was present, when the house of Loughlin was burnt and says that at the time the s^d house was burning the Depon^t was blaming several Persons then present for not assisting to put out the s^d Fire, upon which one Thady Groucke lifted up his hand and threatened to strike this Deponent and swore that if the rest of the persons then present would assist him the s^d Groucke he would take this Exam^t and his crew, meaning (as the Depon^t apprehended and believes) Patrick Bellew Esq. and the Lady Dillon, to whom this Depon^t is receiver and throw them all into the flames and keep them there till they were burnt.

"The Humble Petition of David Latouche of the City of Dublin Mercht.

"HUMBLY SHEWETH—That your Petition^r is now about to build a house in Castle street the backside of which adjoins the Castle ditch.

"That the said Ditch is filled up with Coal Ashes Excrement and Filth thrown there by the Neighbours, for want of a Fence which is a great detriment to your Pet^r as well as an annoyance to the Castle.

"That your Petit^r humbly conceives it will not be any inconveniency to his Matie if your Pet^r carrys his Walls home to the Castle wall at his own cost he entring into an obligacon to your Excell^{ies} to put back his wall at his own charge to the place w^{ch} shall be judged to belong to him, immediately upon yo^r Excell^{ies} signifying yo^r pleasure therein.

"He therefore most humbly prays yo^r Excell^{ies} to grant him that favour upon the condition aforesaid.

"We are pleased hereby to Refer the within Petition to Thomas Burgh Esq. Engineer and Surveyor-General of His Majesty's Fortifications and Buildings to examine the allegations thereof and Report unto us a true state of the case together with his opinion what is proper to be done therein. Given at His Majesty's Castle of Dublin the Fourteenth day of August, 1726.

"By Their Excies. Command

"THO. TICKELL.

"Ord^r of Reference on the Peticon of David Latouche Mercht."

"To their Excies. the Lords Justices Gen^l and Gen^l Gov^r of Ireland.

"MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCIES.—In obedience to your Excies. order of Reference on the foregoing Petition requiring me to report a true state of the case together with my opinion what is proper to be done therein. I humbly lay before your Excies. that a vast quantity of Filth hath been and daily is thrown into the Castle ditch which cannot but be disagreeable to the sight and smell of those who border upon it, or goe into, or out of, his Maties Castle.

"That in order to prevent this evil, I did, on the 8th day of January 1712, lay before the Government a memorial setting forth, that there had been several encroachments made on the Castle ditch, and humbly moved that some method might be taken to oblige those who had made such encroachments to deliver up the possession of the same, and that the ground belonging to the Crown, might be ascertained. Whereupon order was given to the then Attorney-Gen^l to enquire into the Titles of those who claimed a right to the ground where the encroachments were made, and to pursue such methods as would oblige those to remove the encroachments whose Titles did not appear to be good. Mr. Attorney made his report on the 6th day of March following.

"On the 16th day of November 1714, I laid a copy of the s^d Memorial and Report before the Lords Justices, and do now humbly lay before your Excies. copies of the same, hereunto annexed to the intent that your Excies. seeing the circumstances of that ground may direct if you shall judge it proper so to enclose the ground belonging to His Majtie, as to prevent further encroachments, or further filling the ditch with nastiness; or permit the Petitioner, on the terms he proposes, to prevent in part the growing nuisance he complains of. All which is humbly submitted to your Excies. consideration.

[Endorsed.]

"The humble Petition of David Latouche.

"Referred to Capt. Burgh."

[The Surveyor-General's Report of 8th January, 1712, and Attorney-General's Report of the same year, are annexed ; also a further petition before 1750.]

" To His Grace the Duke of Devonshire Lord Lieut'. General and Gen'. Gov'. of Ireland.

" The Humble Memorial of David Latouche of the City of Dublin Banker.

" HUMBLY SHEWETH—That by carrying on sundry Buildings in His Majesty's Castle of Dublin in the year 1750 at the Rear of your Mem^o house in Castle-street, your Memorialist said house was so damaged as to render it unsafe for your Mem^o to live in and obliged him to have it taken down and Rebuilt.

" That your Mem^o in the business of a Banker the necessity of removing all his Effects & papers in a very sudden manner occasioned by imminent danger he was in put him to great inconvenience and Loss in the carrying on of his business being obliged to do it in different places, not being able to find one proper place for it.

" That your Mem^o then laid before their Excies the then Lords Justices several memorials and Petitions shewing the dangerous situation he was then in with proper certificates & affidavits of the most skilful and able Masons & Carpenters of the City of Dublin proving the same & also the several estimates of his damages amounting then to £918 14 11 after making the proper allowances for old materials &c. and which he apprehends he proved to their Excellency's satisfaction.

" That of the above sum of £918. 14. 11 only £541. 6. 11 was claimed by him as a Loss on taking down the said house tho the same had cost him £1500 for the building so late as the year 1727 and the rebuilding of it since a much greater sum.

" That the further sum of £377. 8. 0 part of the said sum of £918. 14. 11 was money paid out of his pocket for house rent and sundry expences that he was put to for carrying on his business during the taking down and the rebuilding the house he now lives in.

" That your Mem^o was then assured that all damages & losses that he might suffer would be repaid to him which induced him not to take the necessary steps to secure himself.

" That the valuations and accounts were referred to His Majesty's Prime Serjeant, Attorney & Solicitor General for their Report before whom your Mem^o as he apprehends proved the same.

" That notwithstanding your Mem^o several applications since for the reimbursement of the said sum of £918. 14. 11 so long since as the year 1750 your Mem^o has not been paid the same, the Interest whereof amounts to the sum of £275.

" May it therefore please your Grace to take your Memorialist's case into consideration and to order such relief therein as to your Grace in your Wisdom shall seem meet.

And your Mem^o will pray,

D^d. LA TOUCHE.

APPENDIX 4.

EXTRACT from REPORT of JAMES MILLS, esq., on the arrangement of the RECORDS removed from the VAULTS of the COURT of COMMON PLEAS.

With the other records transferred from the Court of Common Pleas, there was a large mass of documents, which had from time to time been removed from the office presses to make room for the accumulating business of the day. These, as stated in my report on the transfer of the collection, were stored in 160 sacks in two damp vaults beneath the Four Courts building.

There existed what purported to be a catalogue of the contents of these sacks, which up to a certain point proved serviceable; but the absence of order among the bundles, rendered futile all attempts to secure a means of reference to the particular records in their then state. Upon their removal here, I was therefore entrusted with the formation of a new arrangement in conformity with that of the other Records of the Court.

The nature of this work and the progress made in it, have been mentioned in your Third, Fourth, and Fifth Reports (sections 47, 12, and 14, respectively); and I have now to report its completion.

The subjoined list shows the classes into which these Records have been assorted, with the periods over which they extend. In most instances, they will be found to supplement those of the same class removed from the office presses; but a few previously unrepresented series have been found. 239 parcels (Third Report, app., p. 55) extracted from their sacks, and interpolated with the other Records before the date of my first report, are not included in this list:—

AFFIDAVITS, COMMON. One file, Trinity Term, 1696.

APPENDIX 5.

EXTRACT from FURTHER REPORT of the ASSISTANT DEPUTY KEEPER on the RECORDS of the PALATINATE of TIPPERARY.

The Records of the Palatinate of Tipperary, removed from the Rolls Office, Chancery, belong exclusively to the local Chancery. The bulk of these is made up of two large series, one of Pleadings and the other of Rolls. The series of Pleadings was preserved in two separate divisions, the one extending from 1662 to 1690, and the other from 1691 to 1715. The earlier series was arranged and numbered under the several initial letters, but it had no Index. Its contents have been carefully cleaned, folded to a uniform size, and deposited in trays in Dictionary order (Bay 3 B), and an Index Book has been made to it in the ordinary form of a Chancery Bill Book, the subsidiary Pleadings being entered under their respective Bills.

I have annexed to this, my Report, a schedule in Dictionary order, which gives the Titles of the causes and the Dates of the Bills; this I thought advisable, as, in consequence of the want of any reference, this series of Bills has been hitherto altogether unknown to the public, although it presents many features of interest, both as throwing light on the Cromwellian Settlement of the County Tipperary, and as affording information with regard to the practical working of the Acts of Settlement and Explanation.

The later division is arranged on quite a different plan, in yearly bundles, in a numerical series; the numbers, however, appear to have been given without much regard to any date, except the yearly one. There is a Reference Book, in the form of a Bill Book, in which the Bills of this Series are arranged under their initial letters, in chronological sequence, thereby obviating the necessity for an Index. The only case in which a suit pending in the local Court seems to have been continued in the High Court of Chancery, in pursuance of the powers given by the 2 Geo. I., cap. 8, sec. 8, is that of Boate and others v. Boate and others, the Pleadings in which, though entered in this Bill Book, are of record amongst the ordinary Answers in Chancery.

The Chancery Rolls of the Palatinate were 126 in number, for the most part small, and generally containing but one Enrolment in each.

They have been consolidated into thirteen Rolls, for the greater convenience of deposit, and have been assorted into two classes—the one containing Enrolments of Fee-farm Grants from the Duke of Ormond, and the other Enrolments of a miscellaneous character. These Fee-farm Grants were made in pursuance of several Acts of Parliament passed to enable the Duke of Ormond to raise money for the purpose of discharging his debts. The first Act was passed in Ireland in the 7th year of King William the Third (Statute Roll, 1695 ; 3 D : 309 : 5), and was entitled “An Act for vesting certain Manors, Lands, and Tenements belonging to James, Duke of Ormond, in Ireland, in Trustees, to be sold, and enabling the said Duke to make leases for raising of money to discharge the Debts and Incumbrances of his Grandfather, the late Duke of Ormond, charged on his Estate in Ireland, and likewise for raising of portions for the younger daughters which the said Duke shall happen to have, and securing the jointure of the present Duchess.”

The next, made at Westminster the 8th and 9th William the Third, and which does not appear to have been enrolled in Ireland, was entitled, “An Act for enabling James, Duke of Ormond, to raise money by sale of Woods, and making Leases of lives renewable for ever ; for payment of debts, and for encouraging English plantations in Ireland ; and for Charles, Lord Weston, Earl of Arran, in the Kingdom of Ireland, to make Leases of his Estate in the said Kingdom.” It recites that the Duke of Ormond was unwilling that the Manors, &c., which he was empowered to sell under the previous Act, should be actually sold, but preferred that they should be preserved in the family, and that the necessary money should be raised by granting Leases, dispunishable of waste, for lives renewable for ever, and reserving at least two-thirds of the rent. By a further Act, made at Westminster, in the 13th year of King William the Third, and enrolled in the Chancery of Ireland (Patent Roll, 13 William III., Part 1 ; 3 D : 56 : 6), power was given to enlarge the Leases of Lives into Fee-farm Grants, dispunishable of waste, and to make Fee-farm Grants until the 29th September, 1703, provided such Grants were enrolled in Chancery, or in the Rolls office of the County Palatine of Tipperary, or of the Manors to which the premises therein granted belonged.

By another Act, made in Dublin, 2nd Anne (Statute Roll, 1703, 1st Part ; 3 D : 309 : 6), and entitled, “An Act to confirm the Sales, Fee-farms and Leases made by James, Duke of Ormond, and Charles, Earl of Arran, and to enlarge a period for making Fee-farm Grants until Michaelmas, 1705, and to enable the Earl of Arran to sell lands to the value of £100 per annum, if occasion require,” the time for making these Grants was extended two years further. An Act passed in Dublin, 6th Anne (Statute Roll, 1707 ; 3 D : 310 : 2), entitled, “An Act to enlarge the time for executing several powers and authorities given unto James, Duke of Ormond, and Charles, Lord Weston, Earl of Arran, by several former Acts of Parliament, and for making effectual and confirming the Bargains, Sales, Fee-farms and Leases, made by the said Duke and Earl,” made valid such Fee-farm Grants as had not been executed within the time mentioned in the previous Acts, provided they were enrolled in Chancery, or in the Rolls Office of the County Palatine of Tipperary, within twelve months after the dates of execution.

These Fee-farm Grants are in the form of Deeds of Lease and Release, and generally recite the Leases of lives granted under the 8th William III., the Acts of Parliament relating to them, and the consideration money given. They have, in most cases, the order of the Master of the Rolls of the Palatinate for their enrolments, the dates of which run from 2nd April, 1703, to 6th April, 1714. Sixty of them are enrolled on these Palatinate Rolls, disposing in the aggregate of—

3,836	acres in the Barony of Clanwilliam,
4,756	„ „ „ Eliogurty and Ikerin,
344	„ „ „ Iffa and Offa,
1,231	„ „ „ Kilnemanagh,
2,475	„ „ „ Middlethird,
and 735	„ „ „ Slievardagh.

In addition to these, there are forty-six similar Fee-farm Grants of lands in the county Tipperary, enrolled on the Patent Rolls of the Chancery of Ireland.

The miscellaneous enrolments are very varied in their nature, and include Leases, Releases, Deeds, Grants from the Crown, both ordinary and under the Act of Settlement, Exemplifications of Legal Proceedings, Mortgages, Powers of Attorney. Awards, Pardons, Grants, Appointments, and Commissions from the Duke of Ormond. A few of these are in Latin, and the dates of enrolment, where such exist, run from 14th December, 1663, to 23rd April, 1715.

A schedule of the above Rolls, showing the nature of the documents enrolled, and the names of persons and lands included therein, has been prepared by Mr. Berry, and is subjoined to this Report.

A short summary will be sufficient to describe the remaining Records of the Chancery of the Palatinate, which, though few, are interesting as showing how closely the forms of the superior Courts were adhered to in the local tribunal. They consist, in all, of a few Affidavits, chiefly of Service of Notice, for the years 1713 and 1714; of two Fiant, an Inquisition, and a Writ of Certiorari, with return. One of the Fiant, which is in Latin, and is dated 19th June, 1679 (31st Charles II.), is for Letters Patent of the office of Seneschal of the Liberties of Tipperary, to Edward Herbert, esquire, in the absence of Richard, Earl of Arran, and Sir William Davys, knight, during the will and pleasure of the Duke of Ormond, whose sign manual is at the head, and that of Standish Hartsonge, his Attorney-General, at the foot of the instrument; it has no mark of enrolment, nor do I find it amongst the enrolments we possess. The other is dated 3rd December, 1711, and is for the creation of the Manor of Dundrum, on behalf of Sir Robert Maude. It is marked as “entered in his Grace’s Docquett Book, 27th November, 1711,” and was enrolled on the 4th December following (vide No. 27, Miscellaneous Rolls).

The Inquisition, which is in Latin, was taken at Fethard, 20th June, 1665 (16th Charles II.), before Francis Peisley, knight, Sheriff of the County Tipperary, by virtue of a Writ of the Lord of the Regalities and Liberties of the said County, and finds that Peter Butler, esq., late of Shanballyduffe, was seized in his demesne, as of fee of Dangendergan, Gormanstowne, Tworine, Killomany, one garden near Cashel, a messuage in Hackettslane, a Mortgage in fee on Rahine, Castlekeill, Cloghardine, and Ballynity, and of the half townland of Ballyhosty.

The return to the Writ of Certiorari from the Duke of Ormond, which is signed by the Mayor and Bailiffs of Clonmel, sets out the “applotment” made on that Borough, 9th September, 1681, of a sum of £57 1s. 1½d., charged in pursuance of several orders of Sessions, and of the Mayor and Common Council of Clonmel.

The above, with a few fragments, comprise all the Records of the Palatinate, removed from Chancery, and they suffice to show that there are, or should be, in existence many Records of that Court, which, it is to be hoped, may, at some future time, be discovered.

APPENDIX 7.

FAC-SIMILES OF NATIONAL MSS. OF IRELAND.

LETTER from J. T. GILBERT, F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland, to the Right Honorable EDWARD SULLIVAN, Master of the Rolls, and Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland.

SIR,—I have now the satisfaction to announce the approaching completion of the first part of the Fac-similes of the National MSS. of Ireland, selected and edited by me under your Honor's direction, and photozincographed, by command of Her Majesty the Queen, by Major-General Sir Henry James, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey.

The work is in imperial folio size, and the present part contains forty-five coloured plates. The written matter of each specimen has been printed opposite to it, in the original languages, line for line, without contractions; such translations and elucidations have also been given as will, it is hoped, effectively assist those who may desire to examine or critically study any of the manuscripts. Of the originals from which the specimens have been taken, I beg to submit the following details:—

The Domnach
Airgid MS.

I.—Among ancient manuscripts, preserved in or connected with Ireland, which have survived to the present time, the first place, in point of age, is assigned to that contained in the antique metal case styled in Irish, DOMNACH AIRGID—the silver shrine.

This reliquary would appear to be that mentioned as follows in an old life of St. Patrick, to have been given by him to his disciple and companion, St. MacCarthen, when he placed the latter over the see of Clogher in the fifth century:—

The DOMNACH AIRGID was preserved as a reliquary in the neighbourhood of Clones in the county of Monaghan, its ancient locality, till deposited in the Museum of the Royal Irish Academy, about the year 1832.

The manuscript in the reliquary was then in four portions, the membranes of each of which had become tenaciously incorporated into an opaque solid mass. Some of the external leaves, successfully detached and expanded, were found to contain part of the first chapter of a Latin version of the Gospel according to St. Matthew, in an uncial character not inconsistent with the age to which, on examination, the manuscript was assigned by the eminent archæologist, George Petrie, LL.D., author of a treatise on “the Ecclesiastical Architecture of Ireland anterior to the Anglo-Norman invasion.” The view of Dr. Petrie, as communicated by him to the Royal Irish Academy, in 1838, was that “we might with tolerable certainty conclude that the Domnach is the identical reliquary given by St. Patrick to St. MacCarthen;” and that “as a manuscript copy of the Gospels, apparently of that early age, is found with it, there is every reason to believe it [the manuscript] to be that identical one for which the box was originally made."

* “Vita S. Patricii,” supposed to have been written by St. Evin, in the seventh century: “Hanc vitam damus ex tribus pervetustis manuscriptis Hibernicis inter æ collatis”: Triadis Thaumaturgæ Acta. Lovanii, 1647, 149, 169.

"In its present state," wrote Dr. Petrie, "this ancient remain appears to have been equally designed as a shrine for the preservation of relics and of a book; but the latter was probably its sole original use. Its form is that of an oblong box, nine inches by seven, and five inches in height. This box is composed of three distinct covers, of which the first, or inner one, is of wood—yew; the second, or middle one, of copper, plated with silver; and the third, or outer one, of silver, plated with gold. In the comparative ages of these several covers, there is obviously a great difference. The first may, probably, be coeval with the manuscript which it was intended to preserve; the second, in the style of its scroll, or interlaced, ornament, indicates a period between the sixth and twelfth centuries; while the figures in relief, the ornaments, and the letters on the third, or outer cover, leave no doubt of its being the work of the fourteenth century. A tablet on the rim, and at the upper side, presents the following inscription in the Monkish character used in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries:

‘JOHNS : O KARBRI : COMORBANUS : S : TIGNACII : PMISIT.’

Or with the contractions lengthened, thus :

JOHANNES O KARBRI COMORBANUS [SUCCESSOR] SANCTI TIGHERNACII PERMISIT.

"Another inscription, in the same character, preserves the name of the artist by whom those embellishments on the outer case were executed, and is valuable as proving that this interesting specimen of ancient art was not of foreign manufacture. It will be found on a small moulding over one of the tablets:

‘JOHANES : O BARRDAN : FABRICAVIT.’

"The inscriptions on the external case leave no doubt that the Domnach belonged to the monastery of Clones, or see of Clogher. The John O'Karbri, the comharb, or successor of St. Tighernach, recorded in one of those inscriptions as the person at whose cost, or by whose permission the outer ornamental case was made, was, according to the Annals of the Four Masters, Abbot of Clones, and died in the year 1353. He is properly called in that inscription comorbanus, or successor of Tighernach, who was the first Abbot and Bishop of the Church of Clones, to which place, after the death of St. Mac'arthen in the year 506, he removed the see of Clogher, having erected a new church, which he dedicated to the Apostles Peter and Paul. St. Tighernach, according to all our ancient authorities, died in the year 548. The bottom, or back, of the case is ornamented with a large cross, on which there is an inscription in the Gothic or black letter. This inscription is of a later age than those already noticed, but," added Dr. Petrie, "I am unable, from its injured state, to decipher it wholly. It concludes with the word 'cloachar,' the name of the see to which the reliquary originally appertained."

With the object of preventing this ancient monument from passing out of Ireland, the late Hon. Henry Westenra, afterwards Baron Rossmore, became its purchaser, in 1838, at a cost of £300. The Domnach Airgid was subsequently transferred by him to the Royal Irish Academy, in whose Museum it is now preserved.

II.—ANCIENT LATIN VERSION OF THE GOSPELS :—Portions of this manuscript have been lost, and the remainder has suffered much from decay. It is preserved unbound in a case and classed A. 4. 15. in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin. In a local inventory compiled about A.D. 1750, it is described as follows :—"Testamentum Novum Latine vetustissimum exemplar Hibernico caractere exaratum. Schedæ membranaceæ præ vetustate et incuria pœne absumpte sunt."

Ancient Latin Version of Gospels.

The sequence of the Evangelists is Matthew, John, Luke, Mark—corresponding with that in the Græco-Latin codex, written early in the sixth century, and presented to the University of Cambridge by Theodore Beza. The Gospel according to St. John is followed by a page of explanation of Hebrew names, in four columns. An ornamental cross, with A and Ω at either side, is figured at the end of the Gospel according to St. Luke. The manuscript contains some interlineations in small Irish characters, faded rubric headings, and entries in the hand of Ussher, the learned Primate of Ireland from 1624 to 1655.

From the examination by Professor William Stubbs and the late A. W. Haddan of readings of Latin versions of Scripture peculiar to early British or Irish writers, it would appear that while the Vulgate was known and used when Britain and South Europe were in full intercourse, it may be questionable whether it was known in Ireland towards the close of the fifth century, when such intercourse was impeded. About a century later, the Vulgate, resembling in text the Codex "Amiatinus," had penetrated into Britain, but the old Latin previously in use still held its ground. A gradually increased use of the Vulgate may be traced in Ireland in the seventh and eighth centuries, till the old Latin disappeared. A presumption also exists in favour of the existence of a special British and Irish revision of the old Latin as the version thus gradually superseded. Latin Biblical manuscripts of early Irish origin are in general characterized by orthographical peculiarities. Of these the following are the most usual, and many of them will be observed in the specimens in the present publication :—

III., IV.—The PSALTER STYLED CATHACH. This is a fragment of a The Latin psalter on vellum, ascribed to the hand of St. Columba, or Colum Cathach Cille, and preserved in an antique metal casket known by the Irish Manu-script name of CATHACH, or “Fighter.”

Columba, born in Donegal, about A.D. 521, was a member of the reigning families of Ireland and British Dalriada ; and is represented to have resigned his hereditary claim on the Irish monarchy with the object of devoting himself to a religious life. While sojourning with St. Finnen, in Ulster, Columba, according to an ancient legend, borrowed his psalter, and copied it furtively in his church, with the aid of miraculous light in the night time. Finnen demanded the copy, but Columba refused to surrender it, and the matter was submitted to Diarmaid, Monarch of Ireland, at Tara. Diarmaid decided that as to every cow belongs her calf, so to every book belongs its copy. Columba declared the decision to be unjust, and retained the copy. This dispute is represented to have led to a sanguinary battle, and to have been one of the causes which induced Columba to withdraw in A.D. 563 from Ireland to Iona. That island, subsequently known as Hy-Columcille, became, through the influence of himself and his successors in the abbatial see, the centre of Christian civilization in the north of Britain,* and the chosen burial-place of the kings of Pictland and Scotland. Thus Shakespeare tells us that King Duncan’s body was “Carried to Colmekill,

The sacred store-house of his predecessors,
And guardian of their bones.”

In his “History of Scotland,” Mr. I. H. Burton observes :—

“Not only do we find St. Columba’s own name obtaining an influence so prevalent in Scotland as to outlive the Reformation and all other ecclesiastical revolutions, but many other Irishmen, who were either followers or fellow-labourers of his, have obtained a permanent hold on Scottish local nomenclature and tradition.”

Among the Irish, Columba was universally known as Colum Cille, or Colum of the Churches, and he is commemorated, as one of the three patron saints of Ireland, on the 9th of June, the anniversary of his death.

The copy of the psalter known by the name of CATHACH, from the Irish cath, a battle, was preserved with veneration among Columba’s kindred, the O’Donnells, who ruled in the most western part of the north of Ireland, styled Tir Conaill, or the land of Conall, from their progenitor of that name, and now known as Donegal. The hereditary custodians of the CATHACH were the MacRobartaighs, who owned the lands in Donegal, which are still named from them Ballymagrorty.

The present casket or cumdach of the CATHACH was made by direction of Cathbarr O’Donnel, head of the clan, towards the close of the eleventh century. The circumstance is recorded in Irish, still partly legible on

* “Amid the darkness which enshrouds those missionaries who imparted to the heathen tribes of Alba [Scotland] the blessings of the Christian faith, the form of St. Columba stands out with exceptional clearness of outline ; and the popular instinct has not erred which ascribes to him the largest share in the great work, and traces to his mission the most enduring results.”—“The Book of Deer,” edited for the Spalding Club by John Stuart, LL.D. Edinburgh : 1869, i.

three sides of the margin of the under silver plate of the casket, as follows :—

TACH [SAC]

7 DO SITRICHE MAC MEIC ACƿA DO RIGHE 7 DO DOMHALL
MAC ROBAC

RƿACIS DO COMCARBAC CENACHAC LAS I NDERHACƿ.

In English, as follows :—

“Pray for Cathbarr O'Donnel, for whom this casket was made; and for Sitric, son of Mac Aedha, who made it; and for Donall Mac Robartaigh, successor [of St. Columba, as abbot] of Kells, at whose house it was made.”

The bearing of the CATHACH on the breast of a sinless cleric thrice round the troops of the O'Donnells, before battle, would, it was thought, insure victory to them in any just cause. The Irish annalists record that in an engagement between the O'Donnells and MacDermotts, in 1497, the Cathach was taken from the former, and its custodian, MacRobartaigh, slain, but that it was regained two years subsequently.

To open the CATHACH was deemed unlawful, and would, it was thought, be followed by deaths and disasters among the O'Donnells. St. Cailin of Fenagh is represented as admonishing the latter to look well that the CATHACH should not come to the hands of foreigners, for, if so, it would be to the overthrow and confusion of the O'Donnel tribe, and to the great honour of the strangers.

The Donegal Annalists record that MacRobartaigh, “who had the custody of the Cathach of Colum Cille,” was amongst those who fell in an engagement between Aed O'Donnel's cavalry and the van of the horse-host of Shane O'Neill in 1567.

Colgan, writing in 1647, alludes to the CATHACH as then in Tir Connell or Donegal, of which he was himself a native :—

Colgan also refers to “Baile megrabhairtaich”—or the townland of MacRobartaigh—“ubi illud celebre reliquarium S. Columbæ quod Cathach appellatur.”

The CATHACH subsequently came into the possession of Daniel O'Donel, a direct descendant of Aed, brother of Manus O'Donel, Chief of Tir Connell, for whom a biography of St. Columba had been compiled early in the sixteenth century.

Daniel O'Donel raised a regiment in Ireland for James II. Adhering to his cause, he entered service in France, after the Treaty of Limerick, and was engaged in several of the important military operations of his time, including the battles at Luzzara, Cassano, Turin, Oudenarde, and Malplaquet. The rank of Brigadier in the French service was conferred on Daniel O'Donel in 1719. He repaired the casket of the CATHACH, and provided a frame-case for it, engraved with the O'Donel arms, and the following inscription :—

“IACOBO 3 M[AGNÆ] B[BRITANNIÆ] REGE EXULANTE, DANIEL O'DONEL IN XTIANISS° IMP° PRÆFECTUS
REI BELLICÆ HUIUSCE HÆREDITARIJ S^r COLUMBANI
CONSUMPTUM RESTAURAVIT ANNO SALUTIS 1723.”

Brigadier O'Donel died without issue in 1735, and the CATHACH remained on the Continent till transferred in 1802 to Sir Neal O'Donnel, Baronet, of Newport, in the County of Mayo. His relict, Mary O'Donnel, commenced proceedings in Chancery in 1814 against Sir William Betham, Ulster King of Arms, for having, as she alleged, opened the CATHACH without permission. The contents, according to Betham, were found to be a wooden box, very much decayed, enclosing portion of a vellum manuscript of the Psalms, in connexion with which he gave the following details :—

“It appeared to have been originally stitched together, but the sewing had almost entirely disappeared. On one side was a thin piece of board covered with red leather, very like that with which Eastern MSS. are bound. It was so much injured by damp, as to appear almost a solid mass; by steeping it in cold water, I was enabled to separate the membranes from each other, and by pressing each separately between blotting paper, and frequently renewing the operation, at length succeeded in restoring, what was not actually decayed, to a legible state From the depth of the wooden box, there is no doubt that it once contained the whole psalter.”

The manuscript now consists of fifty-eight leaves of vellum, many of which at the commencement are damaged at head and foot. For some years past, it together with its casket, has been deposited in the Museum of the Royal Irish Academy, Dublin, by its owner, Sir Richard O'Donnel, Bart., with whose permission the fac-similes of four of its pages are now presented on plates III. and IV.

V.—VI.—The BOOK OF DURROW is an ornamented copy of the Four Gospels in Vulgate version, written across the page mainly in single column, and preceded by epistle of Jerome to Pope Damasus, explanation of Hebrew names, Eusebian canons, and synoptical tables. It contains symbolical representations of the Evangelists and pages of coloured spiral, interlaced, and tessellated ornamentation. The usual number of lines on a page of the text is 25 or 26. Among the capitals, Greek letters are occasionally introduced, and the peculiar red dotting and lineation occur abundantly throughout the book.

This volume acquired its name from having belonged to the monastery founded by St. Columba about A.D. 553, at Durrow, or Dairmag—the plain of oaks—in the central district of Ireland. Adamnan, in the seventh century, mentions the foundation of this establishment by Columba “in mediterranea Hiberniæ parte monasterium quod Scotice dicitur Dair-mag.”*

This was Columba's chief institution in Ireland. Bede, in the eighth century, writing of Columba, refers as follows to Durrow and Iona :—

“Fecerat autem [Columba] prius quam Britanniam veniret, monasterium nobile in Hibernia, quod a copia roborum Dearthach lingua Scottorum, hoc est, Campus roborum, cognominatur. Ex quo utroque monasterio plurima exinde monasteria per discipulos ejus et in Britannia et in Hibernia propagata sunt.”†

In the Donegal Martyrology, compiled towards A.D. 1620, we find a memorandum that the “Book of Colum Cille, called the Book of Durrow, a copy of the New Testament in Irish letters,” was then at Durrow, and “with gems and silver on its cover.” It is noticed about the same period by Connell MacGeoghegan as being popularly believed to possess miraculous curative properties.

* Vita Columbae, lib. I. c. 3.

† Historia Ecclesiastica Gentis Anglorum, lib. III. cap. 4

Ussher, who, early in the seventeenth century, collated the Book of DURROW, spoke of it as a most ancient manuscript—said to have been St. Columba's:—

“In Regio comitatu ea est, Durrogh vulgo appellata: quæ monasterium habuit S. Columbæ nomine insigne; inter ejus κρυβλία evangeliorum codex vetustissimus asservabatur, quem ipsius Columbæ fuisse monachi dictitabant.”*

Sir James Ware, in 1658, refers as follows to this book and the now missing silver plates with which it was then adorned:—

“Durrogh, antiquitus Dermagh, seu Campus Roboris. Sanctus Columba fundator circa annum 550 . . . Extat etiamnum (qui asservabatur olim in hoc cenobio) liber 4 Evangeliorum, ex versione D. Hieronymi, laminis argenteis ornatus, quem Inscriptio præfixa manu S. Columbæ, per 12 dierum spatium exaratum refert.”†

The entry here referred to, as in the hand of Columba, is that which prays “remembrance of the scribe, Columba, who wrote this evangel in the space of twelve days.” It is on the verso of folio 12, represented on plate VI. No. 2.

Cummine, abbot of Iona, in the seventh century, bore testimony to Columba's diligence as a scribe, and tells that on the day preceding his death, A.D. 597, he was occupied in copying a psalter which he left to be finished by Baithene, his brother's son, who succeeded him in the abbotship.

Of the Næman whose name appears at foot of page 173 (plate VI.) we find no account. Næman was not an uncommon name in Ireland in the sixth and seventh centuries, and was sometimes Latinized Sanctanus and Cœlestinus, from its root, naem, heaven.

The Book of DURROW was presented to Trinity College, Dublin, by its Vice-Chancellor, Henry Jones, who had been Scout-Master to Cromwell's army in Ireland, and became bishop of Meath in 1661.

O'Flaherty, a learned Irish scholar, examined this book, in 1677, and found by the inscription that the silver cross on its cover had been executed by order of Flan, who was king of Ireland in the first years of the tenth century. This decipherment is entered as follows on the fly-leaf of the manuscript:—

“Inscriptio Hibernicis literis incisa cruci argenteæ in operimento hujus libri in transversa crucis parte, nomen artificis indicat; et in longitudine tribus lineis a sinistra et totidem dextra, ut sequitur:

With reference to this volume, he subsequently wrote:—

“I have seen hand-writings of Saint Columb, in Irish characters, as straight and as fair as any print, of above a thousand years standing, and in the college of Dublin Irish letters engraven in the time of Flan, King of Ireland, anno 916 deceased.”‡

Edward Llwyd, in 1707, noticed this manuscript, but appears to have confounded it with the Book of Kells* Dr. William Nicholson, bishop of Derry, in 1724, mentions the inscription as then extant "on a silver cross upon the cover of this book [of Durrow] said to be Columba's own writing, and given to the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, by Dr. Jones, Bishop of Meath."†

A poem, in the ancient Irish language, is extant in the Burgundian Library, Brussels, which purports to have been composed by Columba on the occasion of his quitting Durrow for the last time.

According to ancient tradition, Columba gave a copy of the New Testament, in his own handwriting, to each of the churches which he founded in Ireland. A compiler of his native district, in the early part of the sixteenth century, stated that some of these were then extant in rich shrines, piously venerated as sacred relics.

VII.—XVII.—THE BOOK OF KELLS is the chief Irish palæographic and artistic monument which has descended to us from the ages in which Ireland, under the name of "Scotia," was renowned for her schools, whence religion and letters were carried to various parts of Europe.‡

This manuscript is a copy of the Gospels, and received its present name from having belonged to the Columban monastery of Cennanus, or Kells, in Meath. The foundation of that establishment has been ascribed to St. Columba, but it would appear not to have been of much importance till the early part of the ninth century, when the descents of the Norsemen on Iona caused the community of that island to provide a place of asylum in Ireland. Under the presidency of Cellach, nineteenth successor of Columba as abbot of Iona, from A.D. 802 to A.D. 815, a "new city of Colum Cille" was constructed at Kells. This became the chief station of the Columban community, and the abbot of Kells was long known and recognised as the legitimate successor of St. Columba.

The Irish Annalists record that, in the year 1006, "the large Gospel of Colum Cille" was sacrilegiously stolen in the night out of the great church of Kells. They add, that this book was the chief relic of the western world, on account of its singular cover, and that it was found "after forty nights and two months, after its gold had been taken from it, and with sods over it."

Of grants and agreements in the Irish language, relative to lands connected with the Columban community in the eleventh and twelfth centuries, copies are still extant on some of the pages which had been originally left blank in the Book of KELLS.

The Book of KELLS is now imperfect, both at beginning and end. The surviving portion consists of 339 numbered leaves. The present much worn first page contains the conclusion of explanation of Hebrew names; Eusebian tables, summaries, and arguments or prefaces precede the Gospel of St. Matthew. The version of the Gospels is mainly that of the Vulgate, but with many peculiar readings.

It has been conjectured that the Book of KELLS is the volume eulogised in the twelfth century by Giraldus Cambrensis as the marvellous book exhibited to him at Kildare, and popularly believed to have been executed under the direction of an angel.

The BOOK OF KELLS is mentioned as follows, in conjunction with the BOOK OF DURROW, by Ussher, bishop of Meath from 1621 to 1624, who was employed by James I. to collect the antiquities of the British Church "before and since the Christian faith was received by the English nation :"

"Ex quo, et non minoris antiquitatis altero, eidem Columbæ assignato (quem in urbe Kelles sive Kenlis dicta Midenses sacrum habent) diligenti cum editione vulgata Latina collatione facta, in nostros usus variantium lectionum binos libellos concinnavimus."

As part of Ussher's collection, the BOOK OF KELLS was transferred to Trinity College, Dublin, in 1661. In a list of the manuscripts of that College, compiled in 1688, it is entered, as follows :—

"417. 277. Quatuor Evangelia. fol. membr. cum præfixis canonibus antiquis, interpretationibus quibusdam nominum Hebraicorum, et argumentis singulorum capitum : interpositæ sunt concessiones quædam Monachis factæ, & alia nonnulla, Hibernice; cum picturis passim insertis, literisque quibusdam intertextis, miri operis & antiquitatis; Liber D. Collunkille vulgo dictus. D. 23."

With the portions now missing from the commencement and end of the BOOK OF KELLS has probably perished the record of the time and circumstances under which this remarkable volume was produced. It may, however, from internal evidence, be assigned to a period between the sixth and the ninth centuries. Professor J. O. Westwood of Oxford, writes as follows of it in his important work on the Miniatures and ornaments of Anglo-Saxon and Irish manuscripts :—

"Ireland may be justly proud of the Book of Kells—a volume traditionally asserted to have belonged to St. Columba, and unquestionably the most elaborately executed MS. of so early a date now in existence; far excelling, in the gigantic size of the letters at the commencement of each Gospel, the excessive minuteness of the ornamental details crowded into whole pages, the number of its very peculiar decorations, the fineness of the writing, and the endless variety of its initial capital letters, the famous Gospels of Lindisfarne, in the Cottonian Library. But this manuscript is still more valuable on account of the various pictorial representations of different scenes in the life of our Saviour, delineated in the genuine Irish style, of which several of the manuscripts of St. Gall, and a very few others, offer analogous examples . . .

"The very numerous illustrations of this volume render it a complete storehouse of artistic interest . . .

"The text itself is far more extensively decorated than in any other now existing copy of the Gospels. Not only are pages containing the commencement of each Gospel, namely, the 'Liber Generationis' (fol. 29 r.), and the 'Christi autem generatio' (fol. 34 r.), of St. Matthew, the 'Initium Evangelii' of St. Mark (fol. 132 r.), the 'Quoniam quidem' of St. Luke (fol. 188 r.), and the 'In principio' of St. John (fol. 292 r.), entirely filled with these words (the initials being of a gigantic size, and ornamented with the utmost prodigality of ornamental design); but the Eusebian Canons occupying several pages at the beginning of the book; the commencement of the 'breves causæ,' or headings of the chapters, commencing on fol. 8 r., with the words 'Nativitas Christi in Bethlem Iudæ, magi munera efferunt, et infantes interficiuntur, regressio' (written in rows of angular and lacertine letters of different sizes, separated by highly ornamental bars); as well as various detached passages of the Passion; as 'Tunc dicit illis Jesus omnes,' fol. 114 v.; 'Tunc crucifixerant,' fol. 124 r.; 'Erat autem hora tertia,' fol. 183 r.; the end of St. Mark's Gospel, fol. 187 v.; 'Jesus autem plenus,' fol. 203 r.; and 'Una autem Sabbati,' fol. 285 r.,—are all written of a large size, each occupying a separate page, and being beautifully decorated.

"In the pages of the Eusebian Canons the figures of the Evangelical symbols are introduced beneath arches, in the upper part of the designs, and in the pages at the commencement of the Gospels human figures are also introduced, often in a very fantastical manner. In the pages of the 'Liber Generationis' a figure nearly half the height of the design, holding a book, occupies the bottom left-hand portion of the page . . . Another artistic peculiarity of the 'Book of Kells' arises from the decoration of the initial letters of each of the sentences or verses, so that each page presents us with several of these letters, varying in size and design; as well as from the introduction of coloured representations of men, animals, birds, horses, dogs, &c., placed without any reference to the text, but simply to fill up any vacant space at the end of a line . . . The introduction of natural foliage in this MS. is another of its great peculiarities; whilst the intricate intertwining of the branches is eminently characteristic of the Celtic spirit, which compelled even the human figure to submit to the most impossible contortions."—pp. 31–32.

The representations given in the present work afford specimens of many of the different styles of the BOOK OF KELLS. On fol. 19 (plate viii.) we find examples of the system used in Irish manuscripts of carrying portions of long lines from below to fill the blank spaces left by the shorter lines above. These inserted words were separated from the concluding ones of the preceding paragraph by a symbol known as "head under the wing," in Irish ceann fa eite, or "turn under the path," in Irish cor fa cosan. The forms of these symbols were various, but those most generally used resembled inverted c's facing each other.

The most elegant of the large initial pages in the volume is, perhaps, that represented on plate VII., embodying the passage "XPI (Christi) autem generatio"—"Now the generation of Christ."—Matthew, i. 18. This page was described as follows in the "Vetusta Monumenta" of the Society of Antiquaries of London, by the late Rev. J. H. Todd, D.D., in connexion with a lithograph of it from a copy by Miss Stokes of Dublin:

"The first letter, which is the Greek X, is given, not as the St. Andrew's Cross formed by two right lines intersecting at an angle of 45°, but on the basis of two curved lines, resembling the long form of the letter S inverted, and one of them much longer than the other.

"At each end of the upper part of this letter there are six points, two to each termination, owing to the breadth of its two branches. These points I have marked A, B, C, D, E, F; and in like manner at the extremities of the lower branch of the letter are three points or terminations of the curves, marked G, H, I.

"At each of these points the artist has placed a circle formed by the winding round of spiral lines, and within these circles, sometimes three, sometimes four, and even more circles, as at E and G, formed in like manner of spiral lines, and ornamented with various forms of Celtic pattern. On the upper line, over this predominant letter, the ornamentation rises in four points nearly in a right line, which is probably intended to represent the usual mark of contraction, placed over the contracted word $X\tilde{P}I$ [Christi]. These points K, K', K'', K''', are decorated with the spiral circles, according to what is known as the trumpet-pattern, of which every part of this page presents beautiful and minute specimens. The second of the four above mentioned points marked K', which is much larger and more prominent than the rest, exhibits the face of a beardless man (or more probably of a woman), the head bare, the hair terminating on each side with spiral locks or ringlets.

"The space between the circles F and H is filled with three figures, which seem intended to represent angels. Two of these, under the circle E, are lying upon the ground, supporting their bodies in an erect posture, one on the left and the other on the right elbow. Each has a book, one in the right, and the other in the left hand; and in the other hands an instrument, which is somewhat obscure from the difficulties the artist had to contend with, owing to want of room, and the awkward position of the figures, but it is probably the flabellum. The arms of the hands holding this instrument are crossed, the left arm of the first figure being under the right arm of the second. The third angel, between E and F, is in an erect posture, his legs concealed under the framework of ornament. He holds a flabellum in each hand, the staves or handles of which seem interlaced with his wings. In the space under the smaller circle F is a figure which is perhaps intended to represent a butterfly with wings elongated to adapt them to the shape of the space so filled.

"At the intersection of the two principal curved arms of the monogram is a rhombus, in a purple frame, filled with the small spirals. Around this is a polygonal space, occupied by four monstrous serpentine figures with human heads in each of the four principal angles of the polygon, the serpent bodies being interlaced in a wonderful complication, and ending apparently in heads of serpents. Each of these figures has an arm and a hand which grasps a serpent's body. At the four angles of the polygon, over the four human heads, are four rhomboidal or nearly square spaces, filled with very elegant spirals, formed of right lines in squares, on a white ground. Similar spaces filled with rectilinear spirals of a different pattern, the lines white on a black ground, may be seen at the extremity of the upper and lower vertical diameters of the circles at A and C. The space between the circles A, B, C, D, is filled with curiously varied spirals of the most minute execution, chiefly of the trumpet-pattern. About half-way down the elongated limb of the monogram is a square space filled with yellow stars, of seven rays, on a dark purple ground.

"In the space over the circle I are two curious animals resembling some kind of beaver. The body of that on the left hand is brown and striped; the head bare, resembling human flesh in colour, and with short horns or ears. The body of the other is white, shaded with carefully-drawn black lines, which mark out the forms of the muscles. The face and feet are flesh-coloured, with horns or ears on the head, similar to those in the other figure. Each animal has one of its young ones seated on its back, whilst two other young ones are represented before them on the ground, and are nibbling at a circular cake or wafer, divided into four by a cross. In the white space in the lower margin, immediately under the letter P or R of the monogram, is an animal with a black body and tail resembling an otter, and holding a fish in its mouth by the middle.

"It remains now to describe the last two letters of the monogram, which will be found in the space between the circles I and D. The first of these is the Greek letter P, the upper part of which is made to turn over like a shepherd's crook, and the second letter, I, passes through and behind the curved head of the crook. On the extremity of this curved part of the letter is a bearded human head, with bushy hair, characteristic of Irish costume. No hands, arms, or any part of the body are visible. At the base of this letter is a singular cross (possibly intended to represent the mark of contraction); it is formed by two narrow parallelograms intersecting a square at right angles, and bordered by an outer yellow band, with an inner narrower band, white with red spots. The body of the cross thus formed is filled with parallel lines, intersecting at right angles, and joined at their extremities by semicircular or triangular junctions. These lines are white on a black ground. A similar square, NO, ornamented in the same way, occurs in the space LMQP, which remained between the letters and the outer margin of the drawing. This space is surrounded by the same double frame, brown and violet or purple, which incloses the whole of the first letter of the monogram. Within the rectangle LMN, which stands above the square, the artist has portrayed four human figures, two with their heads uppermost in the position of nature, and two reversed; they are all seated, each pair having their arms and legs interlaced. They are beardless, with the usual matted head of hair, with long ringlets knotted together.

"The lower portion of this space, consisting of two parallelograms at right angles to each other at their lower ends, is filled with intertwined serpents, amongst which in the lower horizontal parallelogram are two birds resembling in shape peacocks, the bodies, one white the other yellow, covered with red spots, and the necks red, but having no tails, crests, or other characteristics of the peacock. . . . It may be observed that the page before us contains almost all the varieties of design to be found in Celtic art. These are usually spoken of as twofold: first, arbitrary or geometrical—of which there occur on the page before us the divergent pattern, known as the trumpet-pattern, the triquetra, the interlaced curved bands, the knot, and the designs formed of right lines; secondly, patterns derived from natural forms—foliage, birds, reptiles, fish, quadrupeds, imaginary or monstrous animals, and man."

The version, on fol. 124 recto—"Tunc crucifixerant," Matthew, xxvii. 38 (Plate XI.), appears to be peculiar to this manuscript. The want of grammatical accordance in the continuation of the text on the next page is also to be found in the Book of Durrow and the Book of Armagh, in both of which the reading is "crucifixerunt," agreeing with the Colbertine "versio antiqua." Some of the letters on this and other ornamental pages resemble in form those in the Irish manuscripts at St. Gall and in the Gospels of MacRegol, and the characters engraved on the ancient silver chalice found in 1868 at Ardagh, in the county of Limerick.

Mr. Waring, one of the editors of the Lindisfarne manuscript, the date of which is about A.D. 700, observes that, with the exception of the BOOK OF KELLS, it is the most elaborate and beautiful specimen extant of the style of ornament which distinguishes the Celtic or early Irish school. The characteristics of the latter are described by Professor Westwood as consisting—

“First, in one or more ribbons diagonally but symmetrically interlaced, forming an endless variety of patterns; 2nd, one, two, or three slender spiral lines coiling one within another till they meet in the centre of the circle, their opposite ends going off to other circles; 3rd, a vast variety of lacertine animals and birds, hideously attenuated and coiled one within another, their tails, tongues, and top-knots forming long, narrow ribbons, irregularly interlaced; 4th, a series of diagonal lines, forming various kinds of Chinese-like patterns. These ornaments are generally introduced into small compartments, a number of which are arranged so as to form the large initial letters and borders, or tessellated pages, with which the finest manuscripts are decorated,”

“Especially deserving of notice” (continues Professor Westwood) “is the extreme delicacy and wonderful precision, united with an extraordinary minuteness of detail, with which many of these ancient manuscripts were ornamented. I have examined with a magnifying-glass the pages of the Gospels of Lindisfarne and Book of Kells, for hours together, without ever detecting a false line or an irregular interlacement; and when it is considered that many of these details consist of spiral lines, and are so minute as to be impossible to have been executed without a pair of compasses, it really seems a problem not only with what eyes, but also with what instruments they could have been executed. One instance of the minuteness of these details will suffice to give an idea of this peculiarity. I have counted in a small space, measuring scarcely three-quarters of an inch by less than half an inch in width, in the Book of Armagh, not fewer than one hundred and fifty-eight interlacements of a slender ribbon-pattern, formed of white lines edged by black ones, upon a black ground.”

An alphabet composed of ornamental letters from various parts of the BOOK OF KELLS, as well as a series of conjoined letters of a similar class, will be found reproduced in colours, on plates XIII. to XVII.

The elaborate ornamental heading of a columnar table of Eusebian Canons (fol. 5 r^o) appears on the title-page of the present publication.

The writing in the body of the BOOK OF KELLS is mainly in single column across the entire page, while that of the Book of Lindisfarne is in double column and in smaller character. The portions of the BOOK OF KELLS in double columns are 26 r^o, 26 v^o, and 29 v^o to 31 r^o. The inks used in the manuscript were black, red, purple, and yellow. The letters principally introduced on the ornamental pages are in general either lacertine or square. On the ornamented page 187 v^o, however, rotund characters appear. The number of lines on the pages of the Gospels are in general not more than 19, nor less than 17. In the preliminary portion of the volume, the number of lines is from 13 to 19 per page. Peculiar semi-cursive writing, similar to some of that in the Book of Armagh, appears on the pages numbered from 22 to 25. The writing is much faded on some pages, and on others the ornamentation has suffered.

The two closing lines on the recto of the last leaf (339) are those of the Gospel of John, chap. xvii. 6: “Aput te manifestum nomen tuum hominibus quos dedisti mihi de mundo.” Half of the reverse of this final leaf is nearly faded. The last words legible on it are in the twelfth line from the head: “Pater sancte serva eos in nomine” (John, chap. xvii. 11).

That the manuscript has long been defective, appears from the following entry, written about A.D. 1560, at the foot of the front of the penultimate leaf: “There lacketh in this end of the book iiii. chapt. . . . being in number addit xiii. leaves that lacketh.”

Its merits were probably not unappreciated by those into whose hands it came, at the time of the suppression of religious houses, as the following inscription, in a minute English hand of about that period, is still partly legible in a small semicircular space at the head of the columns on fol. 4 v? : "This worke doth passe all men's conyng that now doth live in any place. I doubt not there . . . anything but, that the writer hath obtained God's grace."

It is to be deplored that the BOOK OF KELLS suffered much from having been cut down when it was re-bound, in modern style, in the early part of the present century.

On a vellum leaf in front of the volume the following Royal autographs are inscribed:—"Victoria R., August 7, 1849. Albert, August 7, 1849. Alfred 23rd August, 1861."

XVIII, XIX.—THE BOOK OF DIMMA contains the Four Gospels with Latin ritual and prayers for visitation of the sick. A coloured figure of each of the three first Evangelists precedes his Gospel, and the symbol represented in plate XIX. is prefixed to the opening of the Gospel according to St. John. The name of the scribe appears at the conclusion of each of the Gospels. On the fractured final page of the volume, at the termination of St. John's Gospel, after the words "Finit, amen—Dimma Mac Nathi,"—are two imperfect and very archaic Irish lines, in which the writer prays that, as the reward of his labour, he may "not be venomously criticized," and that he may attain to "a mansion in the heavens." Of Dimma Mac Nathi no particulars appear to be on record which might enable us to identify him with a skilful scribe, named Dimma, who is mentioned in a legend connected with a copy of the Gospels made in the seventh century for Saint Cronan of Roscrea, in Tipperary. Dimma, it is said, applied himself continuously during forty days and forty nights to the transcription, and at the conclusion was unconscious that it had occupied more than the one day to which he had limited his engagement with Cronan. This scribe has been assumed to be Dimanus, subsequently bishop of Connor, whose name, with that of Cronan, appears in the letter addressed to Ireland by Pope John IV. A.D. 634, concerning Pelagianism. Somewhat later in that century, a missionary named Dimma, from Ireland, according to Bede, became the first bishop of the midland Angles and Mercians.

Several ecclesiastics named Dimma appear in old Irish lists of native saints. The name still survives in a parish in the north of the county of Limerick, styled Kildimo (Cille Dimmu) from a parish church there under the patronage of a local Saint Dimma. THE BOOK OF DIMMA, now in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, is stated to have been long preserved in the monastery of Roscrea in a silver case. Of this a portion still remains, engraved with ornamentation of similar style to that in the MS., and bearing an inscription, from which we learn that the case was gilt by order of O'Carrol, Lord of Ely, in the twelfth century, and repaired about a hundred years subsequently by a bishop of Killaloe.

XX.—XXI.—THE BOOK OF MULLING. Mulling or Moling, to whom this manuscript is ascribed, was in the seventh century bishop of Ferns, in Leinster, of the ruling clan in which district he was a member. He is represented to have taken a prominent part in Irish affairs, and to have obtained from Finacta, King of Ireland, the remission of the tribute styled Borama, previously levied from the Leinstermen.

Mulling died in A.D. 697, and was regarded, especially in Leinster, as one of the principal saints of Ireland, where his festival was observed on the 17th of June. Predictions ascribed to Mulling are referred to in the twelfth century by Cambrensis, who classed him, as a prophet, with Merlin, and, as a saint, with Patrick and Columba.

His name still survives in that of the town of St. Mullins, in the county of Carlow, so called from the church which he founded at Teach Moling in its vicinity.

THE BOOK OF MULLING is a copy of the Four Gospels, with formulary for visitation of the sick, and figures of three of the evangelists, one of which is represented in plate XX. No. 1. The manuscript is unbound, unpagged, and in a damaged state. With some leaves of another old copy of the Gospels and cognate matter, it is preserved in an antique metal case, ornamented with crystals.

A colophon in semi-Greek characters—somewhat similar to but larger than those in this manuscript (plate XXI., No. 2)—is to be found in the Irish copy of Adamnan's Life of Columba, transcribed in the eighth century, and now extant at Schaffhausen. Some lines of an Irish poem connected with Mulling were found by the late F. J. Mone, director of the archives at Carlsruhe, in a manuscript of the monastery of St. Paul in Carinthia. It had been brought to Carinthia from the monastery at Reichenau, near Constance, a resort of Irish monks in the eighth and ninth centuries. Mulling's book and its ancient case were of old looked upon with much veneration in Leinster. They were preserved in the custody of the family of Kavanagh of the ancient regal line of that province, and native lords of the district named from them "the Kavanagh's country," over which their kinsman, Mulling, had been bishop. Mulling's book and its case are now preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, where they were deposited in the last century by the Kavanagh family of Borres, in the county of Carlow.

Mac Regol.

XXII.—XXIII.—XXIV.—THE GOSPELS OF MAC REGOL. This is the largest sized of the old Irish gospel-books. It contains the four gospels, with figures of Mark, Luke, and John, each occupying an entire page; a page of large ornamental letters is also devoted to the opening portion of each Gospel. On plate XXII. is reproduced one of these pages, containing the commencement of the Gospel of St. John. An interlinear Saxon version, of later age than the text, is carried through all the pages, with the exception of that represented in plate XXII. The artistic work in the Gospels of Mac Regol is less elegant than that in the Book of Kells, and various inaccuracies of transcription are apparent in the text.

The Irish Annalists record the decease, in the year 820, of Mac Regol, or Mac Riagail grandson of Maglena, scribe, bishop, and abbot of Birra, now known as Birr, in the central part of Ireland. This monastery was founded in the sixth century by Brendan, a cotemporary and friend of Columba.

But for the survival of the final page, represented on plate XXIV., there would probably have been no means of ascertaining by whom this manuscript had been written and ornamented. The entry, "Mac Regol dipinxit," is analogous to that in the Irish copy of Priscian at St. Gall, in which we read, "hucusque calvus Patricii (Maelpatric) depinxit."* Mac Regol's manuscript was presented, in the seventeenth century, to the Bodleian Library by John Rushworth, from whom it has been styled "Rusworthianus." The learned Humphry Wanley entertained a high opinion of the value of this manuscript, which he mentions was supposed by some to have belonged to Venerable Bede. Not being acquainted with any particulars concerning the scribe, Wanley considered the volume to have been written before the middle of the eighth century.

* "Il nome calvus patricii è la traduzione latina di Maelpatric (servus Patricii); e calvus corrisponde a servus, essendo la tonsura segno di schiavitù. E noto il verso di Properzio (4, 11, 38): 'sub quorum titulis Africa tonsa jaces,' h.e. captiva."—Reliquie Celliche raccolte da Constantino Nigra. Firenze: 1872, p. 19.

The Saxon interlinear version of the manuscript, together with a collation of the Latin text, was, for the first time, printed under the editorship of the Rev. Joseph Stevenson and Mr. George Waring, 1854–1865.

XXV.–XXIX.—The BOOK OF ARMAGH is now defective at the commencement. Its first portion is occupied with notes in Latin and Irish on St. Patrick's acts; a collection styled "Liber Angueli," relating to the rights and prerogatives of the See of Armagh, and the Confession of St. Patrick, ending, "hucusque volumen quod Patricius manu conscripsit sua." These are followed by St. Jerome's preface to the New Testament; gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John; epistles of St. Paul, including that to the Laodiceans, with prefaces chiefly by Pelagius; epistles of James, Peter, John, and Jude; Apocalypse; Acts of Apostles; and life of St. Martin of Tours by Sulpicius Severus. It also contains coloured drawings of the evangelistic symbols, and of these one page, in four compartments, is reproduced on plate XXVIII.

The name of the scribe of the BOOK OF ARMAGH was ascertained in recent times by the Rev. Charles Graves, now Bishop of Limerick. Having noticed ancient and elaborate erasures on some of its pages, he conceived that matter connected with the history of the book might be recovered through a careful examination of them. Under these erasures vestiges were found of entries, in which Ferdomnach, in the customary manner of ancient Irish transcribers, entered his name, and requested a prayer from the reader. The only scribes named Ferdomnach mentioned in Irish records are two, who died at Armagh in A.D. 790, and A.D. 844, respectively. The latter was characterised as a wise man and a distinguished scribe. That he wrote the first part of the BOOK OF ARMAGH in A.D. 807 is assumed mainly on the following grounds:—

At the end of the gospel of St. Matthew, the scribe records, in semi-Greek characters, that he finished the writing of this gospel on the festival of that Apostle. That this was during the single year A.D. 807, in which Torbach held the bishopric of Armagh is inferred from a fragment—bach,—of the name of "the successor of Patrick" brought to light from under another ancient erasure. Torbach was the only bishop of the see whose name terminated with those letters during the time of any known scribe styled Ferdomnach.

The collections concerning St. Patrick, in the first part of the BOOK OF ARMAGH, constitute the oldest writings now extant in connexion with him, and are also the most ancient specimens known of narrative composition in Irish and Hiberno-Latin. They purport to have been originally taken down by bishop Tirechan from Ultan, who was bishop of Ardbraccan towards A.D. 650, and by Muirchu Maccu Machteni, at the request of his preceptor, Aed, bishop of Sletty, in the same century.

Specimens of these very obscure compositions appear on plates XXV., XXVI., and XXVII. The references on the latter to the Scotie or Irish language may be regarded as analogous to the following passages in Adamnan's preface to his Life of Saint Columba written in the seventh century:

"Beati nostri Patroni, Christo suffragante, vitam descripturus, fratrum flagitationibus obsecundare volens, in primis eandem lecturos quosque admonere procurabo ut fidem dictis adhibeant compertis, et res magis quam verba perpendant, quæ, ut æstimo, inculta et vilia esse videntur; meminerintque regnum Dei non in eloquentiæ exuberantia, sed in fidei florulentia constare; et nec ob aliqua Scoticæ, vilis videlicet linguæ, aut humana onomata, aut gentium, obscura locorumve vocabula, quæ, ut puto, inter alias exterarum gentium diversas vilescunt linguas, utulum, et non sine divina opitulatione gestarum, despiciant rerum pronuntiationem."

Greek characters, cognate with those in the Irish manuscripts of Bobbio and St. Gall, occur in the BOOK OF ARMAGH, and specimens of them appear on plate XXVIII.

Among the native Irish, the BOOK OF ARMAGH appears to have been known as "the Canon of Patrick." The Irish annalists record that the "Canon of Patrick" was encased, in A.D. 937, by Donogh, son of Flaithrí, King of Ireland.

The entry at foot of fol. 16 (plate XXV.), purporting to have been made in presence of Brian Borumha, is considered to have been written about A.D. 1002, when, after having subjected Ulster, he made an offering of twenty ounces of gold on the altar of Armagh.

The Irish word trogan, meaning "wretch," appears opposite to the name of Judas on folio 38; and on the margin of the thirteenth chapter of Mark the name Cellach is written in semi-Greek characters. This is conjectured to refer to the Abbot Cellach, who undertook the monastery of Kells, in A.D. 807, after Iona had been devastated and many of the Columban community there slain by the Norsemen. To these sufferings it is supposed the description, in this chapter, of the miseries of the destruction of Jerusalem may have been deemed applicable.

A remarkable specimen of the skill of the scribe appears on fol. 103 recto (plate XXIX.), the central portion of which is written, in the shape of a diamond, in semi-cursive letters somewhat similar in form to larger characters of this class in parts of the Book of Kells.

Pope Gregory, from whose "Moralia" extracts appear on the same page was, from his once widely studied work, named "Gregorius moralium" by old Irish writers, some of whom laboured to show that he was of Hibernian descent. The designation given to him in Irish of bel oir, "of the golden mouth," is referred to, in A.D. 634, by Cummin, in his letter to Segienus, abbot of Iona, on the Paschal controversy:

"Quid plura? Ad Gregorii Papæ urbis Romæ (a nobis in commune suscepti et oris aurei appellatione donati) verba me converti."

It would seem that the BOOK OF ARMAGH was supposed to have been written by St. Patrick's own hand from the following passage on page 21 at the end of the copy of his confession: "Hucusque volumen quod Patricius manu conscripsit sua."

This manuscript is conjectured to be the book alluded to by St. Bernard in the twelfth century, as being then regarded as one of the insignia of the See of Armagh, and oaths and covenants appear to have been frequently ratified on it. Its hereditary custodian was styled in Irish Maor, or Keeper, and held an endowment of land in virtue of his office. His descendants were known by the name of Meic Maor—sons of the Keeper—or Mac Moyre.

Ussher, in 1639, published extracts from the BOOK OF ARMAGH. Sir James Ware, in his edition of the Confession of St. Patrick, in 1656, wrote as follows of this manuscript:—

"Codex ecclesiæ Armachanæ suprâ memoratus continet, præter confessionem S. Patricii, Biblia Sacra, è versione D. Hieronymi, et antiquissimum exemplar Sulpitii Severi, de vita S. Martini Episcopi Turonensis, tantòque olim habebatur in pretio, ut familia Mac Moyeriana tenuerit terras à sede Armachana, ob salvam illius codicis custodiam. Magnam hanc libro venerationem præcipuè conciliavit vulgaris opinio manu ipsius Sancti Patricii illum fuisse exaratum. Et certè ad calcem confessionis ejus, hæc verba leguntur. Huc usque volumen quod Patricius manu conscripsit sua. Deinde; Septima decima Martii die translatus est Patricius ad cælus. Ex characteris tamen genere, satis liquet non autographum esse, sed longè posteriori ævo transcriptum."

On the reverse of the 104th leaf of the BOOK OF ARMAGH, with the date 1662, appears the autograph of Florentinus or Florence Moyre, the last of that family who had custody of the BOOK OF ARMAGH. Florence and John Moyre appeared, in 1681, at London, at the trial of Oliver Plunket, the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Armagh. They, with others, asserted on oath that Plunket had been engaged in soliciting foreign powers to invade Ireland. On their testimony, he was found guilty of high treason and executed at Tyburn in 1681, having declared that the witnesses against him were "merciless perjurers" who "aimed at his life." Florence Moyre before he went to London in 1680, placed the book in pledge for five pounds, and it appears soon after to have been acquired, with its ancient leather case, by Arthur Brownlow, of Armagh, who arranged and numbered the leaves. The manuscript was somewhat later examined for Edward Lhwyd, and he, it would appear, considered it to be very ancient, though not of the age of St. Patrick. The BOOK OF ARMAGH remained in possession of the Brownlow family till purchased in 1853 by the Rev. William Reeves, D.D., who subsequently transferred it to the late Primate Beresford, by whom it was presented to the Library of Trinity College, Dublin. An edition of the Book of Armagh is in preparation by Dr. Reeves, and I take this opportunity of acknowledging my obligations to him for his assistance in connexion with the specimens given from it and other biblical manuscripts in the present publication.

XXX., XXXI.—MANUSCRIPT OF MÆLBRIGHT MAC DURNAN.—Mælbrigte Mac Durnan, Mac Dornain, or Mac Tornain, was of the race of St. Columba, and succeeded him as nineteenth abbot of Iona in A.D. 891. He also became abbot of Armagh and Raphoe. We find him, in A.D. 889, intervening vigorously in a contention at Armagh between some of the chief Ulster septs, and he is recorded to have made a journey to Munster, in A.D. 908, for the object of ransoming some Britons who had fled from England to escape the Danes. He appears as a saint in native Irish calendars, and his death, in A.D. 927, is recorded as follows by the annalists of his own district:—

"Mælbrigte, son of Tornan, successor of Patrick, Columcille, and Adamnan, head of the piety of all Erin and of the greater part of Europe, died in a good old age, on the 22nd of February."

Mæl-Brigte—literally the tonsured or devotee of Brigit—was a name in use among the Irish from the seventh century, and has been Latinized "Calvus Brigitæ," "Brigidianus," and "Marianus." Brigit, abbess of Kildare in the sixth century, one of the three chief saints of Ireland, was panegyriized as the glory of the Irish—"Scotorum gloria"—their head abbess and protectress.

Frequent appeals to Brigit were in the eighth and ninth centuries entered by Irish transcribers abroad on the margins of their manuscripts, still extant at Milan and St. Gall, in such terms as, "in nomine ihesu et Sanctæ Brigitæ;" "fave Brigita;" Sancta Brigita adiuva scriptorem istius artis." Some words in very old Irish ascribed to Brigit appear in the Hiberno-Latin manuscript of the eighth or ninth century in the Library of Berne, referred to by Orelli in his edition of Horace.

The manuscript of Mælbrigte Mac Durnan, which in some parts much resembles the Book of Armagh, contains the four gospels, with figures of the evangelists, and elaborate and graceful initial pages. The latter are pre-eminently elegant, and three of them appear on plate XXX. At foot of the page containing a portion of the Gospel of St. Matthew, xxvii. 24-32, the writer alludes, in two lines in the Irish language, to the scourging and mocking of Christ before crucifixion. This page is represented on plate XXXI., No. 3. In Mac Durnan's volume are also entered Latin lines on the evangelists and copies of Saxon documents. The presentation of the book to Canterbury by Athelstan is recorded as follows on the second leaf :—

Four gilt illustrations of the life of Christ, apparently of the French school towards the fourteenth century, have been inserted in the volume. In the sixteenth century, Mac Durnan's manuscript was in the hands of Matthew Parker, Archbishop of Canterbury, by whom several of the pages were marked and numbered with red chalk.

I beg here to acknowledge the liberality with which His Grace the Right Honorable Archibald Campbell Tait, Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, authorized the facilities requisite to render the documents in the ancient and valuable Library of Lambeth Palace, over which he presides, available for the series of Facsimiles of the National MSS. of Ireland. To His Grace's Librarian, S. W. Kershaw, M.A., I am also indebted for assistance. In his recently published treatise on the "Art Treasures of the Lambeth Library," Mr. Kershaw describes the "Gospels of Mac Durnan" as one of the most precious and remarkable manuscripts in that collection. "It appears," he adds, "to have remained at Canterbury until the dissolution of the monasteries, how it came into its present place of deposit is unknown."

Hymns.

XXXII.—XXXVI.—THE BOOK OF HYMNS in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, was formerly in the collection of Primate Ussher, and now consists of thirty-four leaves. It contains hymns and metrical pieces in Latin and Irish on Saints Patrick, Brigid, and Columba, together with compositions ascribed to Patrick, Columba, Adamnan, Broccan, Cuchumne, Cumine, Dallan, Fiac, Mugint, Ninine, Oengus, Sanctain, and Ultan. In it are also the "Gloria in excelsis," "Te Deum," "Magnificat," Prayer of St. John the Evangelist, Epistle to Abgarus, and other pieces of cognate class. Most of the hymns are copiously glossed, in very small old writing, and preceded by introductions or prefaces in intermixed Latin and Irish.

We have no means of precisely fixing the age of this manuscript of the BOOK OF HYMNS, but it may be assigned to the eleventh or twelfth century. Another and very similar Irish Book of Hymns exists in the hands of the Irish branch of the Franciscan Order. From it Colgan, in 1647, printed, with a Latin version, the hymn on St. Patrick ascribed to Fiac, of which since that period many translations have appeared. This ancient Irish composition, the language of which is in some parts very obscure, is now reproduced in fac-simile for the first time from the manuscript in Trinity College.

At the time of his conversion to Christianity, Fiac is represented to have been a youthful poet, under the tutelage of Dubthach, chief bard of Ireland. The metrical construction of the hymn has been analyzed by Zeuss, who wrote of it :

"Pervetustus laud dubie est hymnus in S. Patricium, quem Hiberni tribuunt eius discipulo Fiacco, quamquam cum ceteris, quæ Libro Hymnorum continentur, interdum vitiatum est corruptela formarum grammaticarum."

Fiac belonged to one of the dominant septs in Leinster, of which district he was the first bishop; and his relics were preserved with veneration in his church at Sletty, near Carlow. He stands in the calendar of Irish Saints on the 12th of October, and he is included as a "bishop and confessor" in the "Acta Sanctorum." The Editors of the latter, however, considered the hymn ascribed to him to be a composition of later date than his age. The late J. H. Todd, D.D., commenced, but did not live to complete, an edition of the Book of Hymns, portions of which have also been published by W. Stokes, LL.D., and others.

Specimens of the ornamental initial letters from the Book of Hymns are printed in colours on plates XXXV. and XXXVI.

XXXVII.—IX.—The fragment, consisting of sixty-seven leaves, styled LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI, or "the Book of the Dun Cow," is generally believed to be the oldest manuscript, not ecclesiastical, now extant entirely in the Irish language. It was compiled and transcribed by Moelmuiri Mac Ceileachair, who was killed by robbers in a church at Clonmacnois in 1107. Leabhar Na H-Uidhri.

On two pages of the manuscript are small memoranda which purport to have been made, as trials of the pen, by the compiler, Moelmuiri, son of the son of Conn "of the poor." Conn, the grandfather of Moelmuiri, is stated to have been a member of a literary and benevolent family, and to have been named in Irish na m-bocht or "of the poor," from the number of the necessitous whom he constantly relieved at Clonmacnois. He is said to have been in high repute in Scotland, and was designated "Head of the Culdees, anchorite, and the glory and dignity of Clonmacnois," where he died at an advanced age in A.D. 1059. His son Moelmuiri, who died in 1180, is supposed to have been the Marianus Gormanus, who compiled an Irish Martyrology.

Of the history of the LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI we have few particulars beyond those supplied by the entries on page 37, represented on plate XXXIX. In the first of these, Sigraird O'Cuirrindin states that, by direction of the chieftain Domnall O'Conor, he renews the name of Moelmuiri, son of Ceilechair, son of Conn "of the poor," who wrote and collected this "beautiful book" from various sources, and for him he begs a prayer. The second entry requests a prayer for Aed O'Donel, who by force recovered this book and the "short book" from the people of Connaught, to whom they had some time previously been given in ransom for the son of O'Donel's family historian.

Sigraird O'Cuirrindin, poet and musician, who made the first of these entries, died on a pilgrimage in 1347, and the entry is assigned to A.D. 1345. The second entry is corroborated by the Four Masters, who record that O'Donnel recovered the LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI and the Leabhar gearr, or "short book," in 1470, when, after a long siege, he captured the castle of Sligo from O'Conor.

The contents of LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI now consist mainly of fragmentary pieces in prose and verse on the Ulster champion Cuchulain and personages of the heroic and early Christian periods in Ireland; notices of ancient places of sepulture, elegy by Dallan Forgaill on St. Columba, Adamnan's vision, version of history by Nennius, and discourses on Resurrection and Judgment. Some of the matter purports to have been extracted from manuscripts now missing, such as "the Yellow Book," "the Yellow Book of Slane," "the Short Book," "the Books of Eochaidh O'Flannagan," and "the Book of Drom Sneachta."

LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI is now perhaps the sole survivor of the books which were in use at Clonmacnois in ancient times. It would appear to have received its designation from a now lost volume of the same name said to have been compiled and transcribed by St. Claran, who, about A.D. 540, founded the first church at Clonmacnois, on the east bank of the Shannon, about seven miles below Athlone. At Clonmacnois, from the sixth to the twelfth century, were many ecclesiastical and scholastic establishments, the extent of which is evidenced by the still existing remains. Of the erudition and high character of some of the former teachers there we have external attestation in a letter which Alcuin, one of the best scholars of his age, wrote, when, about A.D. 790, he transmitted contributions from Charlemagne to Coleu in Ireland. Alcuin addressed Coleu, who was Lector at Clonmacnois, as his "most holy father," and with him, and his associates, it would appear he maintained a continuous correspondence. On this the learned French Benedictine, Mabillon, observed: "Illustrem fuisse oportet Coleum illum, quem tanti facit Alcuinus, ut eum patrem sanctissimum seque filium ejus dicat."

Cuchulainn, the subject of the story of which the commencement appears on plates XXXVII. and XXXVIII., was a prince of Ulster, represented to have flourished in the first century of the Christian era, and styled in ancient writings "fortissimus heros Scotorum." The heroic exploits of Cuchulainn formed of old the subject of numerous compositions in the Irish language. He is introduced under the name of "Cuthullin" in the "Ossian" of Macpherson. Murtheimne, where the scene of the present story is laid, was an ancient territory situated in the district now known as the county of Louth. LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI, now in the Library of the Royal Irish Academy, is of high value in a philological point of view. In orthography, accentuation, and accuracy it is superior to most of the Irish manuscripts of later age. It is written mainly in double columns, without any color ornamentation except some inelaborate touches in yellow, red, and dark purple, mostly near or within the frames of the initial or other large ornamental characters. LEABHAR NA H-UIDHRI remained unpublished until 1870, when, under my supervision, the entire of it was reproduced in fac-simile for the Royal Irish Academy by Mr. Joseph O'Longan, of the Academy's department of MSS. This edition was collated by B. O'Looney, M.R.I.A., to whom I am indebted for valuable assistance in connexion with the matter in the Irish language in the present publication.

MS. by Mælbrihte
HuaMæluanaigh.

XL.-XLIH.—MANUSCRIPT BY MÆLBRIHTE HUAMÆLUANAIGH. This volume, completed at Armagh, A.D. 1138, contains the Four Gospels with the usual prefaces. The Gospel of St. Matthew, so far as chap. 27, and portions of those of Saints Mark and Luke are, in their interlinear and marginal spaces, filled with minutely written glosses and commentary from Origen, Cyprian, Eusebius, Isidore, Leo, Priscian, Gregory, Bede, and Manchan or Manchanus.

In addition to the Irish poem on the personal characteristics and modes of death of the Apostles (plate XL.) the volume includes in that language eleven quatrains on the wise men of the East, and various short verses on religious or Biblical subjects.

The transcriber mentions at fol. 13, plate XLII., that the writing of his preceptor, MacIntagairt of Tuignetha, is at the head of this page, and he prays "that God may be gentle to the soul of Mælisu." He probably here refers to Mælisu Maelcoluim, "chief keeper of the calendar of Armagh, its chief antiquary and librarian," whom the annalists record to have died in 1136. Of MacIntagairt of Tuignetha, now Tynan, near Armagh, no particulars are known. So late, however, as the reign of James I. the clan MacIntagairt occupied land in the vicinity of Armagh.

HuaMælunaigh has entered his name on three pages of his book. In one of these (page 127, plate XLI.) he states that he wrote it in the twenty-eighth year of his age. On page 60 (plate XLI.), he makes an observation on the slaying of Cormac Mac Carthy by Torlogh O'Brien. In a colophon on the last page, represented on plate XLII., O'Mælunaigh states that he finished the writing of the volume at Armagh, and enumerates the then existing kings of Ireland. He also mentions the year as that in which Cormac, King-bishop of Munster, was slain, and adds that Gilla Mac Liag was then the "successor of Patrick" in the see of Armagh. These entries demonstrate that the volume was finished at Armagh in A.D. 1138.

The stone-roofed church on the Rock of Cashel, known as "Cormac's Chapel," was so called from having been erected, in 1134, for the Cormac Mac Carthy whose death is here entered.

Gilla Mac Liag was the bishop who, in 1137, succeeded St. Malachy at Armagh; and St. Bernard described him as "Gelasium virum bonum et dignum tali honore."

The concordance of the contemporary chronological entries in O'Mælunaigh's manuscript with the native chronicles in various distant collections, with which the writer could not have been conversant, has been adduced as evidence of the general historic fidelity of the Irish annals.

In the early part of the eighteenth century this manuscript was in the "Bibliothèque du Roy," Paris, and attracted the attention of Père Richard Simon, who in his Bibliothèque Critique, 1708, described it as a handsome volume written eight centuries previously in ancient Saxon characters by "Dom Ælbrigte," a Benedictine monk.

"On trouve," wrote Simon, "dans la Bibliothèque du Roy un beau Manuscrit Latin des quatre Evangiles, écrit il y a pour le moins 800 ans, en vieux caractères Saxons . . . Il [le copiste] ajoute à la fin de son exemplaire, plusieurs lignes en langage Saxon. . . Le copiste, qui étoit un Moine Benedictin, prend le nom de Dom Ælbrigte."

Simon fell into these errors through a misconception of the language, and of the entries on the pages represented on Plates XLI. and XLII., in which the scribe wrote in Irish as follows:—"Oroit do mælbrigte"—"a prayer for mælbrigte."

From the "Bibliothèque du Roy" the book was stolen by Jean Aymon, who carried it with other manuscripts which he had purloined to Holland. There it was seen and examined in 1709 by the noted John Toland, a native of Ulster, who recognised its Irish origin but erroneously conceived it to have been written in the ninth century. From Aymon the book was purchased by Humphry Wanley, about 1718, for Robert Harley, Earl of Oxford, and with the Harleian collection it came to the British Museum, where it is numbered 1,802. Wanley regarded the manuscript as a standard for the Irish hand of the early part of the twelfth century, and spoke of it as "one of the most authentic copies of the Latin Gospels which they have set forth from that island."

There are perhaps no finer specimens of minute Irish writing extant than those in the margins and interlineations in this manuscript. At the foot of a small slip introduced between folia 49 and 51, represented on plate XI., the transcriber, in exceedingly small characters in the Irish language, observes:—"If I wished, I could write the whole treatise like this." On the last page he closes the volume with two lines in Irish in which he asks a blessing on every one who will pardon the faults of this book, and adds, "let him say a Pater for the soul of the scribe; for it [the book] requires much indulgence both in text and commentary."

Various notes from St. Jerome, Gregory, Gennadius, etc., appear on the margins in writing which Wanley designated a "newer or English hand." He observed that "the person who wrote these more modern notes hath often rased off the old notes, that he might put the number of the chapters in their place, as at fol. 12. b. 14. 15. 18. b. 20. b. &c. Sometimes the said old marginal notes have been rased off, upon other occasions, as fol. 28. 31. b. &c. I," added Wanley, "have before mentioned Manchanus as one of the authors who makes the little catena upon St. Matthew. He is cited under the marks m̃ and m̃u and m̃uñ, and plainly appeareth to have been an Irishman by his notes, some of which are partly in the Irish tongue, as in the lower margin of fol. 49, and other places."

The modern writing on fol. 60 recto (plate XLI.), is probably of the time of the Rev. Dr. John O'Brien, Roman Catholic bishop of Cloyne, who in his Irish Dictionary, published at Paris in 1768, referred as follows to this page:—

"In an old valuable manuscript of the four Gospels in Latin, written in Irish characters, first belonging to the King's Library at Paris (where Père Simon ignorantly judged it written in the Saxon character), but now to be seen in the British Musæum at London, the following marginal remark in old Irish is found at the end of the Gospel of St. Matthew, p. 60, is m̃or in gnim Cormac Mac Carthaig do mharbhad O Thordhealbach O'Briain; i.e. 'the killing of Cormac MacCarthaig by Torlogh O'Brien is a very surprising act.'" Dr. O'Brien added that by virtue of the "marginal remarks of the writer of that inestimable manuscript, I have been enabled to furnish the Keepers and Overseers of the British Musæum with a note, whereby the antiquity of that manuscript is ascertained and fixt at the year 1138."

This volume has been mentioned by various writers. A description of it under the title of the "Codex Maelbrigte" was communicated to the Royal Irish Academy, in 1851, by the Rev. William Reeves, D.D., who has kindly revised the matter printed in the present publication from this manuscript. From these specimens it will be seen that, in its interlineations and glosses, it abounds with intricate and obscure passages written in a very contracted style.

Tighernach.

XLIIL.—XLIV.—ANNALS BY TIGHERNACH.—Tighernach O'Braoin, the earliest Irish compiler of annals of Ireland, was abbot of the monasteries of Clonmacnois and Roscommon, and died in the year 1088. Of the oldest and best copy of his annals now known but twelve leaves survive, and of this fragment two pages are represented on plates XLIII and XLIV. In one of these (XLIII. col. 2) will be found Tighernach's observation that all the monuments of the Scots (Irish) were uncertain till the time of Cimbed, King of Ulster, whom he synchronised with Ptolemy Lagos, about 300 years before Christ.

This copy of Tighernach's annals contains some Greek characters, and is probably of a period but little later than his own time. It formerly belonged to Sir James Ware, and is now preserved in the Bodleian Library.

Tighernach's Annals, it has been observed, "are scarcely more valuable for the material of history which their own pages furnish, than for the proofs they afford of still earlier records existing when they were written; records which, as appear from the dates of eclipses preserved by this chronicler, and which could not otherwise than by written memorials have reached him so accurately, must have extended, at least, as far back as the period when Christianity became the religion of the country. Another service conferred on the cause of Irish antiquities by this work, independently of its own intrinsic utility, arises from the number of metrical fragments we find scattered throughout its pages, cited from writings still more ancient, which were then evidently existing, though at present no other vestige of them remains. That Tighernach had access to some library or libraries furnished with books of every description, is manifest from his numerous references, and the correctness of his citations from foreign authors, with whose works we are acquainted, may be taken as a surety for the genuineness of his extracts from the writings of our own native authors now lost."

XLV.—ANCIENT GOSPELS: Harleian Collection, British Museum, Ancient No. 1023.—This copy of the Latin Gospels, mainly in the Vulgate version, is defective at the commencement of the Gospel of St. Matthew, and may be assigned to the early part of the twelfth century. With the Gospels of the other three Evangelists, it contains verses on Christ, succession of kings of Egypt, verses on the Biblical books, names of the seven sleepers, and prologues to Luke and John. Four pages from this manuscript are represented on the final plate of the present issue.

The plan for the publication, that the specimens should be reproduced in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colours, and other features, renders much descriptive details on these heads unnecessary here. The certification of the final impressions of the plates executed at the Ordnance Office, Southampton, and the custody of the documents sent to be photozincographed there for this work, have been entrusted to W. B. Sanders, Esq., Assistant-keeper of the Public Records in England.

It is unnecessary to observe here that many difficulties are incidental to a publication of this nature, more especially when, as in the present instance, the editorial and artistic portions have to be carried on in two places—Dublin and Southampton.

In the next issue the series will be continued from the early part of the twelfth to the end of the thirteenth century.

I remain your Honor's obedient servant,

J. T. GILBERT.

THE SEVENTH REPORT

OF THE

DEPUTY KEEPER OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS

IN IRELAND.

TO HIS GRACE, JAMES, DUKE OF ABERCORN, K.G.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE,

1. The removal of the bulk of the Records which, at the time of the passing of the Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, were of the age of twenty years and upwards from the making, has now been substantially completed. The only noticeable portions still left outstanding are the Judgment Rolls of the Courts of Common Law, that part of the Prerogative Collection comprising the Wills proved since the year 1820, and a portion of the State Paper Collection (post, 5), in process of preparation for transfer.

Removal of original bulk of records substantially completed.

2. As regards the Common Law Judgment Rolls, I beg leave to refer to my former reports, and in particular to the letter of the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls, dated 14th May, 1870, calling the attention of Her Majesty's Judges of the Courts of Common Law to the circumstances under which the removal to this office of the Judgment Rolls had been temporarily suspended, and to the expediency of framing rules for their treatment after removal. As they are Records of much public importance, I beg leave to refer to a note of their present places of custody, which will be found in the Appendix.

3. A sufficiently long experience tends to show that no sensible inconvenience to the administration of the Court of Probate need be apprehended from the removal of the residue of the Wills to 1846, inclusive, so that the Warrant already issued for that purpose will probably be carried into complete execution during the current year.

Outstanding wills.

4. The collections, by the removal of which to this office, during the past year, the primary work remaining to be done in execution of section 4 of the Act, has thus been completed, are the following.

a. Records of the High Court of Admiralty.—A portion of these, which had been deposited in the Chancery Recognizance Office, formerly occupied by the Marshal of the Admiralty Court, had been already removed to this office. The residue was deposited in presses in the present Court of Admiralty, and in the offices of the Queen's Proctor. Owing to the former practice of transacting the administrative business of this Court at the private residences of the officials, the Records now remaining are of trifling bulk and little importance, as compared with the extent and antiquity of the jurisdiction. The removal was effected under the direction of Mr. Berry, to whose report I beg leave to refer.

b. Records of the Court of Revenue Exchequer, and Equity Exchequer.—The Records of the Revenue Exchequer, completing the series to the year 1848, from the respective dates up to which they had already been removed to this office, from the Custom House and Bench's Buildings, had remained deposited in a vault beneath the Offices of the Receiver Master in Chancery. In the same vault were deposited a miscellaneous collection of Replications, Rejoinders, and other documents from the Filacer's Office of the late Court of Equity Exchequer. The laborious duty of transferring the contents of this vault was committed to Mr. James H. Davies, and performed by him between the 11th and 21st May last.

d. Records of Chancery from the offices of J. J. Murphy, Esq., formerly Master in Chancery.—Under the operation of the Chancery (Ireland) Act, 1867, and of several Orders of the Lord Chancellor and of the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, the Records relating to the several causes depending in Chancery at the date of the first Order had been concentrated in the offices of Master Brooke, Master Murphy, and the Receiver Master; and those pertaining to the jurisdiction of Master Brooke having been disposed of, by transfer to this office, and to that of Master Murphy, so that, for the purposes of section 4 of the Act, the latter office had come to be the ultimate repository of all the outstanding Cause Papers of the Court of Chancery, an order was made by the Lords Commissioners of the Great Seal, dated 4th July, 1874, whereby Masters Brooke and Murphy were released from their duties as such Masters, from and after the 8th of August next ensuing; and it was thereby directed that all the business then transacted in the offices of the said two Masters, which consisted in the passing of the accounts of Receivers, Guardians, and Committees of the estates of lunatics, and in the management of the estates where-with they are entrusted, should, from and after the 8th of August then next, be transferred to the office of the Receiver Master, and that all other business then appertaining to the said two offices should, from and after the said date, be transferred to the Chambers of the Lords Commissioners. Warrants having been already issued for the removal of the Records, comprised in the 4th section of the Act, from the offices of the respective Masters, directions were given to proceed with Master Murphy's collections on the 20th of August. This duty, involving much detail of arrangement, separation, and redeposit, was confided to Mr. Henry Cox, by whom it was satisfactorily completed on the 20th October. The collection removed comprises the Cause Papers, and ancillary documents, chiefly of a date prior to 1850, in 2,960 causes, leaving the documents of a later date in 3,480 causes, in their former repositories. It not being possible to determine beforehand which of these latter causes should be deemed current business, to be left under the immediate control of the Receiver Master and Chief Clerk respectively, it has been considered that the intention of the Act would be best carried into effect, consistently with the convenience of the Court, by leaving the last-mentioned portions of the collection, newly labelled and indexed, under Mr. Cox's direction, in the custody of the Chief Clerk of the Court.

e. Ecclesiastical Collections of the Diocese of Clonfert and Kilmacduagh.—The 4th section of the Act, vesting in the Master of the Rolls the Records of any Court which shall have ceased to exist, rendered it my duty on some former occasions to remove to this office various collections of diocesan and other ecclesiastical documents, preserved at the private residences of the Custodians. The last collection of this nature of the existence of which I have been made aware, was at Aughrim, in the County of Galway, under the charge of the Reverend John F. T. Crampton, A.M., Registrar of the United Diocese of Clonfert and Kilmacduagh. These comprised, together with testamentary, matrimonial, and diocesan matter, some documents relating to Church property for which I hold myself accountable to the Church Temporalities Commissioners. The collection was removed to this office on the 17th of September.

5. The Keeper of the State Papers in his annual Report, which will be found in the Appendix, has given a detail of the operations now in progress, and nearly completed, at the Record Tower, for placing the residue of the State Papers in the same complete form of arrangement and accessibility as the portions already transmitted. Although these preparations did not admit of further removal of the State Paper series in the past year, the Keeper has sent to this office a collection of other Records, some of which are of no inferior interest to any hitherto transmitted. I refer particularly to the series of 139 folio volumes, containing the proceedings of the Trustees for the Encouragement of the Linen Manufactures in Ireland from the year 1711 to 1828. Considering the great past and present extent of the linen trade in this country, these Records of the first systematic steps, taken by public authority, for its regulation and development, possess a high interest for the historian and economist. It has been thought well to present in the Appendix an abstract of the first day's proceedings of the Board reciting the deed by which the original trustees for the respective provinces were appointed.

6. In conformity with the practice adopted in my former Reports of giving the number of pieces constituting each consignment, I annex a like return for the past year, which may be regarded as having witnessed the completion of the primary object of the Act.

a total of 109,710 pieces, ranging in bulk from a sack to a volume, to which, if an estimated addition be made for all outstanding residues, the total of the original bulk will amount to about 115,000 pieces, the distribution, arrangement, and deposit of which will hereafter constitute the chief intern work of this office.

7. The primary work with which the office is charged having been thus substantially accomplished, it may be convenient to advert to the future duties which will be imposed on me and my successors by the 14th section of the Act. Under this latter enactment, the Records of all Courts or Public Offices in Ireland, after the passing of the Act (12th August, 1867) are placed under the care and charge of the Right Hon. the Master of the Rolls, for ultimate transmission to this office, as they shall respectively become twenty years old from the making; and this enactment is not limited as in the English Record Act, to particular courts or offices specified by name, but is general in its operation. It will depend on the means of supervision and correspondence placed at the disposal of this office, how far it may be enabled to carry the intention of the Act in this respect into operation. A beginning has been made in the case of the District Registries of the Court of Probate, in which, with the approval of the Right Honorable the Judge, the old method of putting up Wills and other Testamentary Instruments in bundles has been discontinued, and the system of separate envelopes of a uniform size for future transmission to this office has been adopted. Uniformity, in size and method, of Record-keeping, in all public offices, would be one of the most effective means towards economy of space and facility of reference in the future central deposits contemplated by the Act; and as far as the facilities at the disposal of this office for the conduct of a necessarily extended correspondence will admit, no endeavour will be wanting to effect those important objects.

Accruing Increment, Chancery.
App. IX.

8. The increment, over and above the original bulk, hitherto accruing under the last mentioned section of the Act has been chiefly derived from the Court of Chancery. In the Appendix will be found the detail of the several Records transferred from thence to this custody from time to time during the past year.

Diagram of state of bays.

9. The diminished amount of extern duty has been attended with a corresponding increase in the intern work of arrangement and deposit. The accompanying diagram indicates in red the several changes effected in the Treasury during the year; the general nature and object of which has been to concentrate in the newly-fitted bays, in perfectly fire-proof fittings, and finally complete arrangement, the several collections which were deposited, in the first instance, in bulk, as received, on the wooden shelving of the original fittings.

Intern operations.

10. The new fittings have been erected pari passu with the preparation for the ultimate intern deposits, and have been extended during the year through bays 1 S, 1 T, 1 U. The Cause Paper collections of the Offices in Chancery have been brought from their first place of deposit in the basement, and are now being incorporated with the fresh accretions, consequent on the abolition of the Masters' Offices, in preparation for ultimate deposit in self-indexing series. This process of interpolation must go on until the last of the outstanding documents shall have come in, when the entire collection will be capable of final deposit. The other collections of Deeds Boxes, &c., which were originally placed in the basement, owing to the large demand on the accommodation in the Upper Treasury for the reception of the first bulky consignments, have also been removed, so as to make room for the completion of the basement fittings in a uniform arrangement of presses.

Deposit.
Eq. Exchequer
Pleadings.

11. The other intern work of the year has consisted in the usual operations of Deposit, Indexing, Calendaring, and supplying the requirements of the public in inspections and compared copies of Records. The principal deposit has been in continuation of the Equity Exchequer Pleadings series, brought down to the year 1744, comprising 13,770 additional books or fasciculi.

Ancient Pleadings in Chancery.

12. In the deposit of the Chancery Pleadings, space was left, in the respective series of Bills and Answers, for the introduction of the unindexed portion of the collection, anterior to 1624, kept formerly on files and known as "Ancient Pleadings." These, having been cleansed and flattened, have now been subjected to regular arrangement by date and series, which has proceeded through twelve bundles, but will necessarily be a tedious business, as the documents range back to the reign of Henry VIII., and are difficult to read from age and injury.

Indexing and calendaring.

13. In Indexing and Calendaring, a large addition has been made to those necessities of the Search-Room.

f. A Calendar and Index have been prepared by Mr. Mills, under the direction of Mr. LaTouche, the Assistant Deputy Keeper, to the Fiant of Henry VIII. A MS. Calendar and Index Nominum was already in existence, but as it indicates the nature of each Fiant only as Grant, Lease, Pardon, &c., it has been found too general to be of any substantial service. These Records, named "Fiant," from the initial words of one class of the instruments so known—"Fiant literæ patentis,"—are of great value as constituting the primary authority for grants under the great seal. Such grants, subsequent to 1665, had to be enrolled in Chancery as a condition to their validity, and the enrolments so made, where the Rolls have been preserved, dispense with the evidence of the Fiant; but, for Grants before that date, there was no certainty that any transcript would be found on the Roll, and in point of fact, great numbers of Letters Patent of early date remain unenrolled. To these Grants the Fiant affords the primary and, in most cases, the only clue accessible to the public, and sometimes, where the original letters are lost, to those representing the grantees. The importance of framing a well-indexed calendar of their contents has long been acknowledged, and it is hoped that this work, now completed for the reign of Henry VIII., will be found so far to supply all that is necessary. Considering the value of the work, it has been thought well to embody it in the Appendix to this Report; and it is proposed to continue it in like Appendices to future Reports, until the whole period shall be covered up to the point where the information already published by the Irish Record Commissioners will make such aid unnecessary. APPENDIX II.

EXTRACT from REPORT of HENRY F. BERRY, esq., on the removal of the RECORDS of the COURT of ADMIRALTY.

The Records of the High Court of Admiralty, now in this department, were transferred from three repositories, viz. :—a small room formerly used as Marshal's office, and which, at the time its contents were entered in our Transfer Books, belonged to the Chancery Recognizance Office; the Chamber which forms the present Court, and the offices of J. F. Hamerton, esq., the Queen's Proctor, at 61 Upper Sackville-street.

In former years, there was no fixed room for use as a Court, nor had the officials any offices for the transaction of business, with the exception of the small room above named, which, for a short time, was used by the Marshal. The officials discharged their duties at their own private residences, and so, in one instance, a quantity of documents had accumulated at the house of the late Dr. Anster, Registrar of the Court, which, after his death, were removed and placed in presses in the present Court.

The fact of business having been transacted at private houses, and the Records having been kept in them, will account for their want of regularity in series. In the preparation for Transfer, it was found impossible to arrange them satisfactorily, but very soon I hope to be able to arrange and index the Cause Papers, so as to make them, so far as they exist, readily consultable.

It was not till the year 1867, on the creation of the new jurisdiction of the Court of Admiralty, that the present commodious Court and offices were finally provided for the accommodation of the Judge and his staff.

In my Report on the Records belonging to the Chancery Recognizance Office, dated 11th December, 1868, at page 63 of the appendix to your First Report, there is a note to the effect that in an inner room were four presses, filled with documents belonging to the Court of Admiralty, which had been tied up, labelled, and entered in our Transfer Book, but which were not removed when the Transfer of the Chancery Recognizances, &c., took place. These Documents were brought over and deposited in this office on the 27th April, 1869, but no Report was made on them, as it was deemed advisable that all the Records of the Court of Admiralty should be dealt with together. They consisted chiefly of Affidavits, Warrants, Orders (circa 1800–35); several bundles of Cause Papers for about the same period, the titles and dates of the causes being entered in the Transfer Book; Protocols 1805–14; 1825 and 1830–2; 27 vols. Draft Rule Books, 1798–1852; some Log Books; a Book of Sale; two Appearance Books, and a Seal Book.

On 3rd August, 1874, in obedience to your instructions, I attended at the Court to prepare the contents of five presses in it for Transfer, which was effected on the following day. At the request of Judge Townsend, a Warrant to include all Documents connected with the old Court, up to its abolition in 1867 was issued, so that the following were transferred:—

Rule Books, (27 vols.), August, 1747 to 25th November, 1867.

Note and Rough Books (11 vols.), 8th Feb., 1856, to 23rd Mar. 1864.

Sales' Account Book, 1807 to 1823.

Judges' Crown Books (Admiralty Commission), (5 vols.), Antrim, Clare, and Cork Assizes, 1858–9.

Eight Log Books, 1857–1867; lodged during the progress of Causes.

Twenty-three parcels of Cause Papers, the titles of the principal Cause being given in the Transfer Book. Among these are some parcels of Letters Remissory.

J. F. Hamerton, esq., the Queen's Proctor, having intimated that he had found some Records of the Court in his offices, at 61 Upper Sackville-street, they were examined and were transferred on 17th October, 1874. They consisted of Three Rule Books, May 1797 to September 1800; 11th October 1855 to 20th May, 1858; and 1st February, 1862, to 7th October, 1863, which fill up gaps in the series brought from the Court.

Rough Court Books (15 vols.), 3rd November, 1856, to 29th October, 1860; and 1st February, 1862, to 7th October, 1863.

A Marshal's Book 1866.

All the above Records have been deposited in Bay 1 Q of the Record Treasury.

APPENDIX III

EXTRACT from the REPORT of JAMES H. DAVIES, Esq., on the removal of the RECORDS of the REVENUE AND EQUITY EXCHEQUER deposited in a VAULT beneath the OFFICES of MASTER FITZGIBBON.

The vault having undergone a thorough dusting and cleansing, I commenced proceedings, under your directions, on the 11th May. Owing to the crowded state of the vault, it was deemed advisable to carry on the actual transfer concurrently with the preparations. This was accordingly done, and on the 21st May, after some interruptions, I had the honour to report the deposit of the last load in the Record Treasury.

The Records of the Revenue Exchequer dealt with by me form a continuation of those previously removed to this office, and complete the series up to the year 1848; and as the Assistant Deputy Keeper, in his Report on the collection, has given full particulars of the nature and value of the different classes of documents, it would be useless for me to go over the same ground. I shall therefore ask leave to refer inquirers to that Report (see 2nd Report of Deputy Keeper, p. 61, Appendix 9).

The Equity Exchequer Records deposited in this vault were of slight value, and without arrangement, with the exception of four bundles of Replications and Rejoinders put up by the late Mr. Ferguson. The centre of the vault was taken up by a large wooden stand, supporting files of Replications, Rejoinders, Orders, Names of Commissioners, and other Documents from the Filacer's office. This stand was removed to the vaults of the Record Treasury, each file being properly docketed and easy of access if required. I append a Schedule of the Records transferred, which must still undergo further listing and arrangement.

APPENDIX IV.

EXTRACT from REPORT of HENRY F. BERRY, Esq., on removal of RECORDS of LAW EXCHEQUER from the CHAMBER of the LORD CHIEF BARON.

The Lord Chief Baron having intimated that three presses in his Lordship's Chamber contained Records, these on examination were found to be Records of the Court of Exchequer, and I was instructed to prepare them for removal.

Twenty-five parcels were labelled, entered, and their transfer accomplished on 21st November, 1874; the Records were in no kind of order, and were very miscellaneous in their character. They seem to have belonged principally to the Rules Department of the Court, and consisted chiefly of the following:—

- Issues and Verdicts, circa* 1810-1826.
Lists of Records at Assizes, " "
Writs of Venire, with panels attached.
Posteas, 1807.

The collection is lodged in Bay 5 I, at the end of the Law Exchequer series of Records.

APPENDIX V.

Copy ORDER of LORDS COMMISSIONERS of the GREAT SEAL of IRELAND, 4th July, 1874.

Whereas, by the Chancery (Ireland) Act, 1867, section 29, it is enacted that whenever in the judgment of the Lord Chancellor, from the state of business in the Court, any Master whose office is by the said statute abolished, can be spared, it shall be lawful for the Lord Chancellor to release such Master from his duties as such, at such time as to him shall seem meet.

And whereas by the 2nd section of the same Act, the expression Lord Chancellor occurring therein shall mean and include the Lords Commissioners for the custody of the Great Seal of Ireland. And whereas in our judgment, having regard to the state of business in the said Court and in their respective offices, the Right Honorable William Brooke and Jeremiah John Murphy, esq., two of the said Masters, may be spared. We do hereby release the said William Brooke and Jeremiah John Murphy from their duties as such Masters from and after the 8th day of August next ensuing.

And whereas the 39th section of the said Act directs the nature of the business to be prosecuted by the then Masters of the said Court until they should be removed by resignation, death, or otherwise, or released from their duties under the said Act; and that such business if necessary should from time to time be distributed among the Masters or such of them as should then remain, and the Receiver Master in such manner as the Lord Chancellor should direct. And whereas it is enacted by the 175th section of the said Act as interpreted by the 2nd section thereof that all suits, causes, matters, or other proceedings which were pending in the said Court on the 1st day of Michaelmas Term, 1867, should be conducted or prosecuted according to the same practice as if the said Act had not passed; provided that it should be lawful for the Lord Chancellor by an order to be made upon motion or petition to direct that the whole or any part of the further proceedings in such suit, cause, or matter should thenceforth be carried on according to the practice introduced by the said Act. And whereas all the business now carried on in the offices of the said two Masters has been carried on according to the former practice. Now we do hereby direct that all the business now transacted in the offices of the said two Masters which consists in the passing of the accounts of Receivers, Guardians, and Committee of the Estates of Lunatics, and in the management of the estates wherewith they are entrusted, shall, from and after the 8th day of August next be transferred to the office of the Receiver Master and that all other business now appertaining to the said two offices shall, from and after the said 8th day of August, be transferred to the Chambers of the Lords Commissioners; and it shall be competent for any person interested in the prosecution of any suit, cause, matter or other proceeding so transferred to make application to the Lords Commissioners in Chamber touching the regulation of the course of practice to be pursued in its further prosecution.

APPENDIX VI.

EXTRACT from REPORT of HENRY COX, Esq., on the RECORDS (prior to 1850) TRANSFERRED from the Offices of J. J. MURPHY, Esq., EX-Master in Chancery.

The Offices consist of three rooms—viz., the Court, the Clerk's (or back) Office, and the Examiner's Office. The documents were distributed in twenty-one presses.

In consequence of the limited space, and of the rapidity of accumulation, considerable confusion existed in the dates and sequences of the documents. This necessitated a much longer time for the preparation than was anticipated. I was engaged on this duty with the assistance of two workers and a writer for a total period of about six weeks.

The following are the several classes of documents removed :—

Cause Papers.—These comprise the papers lodged in about 3,000 causes, the titles of which were, during the preparation, entered on transfer sheets. The papers in matters of a later date were found to be tied in bundles, with their proper titles attached ; but no order had been observed in putting them into their receptacles. In addition to these, there were 114 bundles of papers which, owing to the confusion of their arrangement in their pigeon-holes, could not be distributed into their various causes. As nearly as possible they were grouped into bundles commencing with the same letter, and are labelled “ Miscellaneous Cause Papers.”

Interrogatories and Depositions.—Of these there are 118 bundles. Intermixed with these were found a few Dominicals which, at this stage, it was not deemed necessary to separate from the Interrogatories with which they were previously arranged.

Miscellaneous Deeds, Leases, &c.—Of these there are sixty-two bundles. Under this general title are included Tenants' Leases, Mortgages, Marriage Settlements, Deeds of Surrender, Deeds of Attornment, Draft Conveyances, &c.

Miscellaneous Receivers' Accounts—Nine bundles.

Miscellaneous Notes of Sale—Four bundles. These appear to be minutes of the different biddings made for various lands set out according to the order of the Court. The dates range from 1791 to 1806.

Miscellaneous Rentals—Three bundles.

Miscellaneous Bills of Costs—One bundle.

Distraining Notices—One bundle.

Miscellaneous Stockbrokers' Accounts—Seven bundles. These are accounts of stock investments brought before the Master for his approval.

There was found one bundle of Leases and Recognizances unexecuted with an index giving reasons for their non-execution.

Miscellaneous Documents—Consisting of fragments, &c., eleven bundles.

The Books comprise :

Official Day Books—Two volumes (1835-1843) with an index attached to the earlier volume.

Official Account Books—Nineteen volumes, with dates ranging from 1806 to 1839.

Masters' Note Books—Twenty-five volumes, with dates ranging from 1806 to 1846; but apparently there is a gap from 1836 to 1845. These books are not indexed, and seem to be merely rough notes for the Master's own information.

Sales and Letting Books—Three volumes, from Jan. 1818, to Oct. 1847. An index to each volume.

Summons and Attendance Books—Twenty-four volumes (1816–1845).

Guardians', Committees', and Receivers' Account Books—Two volumes, both indexed (1836–1847). Also one Receiver's Account Book (1792–1820) in cases, before Master Ellis, of minors and lunatics. Indexed.

Order Books—Two volumes, both indexed (1843–1851).

Short Cause Lists—Two volumes, commencing E. 1843.

Long Cause Lists—Two volumes, commencing E. 1843; and two volumes for 1848–9.

Merchants' Account Books Lodged as Exhibits—ninety-seven volumes.

Entry Book of Exhibits (1 vol.) in various causes, with an index of the causes. Latest entry 1806.

Besides the above were found and transferred,

A MS. copy (bound) of Report on Inquiry held by the Surveyor-General, in 1818, into the condition of the Stationery Office.

A MS. Schedule of Lettings in Examiner's Office, from 1828 to 1833—made pursuant to Order of 21 December, 1833.

An Index to Leases remaining in the Office where Recognizances had been filed (1828 to 1833).

Two lists of Returns, from Master, of causes pending in his Office, with particulars (1833–1837).

A Report, by Masters, on their Inquiry into the state of prisoners in Marshalsea Prison (1837).

A volume of letters, probably belonging to a solicitor, but lodged in Court. The letters bear dates 1826 and 1827.

Report (bound) of Select Committee of Inquiry into the taxation of the city of Dublin, 1823.

A catalogue of law books in King's Inns Library, published 1823.

Two volumes (1810–1815 and 1821–1825) of Reports of Record Commissioners.

A printed list of Electors of county Kilkenny for year 1832.

The removal of the documents from the Court was carried out on October 13th and 14th, and of those in the Clerk's office on October 20th. The documents in the Examiner's Office remain untouched as none of them are of an earlier date than 1850.

APPENDIX VII.

To the Right Honorable the MASTER of the ROLLS in IRELAND.—
THE SEVENTH REPORT of SIR JOHN BERNARD BURKE, C.B., Ulster, Keeper of the State Papers in the Record Tower, Dublin
Castle, dated 1st February, 1875.

SIR,—I beg leave to submit to your Honor my annual statement of the progress of the work done in the State Paper Department during the past year, viz :—1st February, 1874, to 1st February, 1875.

I.

TRANSFER OF DOCUMENTS.

The following collections have been transferred to the Public Record Office :—

1. MINUTES OF PROCEEDINGS OF THE LINEN MANUFACTURE IN IRELAND.—1711–1828 ; 139 MS. volumes.
2. RETURNS OF ALL SCHOOLS IN THE VARIOUS PARISHES OF IRELAND.—1824–1825.
3. FORM OF ANSWERS CONTAINED IN SCHEDULE to an Act, 52 Geo. III., entitled an Act for taking an account of the Population of Ireland, 1813–1814.

II.

RECEPTION OF THE STATE PAPERS.

1. THE PAPERS OF THE CHIEF SECRETARY'S OFFICE.—1853 to 1864, inclusive—twelve complete years—have been received.
2. PAPERS AND BOOKS OF THE FOUR COURTS MARSHALSEA have been, by direction of the Government, placed in the Record Tower.

III.

ARRANGEMENT, CLASSIFICATION, INDEXING, &C., OF STATE PAPERS.

1. THE PAPERS OF THE YEARS 1822, 1823, and 1824, have been arranged and placed in cartons. A Carton Catalogue has been made to each year and placed in the beginning of each Index.

An Index to the Miscellaneous Papers of these three years has been commenced.

2. THE MODERN STATE PAPERS of the years 1853, 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1858, 1859, 1860, 1861, 1862, 1863, and 1864, inclusive, which have been received from the Chief Secretary's Office, are a continuation of the series already deposited here. The Papers of these years fill 257 cartons, and number at a rough calculation about fifty or sixty thousand. All these documents have been regulated by being placed in cartons and by having a Carton Catalogue added to each year's Index.

Accompanying the Indexed Papers of these years is a large mass of unindexed "Miscellaneous Papers," which have been sorted and placed in presses.

3. THE BOOKS AND PAPERS OF THE FOUR COURTS MARSHALSEA before mentioned as having been transferred to this department, have been arranged and a Press Catalogue made to the series.

4. PETITIONS ADDRESSED TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT AND COUNCIL, AND OTHER PAPERS CONNECTED WITH THEM, described in my last (6th) Report, are being carefully indexed. The progress is satisfactory, and the interest of this important collection will, when the Index is finished, be at once seen. The indexing has come down to No. 886 and the numbering to 8,123.

5. THE CALENDAR OF THE BRITISH DEPARTMENTAL CORRESPONDENCE, mentioned in my fifth Report as having been brought down to the year 1738, has been continued to 1739. The transcription of this calendar has been proceeded with from 1714 to 1718.

It will be a source of infinite gratification to me, when the current business of this Department will permit us to accomplish the task of completing the Calendar of this British Departmental Correspondence, as the collection is full of historical materials having reference to a very interesting period.

6. A draft Index has been made to the MILITARY BOOKS OF ENTRIES in this Department.

In consequence of the great mass of Papers of modern date received from the Chief Secretary's Office, there have arisen and there are continually arising searches for documents of current importance. These searches, of almost daily occurrence, involve a vast amount of investigation and cause a considerable expenditure of time, chiefly because the Papers of the various years (in incomplete bundles) are difficult of access, and also because several of the principal documents, taken out in past years for Governmental or official use, not having been restored to their proper places in the bundles, are not discoverable by means of the Indexes, and are only, if at all, to be found by an examination of the unindexed "Miscellaneous Papers." I have given this subject my earnest consideration, and have felt that it is one of the most urgent duties of this Department to make such arrangement of these State Papers as will surmount the difficulty and enable documents, when called for by Government, to be readily produced. I have consequently directed the whole of the Papers of the modern years to be sorted and placed in cartons, for, once they are so deposited, they can be referred to without trouble or delay. Good progress has been already made in the work, no less than fifteen years' arrangement under the plan having been completed; and I anticipate that within a short period the whole of these documents will be to a great extent in a state of facile reference. At this moment the remaining portion of the old Parliamentary Record Room is being adjusted for the reception of the cartons required for this purpose.

I have the honour to be, sir,

Your faithful servant,

(Signed)

J. BERNARD BURKE, Ulster,

Keeper of the State Papers in the Record Tower.

APPENDIX IX.

EXTRACT from the REPORT of the ASSISTANT DEPUTY-KEEPER on RECORDS RECEIVED in the Year 1874.

From the Record and Writ Office, Chancery, there were removed, on the 5th February, Cause Petitions under the Court of Chancery (Ireland) Regulation Act, 1850 :—those on parchment, from 22nd August, 1850, to 9th August, 1851, and of those on paper, thirty Volumes, from 13th August, 1851, to 31st January, 1855. These latter are numbered consecutively, and each Volume contains 100 Petitions.

Also Answers (on parchment) to the Cause Petitions, from 6th January, 1851, to 31st December, 1851.

On the 4th March, 62 Volumes of the Answers and Affidavits in Cause Petition matters from 11th September, 1850, to 10th January, 1855.

NOTE.—Prior to 11th September, 1850, all Affidavits in Chancery were filed in the Chancery Affidavit Office, but on the passing of the Chancery (Ireland) Regulation Act of 1850, the Chancellor decided that the ordinary Affidavits under the Act should be filed in the Rolls Office, along with the Answering Affidavits.

In 1860 this practice was altered, and all, except the Answering Affidavits, were filed from thenceforth in the Chancery Affidavit Office. In Causes under the 15th section of the Act the practice was to file the Answering Affidavit in the Master's Office, in the nature of a Discharge to the copy of the Petition previously filed in the same office. Many, however, of the Answering Affidavits to Petitions under the 15th section have slipped in amongst these Affidavits.

There were transferred on 29th April the Cause Petition Index Books for the years 1851, 1852, 1853, 1854, the Volume for 1851 containing all Cause Petitions filed from the earliest date to that year.

On 19th May, Accounts from 22nd December, 1851, to 29th December, 1854 (Vols. 171 to 262); Petitions, 6th December, 1851, to 31st December, 1854 (Vols. 89 to 120); Reports, 18th December, 1851, to 18th December, 1854 (Vols. 109 to 144).

On 4th June the Order or Full Entry Books, from (circa) 1852 to 1854 (Vols. 485 to 522)—Vol. 489 not transferred: it is either missing, or a mistake was made in the numbering. Rolls Motion Books, 13th January, 1852, to 13th December, 1854 (Vols. 321 to 363).

Masters' Orders (a new series), 7th November, 1853, to 23rd December, 1854 (Vols. 1 to 11).

Incumbered Estates Court Certificates, 1st June, 1852, to 30th June, 1854 (Vols. 5 and 6); Attachments, 1852 to 1854 (Vols. 9 and 10); Decrees, 8th March, 1852, to 21st August, 1854 (Vols. 89 to 92); Masters' Certificates, 12th February, 1852, to 26th August, 1854 (Vols. 19 to 24); Consents, 1st January, 1852, to 14th August, 1854 (Vols. 33 to 38); Rolls Petition Hearing Books, 1852-54 (Vols. 41 to 49).

Rolls Consent Motion Books, 1852-4 (Vols. 10 to 13); Orders on Cause Petitions, 1852-4 (Vols. 3 to 6); Chancery General Hearing Books, 1852-4 (Vols. 6 to 14); Side Bar Rule Books, 21st April, 1852, to 30th November, 1854 (Vols. 51 to 55).

On 13th June were transferred the Disentailing Deeds Rolls, 1852–3 (Nos. 41 to 44), and the Patent Rolls, 1852–3 (Nos. 30 to 33)—(Bay 3 D).

APPENDIX X.

CALENDAR TO FIANTS OF KING HENRY VIII.

EXTRACT from PRELIMINARY OBSERVATIONS of J. J. DIGGES LATOUCHE, Esq., the ASSISTANT DEPUTY KEEPER of the RECORDS.

The "Fiants," or Warrants to the Court of Chancery for Grants under the Great Seal, so called from their usually commencing with the words Fiant literæ patentes, extend from the 12th year of Henry VIII. to the present time. They are comprised amongst the Records transferred to this department from the late Rolls Office of Chancery, where they had been deposited from time to time by the Clerk of the Hanaper, for the purpose of safe custody, and for facilitating the enrolment of the Letters Patent grounded on them.

The present practice is not to issue Letters Patent to the parties entitled to them until the enrolment has been made upon the Patent Roll, for which purpose the Fiant is treated as the original, though the enrolment directed by the Act is of the Letters themselves. This practice has, I presume, prevailed since the 17 & 18 Charles II., chap. 2, known as the Act of Explanation, the 73rd section of which enacts that all Letters Patent of titles of honor, offices, or lands shall be void, unless they contain a clause of enrolment in the Chancery of Ireland within a time to be specified. Prior to this enactment, the causes operating to such enrolments as were made, were, I apprehend, the security thereby given to the grantee, and the obtaining of their customary fees on enrolment by the officers of the Court.

The whole number of Fiants for the reign of Henry VIII. appears, by an entry in an old book entitled, "Schedule of various Records from Henry VIII. to Elizabeth" (2 Q. 144. 1), being a receipt for Records, signed by George Norton, 15th November, 1633, to have been 565. Of these I have been able to calendar 548. In the Manuscript Catalogue prepared by the Record Commissioners there are noticed only 519; but this number I have been enabled to augment by the addition of some which the Commissioners had by mistake included in subsequent reigns; of some I found among the Records of the Palatinate of Tipperary; and of others found in a bundle labelled "Fiants of various dates" (1 L. 91. 1). I have also obtained the contents of a few others, which are entered as Fiants in the Books of Patents in the office of the Auditor-General.

Of the above, 365 are enrolled or marked as enrolled, but I found on the Patent Rolls only 242. This discrepancy exists chiefly in respect of Fiants for Leases.

The majority of the Fiants of Henry VIII. correspond with, and are similar in form to, the class of "Signed Bills" in the English Chancery, of which Mr. Brewer gives an example in the preface to his Calendar of "Letters and Papers, Foreign and Domestic, of Henry VIII.," p. xcix. In this country they must be divided into three classes—those signed by the King, those signed by the Lord Deputy, and those signed by other competent authority. The first class are for the most part identical with Mr. Brewer's example, a very few being without the petition, and one having the words, "Fiant litere domini Regis patentes in debita forma tenore verborum sequentium," inserted before the word "Rex" in the granting portion. I give an example of the second class, as the form is, I think, peculiar to Ireland.

On only one of the Fiants of this class is there a petition transcribed, and most of them are countersigned by some members of the Council.

The rest of the Fiants divide themselves into five common forms, of four of which I annex examples.

(1.) "Privy Seals," according to the example given by Mr. Brewer p. c.

(2.) "Indentures," of which I give an example.

Nearly all these instruments have the date of their delivery into Chancery marked upon them in accordance with the Act 37^o, Henry VI., cap. 1, directing that Warrants made to the Great Seal should have the day of their delivery to the Chancellor entered, and that the patents should bear the date of that day.

In the Calendar below, as most of the Fiants are written in Latin, I have in the margin marked those that are in English. The serial number is that of their present chronological arrangement, and the number in brackets gives their reference in the Record Commissioner's Catalogue. I have also added in the Record Commissioner's Catalogue the chronological serial number, that it may form a key for any person who has by him the old reference.

In conclusion, I beg to acknowledge the able assistance rendered me by Mr. Mills, on whom by much the more arduous portion of the labour has fallen.

THE EIGHTH REPORT

OF THE

DEPUTY KEEPER OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS IN IRELAND.

TO THE MOST NOBLE JAMES, DUKE OF ABERCORN, K.G.,

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE,

1. The residue of the collections of the former Masters in Ordinary of the Court of Chancery referred to in my seventh Report, as having been left under the control of the Chief Clerk of the Court of Chancery for more convenient access in transacting the current business of that Court, have, at the desire of the Right Honorable the Lord Chancellor, been removed to this Office. The collections had, to some extent, been arranged in the former process of preparation for their transfer, and this arrangement was completed by Mr. Cox and Mr. Lopdell, prior to their removal. It was a work of much labour, and occupied the servants of this Office for a considerable time. In reference to these records, I beg leave to repeat the observation made on similar collections in a former Report, that many of the exhibits and private documents lodged in Court, and comprised amongst the curial records, are without indication of any kind to show in what Cause or Matter brought in, or to whom belonging. Removal of residue of collections of Masters in Ordinary in Chancery. App. I.

2. The Bills of Costs and other records of the Offices of the Taxing Masters of the Court of Chancery have also been brought to this Office. I beg leave to refer to the schedule annexed to the second warrant for their removal, for particulars, and to the warrants themselves for the method of combined procedure under the fourth and fourteenth sections of the Act. Removal of collections of Taxing Masters in Chancery. App. IV.

3. In order that the removal of these large collections should as little as possible interrupt the current business of the Court of Chancery, the Master of the Rolls was pleased to authorize the recall, from time to time, for such time as should be necessary and no longer, of such of them as the Receiver Master, Chief Clerk, and Taxing Masters might require; and Recall Books for Reserving powers of recall. App. V. App. VI.

that purpose have been prepared and furnished, by means of which the varying custody of each record required from time to time is ascertained.

Execution of warrant for removal of collections of Court of
completed.

4. Pursuant to the intimation given in my last Report, the residue of the collections of the former Court of Prerogative, from 1820 to 1846 inclusive, was removed from the Record Department of the Court of Probate, Henrietta-street, to this Office, during the month of August last. It comprised 18,667 proved Wills, 723 unproved Wills, 66 volumes of Will Books, 24 volumes of Grant Books, and 8 volumes of Indexes to Grant Books. Preparations have been made for facilitating such references here to these collections as may hereafter be necessary in the course of business of the Court of Probate.

Judgment Rolls of Courts of Common Law.

5. The obstacles to the transfer of the Judgment Rolls of the Courts of Common Law have not yet been removed. These important records, for which places have been specially prepared here, remain in their original repositories in the offices of their respective Courts. That no share in the responsibility for leaving this part of the Act unexecuted ought to attach to this Office, will appear by my former Reports, and the letter of the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls, of the 14th May, 1870, to which I beg leave to refer.

[III. App. 4;
IV. § 54; V.
§ 3; VII. § 2.]

recovered.

6. A portion of the Diocesan Records of the Dioceses of Ferns and Leighlin, which had for some time been in irregular custody, owing to its non-delivery by the carriers, was, through the intervention of the Crown Solicitor for Ireland, recovered and transferred to this Office, on the 12th of November, 1875, under the warrant of the Master of the Rolls, in the schedule whereto will be found a list of the documents so recovered.

App. VII.

Registry Book of Newry and Mourne.

7. A Registry Book of the Exempt Jurisdiction of Newry and Mourne, which was also outstanding, has been received from the Registrar.

Ecclesiastical Records late in possession of Bishop of Ossory.

8. A considerable collection of Ecclesiastical Records, formerly in the custody of the late Bishop of Ossory, has been transferred to this Office by the Diocesan Registrar, and awaits detailed examination.

State Papers.

9. The Keeper of the State Papers has not, this year, sent any further records from Dublin Castle, having been engaged in the arrangement and preparation of his collections for future transmission. I beg leave to refer to the Keeper's report in the Appendix.

App. VIII.

Intern work.

10. In the intern work of the Office, progress has been made in arrangement and deposit, as well as in cleansing, repairing, calendaring, and indexing.

Deposit.

Pleadings of
Exchequer.

a. The sorting and finally depositing of the Pleadings of the Court of Equity Exchequer was for some time interrupted by the detachment of the workmen to assist in the arrangement of the remaining collections of the Masters in Chancery. At the close of the year, 7,347 fasciculi, comprising from 8th December, 1741, to 31st December, 1762, had been placed in their final destinations.

- b.* That portion of the Judgment Rolls of the Court of Common Pleas, being the instalment originally received, has, to the extent of 452 Rolls, been removed from its place of temporary deposit, and placed in its final destination, in Bay 1 S. After much consideration and experimental trial of methods of flattening and readjustment, it has been found that Rolls of this class can be more conveniently dealt with, for purposes of access and consultation, in their original form; and the fittings in which the collection is now placed, as well as those prepared for the reception of the large outstanding residue of Rolls of this and the other Courts of Common Law, have been designed with that view.
- c.* The final deposit of that portion of the State Papers already transmitted from the Record Tower, Dublin Castle, has also been completed. Places for the outstanding cartons remaining unre- moved, have been specially prepared in Bay 1 A. It is im- portant for the security of the Record Treasury that the use of cartons of inflammable material should be discontinued.
- d.* The deposit of Inventions-Patents proceeds in Bay 1 R, which, it is calculated, has fittings adequate for the reception of a quarter of a century's increment. The increase in the number of these instruments is, however, very rapid, being, for the past year, in respect of 4,492 inventions, as against 3,405 in 1868.
- e.* The deposit in dictionary order of the Cause Papers of the Litton collection has been completed. That of the Brooke col- lection is in progress.

Cleansing and Repairing.

- a.* The Fiants, from 5,206, File 69, Elizabeth, to Bundle 2, Charles I., have been cleansed, flattened, and placed in portfolios. These instruments have been found in irregular sequence, and will have to undergo re-arrangement for the purpose of indexing and calendaring.
- b.* The Bonds, Renunciations, Inventories, &c., of the Dioceses of Cashel and Emly, Clogher, Cork, Derry, Killaloe, Limerick, and Waterford and Lismore, have been cleansed, flattened, and arranged in chronological order for indexing and final deposit.
- c.* Two volumes of Prerogative Will Books, and twenty-one other volumes of miscellaneous kinds, have been re-bound. One hundred and one Fiants, 67 Bills, 206 Plea Roll Membranes of 11 Edward II., and 17 Miscellaneous Membranes have been cleansed and repaired.

Indexing.

- a.* The Index to the Cause Papers in the Court of Equity Ex- chequer has been completed.
- b.* Consolidated Indexes, including in one order of reference the contents of the various original Transfer Books, have been pre- pared for the Courts of Common Pleas (335 pages), Queen's Bench (430 pages), and Law Exchequer (341 pages). A similar Index to the Equity Exchequer Records has been continued from page 107 to page 153.

c. The Transfer Books used in the removal of the collections of the Masters in Chancery have been consolidated in dictionary order, so as to constitute separate Indexes to those collections.

Marriage Licence Book, Diocese of Ardfert and Aghadoe,	.	.	.	1789-1809

e. Indexes have been completed to the Wills of the Diocese of Connor (2 volumes), and to the unproved Wills removed from the Prerogative Office.

Ditto, Records of Tipperary

f. Progress has been made in the preparation of an Index to the Calendar of the Pleadings in the Court of Chancery, and to the Fines and Recoveries, and Miscellaneous Chancery Rolls of the Palatinate of Tipperary.

b. A Calendar has been prepared of the Writs, and Commissions for Perambulation with reference thereto, of the Court of Chancery, and of Writs for the Examination of Married Women, and references thereto, of the Court of Common Pleas.

Ditto, Fiaints of

c. The largest calendaring work yet undertaken by this Office, comprising all the Fiaints for the reign of Edward VI., with a separate Index, has been completed, during the past year, by the Assistant Deputy Keeper and Mr. Mills. I refer, with much satisfaction, to this solid addition to our sources of historical knowledge: it will be found last in the Appendix to this Report.

Parochial Records Act,
38 & 39 Vic.
c. 59.

13. On the 11th August, 1875, the Royal Assent was given to the "Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, Amendment Act, 1875," being an Act to make provision for the removal to this Office of the Parochial Records of the former Established Church of Ireland. The Act contemplates the immediate removal of those Parochial Records only which, since the disestablishment, have passed into new custody, leaving unremoved, for the present, those which at that date were in the hands of their present custodians. It directs the future removal of the latter class, from time to time, as the existing custodians shall cease to discharge their duties; and it provides machinery for informing this Office of such events as often as they shall occur. It also enables the Master of the Rolls to require inventories of the Parochial Records in each custody in such form as his Honor may direct, and so enables this Office to inform itself both of the quantity of record matter for the ultimate receipt of which provision should be made, and of the liability of each collection to immediate removal or otherwise.

execution of Act.

14. A circular, prepared with a view to elicit the requisite information in these respects, and in some matters of necessary detail, was issued from this Office between 28th October and 11th November last, to the present custodians, as far as their names and addresses could then be ascertained.

Ditto.

15. A second circular was, after the lapse of a month, issued to such of the custodians as had not returned their inventories, explaining some matters of detail, and soliciting a return, if possible, within the current year.

Results for next Report.

16. At the close of the year, a considerable number of inventories remained unreturned; and as the Act allows three months for such return, which did not expire for all those so addressed till the 12th February, 1876, it has been considered expedient to defer further explanation of results till next year's Report, when I hope to have the honour of submitting a satisfactory account of the execution of the Act in its primary operation, and of indicating the arrangements for its future application.

Literary Inquiries.

17. APPENDIX.

APPENDIX I.

Lord Chancellor's Secretary's Office,
Four Courts, Dublin,
10th September, 1875.

SIR,—I am directed by the Lord Chancellor to request that you will make the necessary arrangements to have transferred to the Public Record Office of Ireland, all documents and records remaining in the offices of the late Masters in Ordinary of the Court of Chancery, released from duty—the transfer to be subject to such regulations as may be arranged for access and inspection.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed), R. W. A. HOLMES.

SAMUEL FERGUSON, Esq., LL.D.,
Deputy Keeper of the Records,
Four Courts.

EXTRACT from REPORT of HENRY COX, Esq., on REMOVAL of RESIDUE of COLLECTIONS from late Offices of J. J. MURPHY, Esq., Master in Chancery.

The Records now removed form the residue of the collections, the subject of my former report [VII. App. 6]. This residue includes all instruments and papers in causes and matters, up to the time of the cessation of the Master's duties (8th August, 1874), as well as a large number of books, both Court and Official, and a few Deeds-Boxes.

Having prepared, last year, by your orders, a complete Schedule of the Records (since 1849) remaining in these Offices, the essential preliminaries to the transfer consisted of re-examination and re-labelling only. These preliminaries occupied me, being manually assisted by three workmen, from the 17th to the 29th September ult.; and on the 2nd October inst., I had the honour of reporting the completion of the transfer.

The following are the details of the collections removed :—

Cause Papers, in 3,480 causes and matters. Among these are reckoned the papers in 101 causes, handed over to Master Murphy upon the death of Master Litton, which I have carefully kept separate from the causes proper to Master Murphy. The numbers 3,480, and 101 are somewhat in excess of the actual number of causes, as it appears, upon examination, that care had not in every case been taken that all the papers in each cause should be tied into one bundle, or even put into one pigeon-hole. This occasioned considerable trouble in the scheduling.

There are also eleven bundles of Miscellaneous Cause Papers, which, being grouped under their initial letter, can be put with the scheduled papers in their respective causes without difficulty.

Tenants' Proposals (Miscellaneous) for Leases of seven years' duration. Twelve bundles.

Master's Written Judgments (Miscellaneous), apparently from about 1863. These are unbound and unindexed.

Original Leases—Three in number. Dowling to Byrne, of lands in Kingstown. Vereker to Mahony, of lands in Roxborough, county Limerick. Bonham to Shannon, lands in city of Dublin. The first of these bears the indorsement "Grant v. Walsh," but it was not found with the papers in that cause.

Miscellaneous Deeds, &c.—One bundle.

Books.

Day Books.—Six volumes, from 1843 to 1874. These contain entries of lodgment of documents, and of the days of filing the Master's Orders. One of the volumes refers to matters allotted to Master Murphy from Masters Litton and Henn.

Rule Books.—Short cause : seventeen volumes, from 13th August, 1846, to 10th August, 1868. Long cause : nineteen volumes, from 27th October, 1846, to 28th July, 1868. Long and short causes : five volumes, from 21st October, 1868, to 5th August, 1874. The last of these volumes being, at the time of transfer, unbound, has, by my directions, been bound.

Sales and Letting Books.—Two volumes, commencing 18th October, 1847.

Receivers' Account Books, giving all particulars respecting the passing of Receivers' Accounts, three volumes, from 1841 to 1874.

Cause Petition Order Book.—One volume, from 6th February, 1851 to 5th November, 1858.

Master's Special Note Book.—One volume, containing entries of the Master approving of the attendance of two counsel. Its dates range from 26th October, 1860, to 29th May, 1872.

Master's Returns.—Three volumes.

Merchants' Account Books (thirty-nine volumes), lodged as exhibits in various causes, the titles of which are usually unmentioned.

Bespeak Books.—Fourteen volumes.

Inspection Dockets.—One volume.

Lists (two volumes) of Recognizances filed in the office from 1831 to 1866.

Receipt Book (one volume), containing receipts for Bills of Costs, given out to solicitors, and giving the date of the return of said Bills (1843 to 1845).

List (one volume) of Deeds-Boxes in the office, made by direction of Master Murphy in January, 1851. It gives particulars as to size, material, &c.

List (one volume) of the Deeds-Boxes, transferred in 1869 from the Master's Office to this Office.

Three volumes containing demands on Stationery Office.

Documents produced in the case of Spread v. Morgan, and not removed by the solicitor.

The "Common Seal" in the case of the Attorney-General v. Charlton.

Receipts for the papers in six causes sent, since the expiry of the Master's powers, to the Lord Chancellor.

Deeds-Boxes.—Altogether sixteen boxes were transferred, of which four, having being recalled from this Office, were re-delivered into it by docket in due form. All these boxes have been duly entered in the Search-room Index.

APPENDIX VIII.

To the Right Honorable the MASTER OF THE ROLLS.—THE EIGHTH REPORT OF SIR JOHN BERNARD BURKE, C.B., Ulster, Keeper of the State Papers in the Record Tower, Dublin Castle, dated 1st February, 1876.

SIR,—In each of my former Reports I have specially brought under your Honor's notice the progress already made in the arrangement of "Governmental Correspondence," a series of papers commencing in 1683 and forming an important collection referential to an interesting period in Irish history. The whole of this correspondence has been long since put in order and placed in cartons; and a great deal accomplished in the indexing of it; but I cannot transfer it to the Public Record Office until the indexing is completed. In continuation of this series is the vast mass of documents of more modern times transferred of late from the Chief Secretary's Office. These papers, it has been my great anxiety to classify and place in cartons, so as to form a regular sequence of the State Papers previously here. These modern transfers form two separate collections, but have, in each, papers of the same identical years. They seem to have been kept apart in the Chief Secretary's Office. One of these collections, containing about a third of the whole body of papers, has been minutely and laboriously indexed in one large volume, but the other and smaller series had, when it reached me, no index. A draught temporary index, adapted for current use, has, however, been compiled. It might have been well originally to have made but one series of the two collections. Acting, however, on the principle of never disturbing long settled classification, I have still kept the series distinct, but shall endeavour by cross indexing to obviate any difficulty of reference arising from the double indexing. The documents contained in these two series may be considered as the connecting links between the old "Departmental Correspondence" and the more modern State Papers, the regular sequence of which dates from 1821. Of these intermediate documents, if I may so describe them, which have already an available classification and index, I have postponed the final arrangement until the urgent necessity of rendering easily accessible the immense arrears of modern papers, has been provided for.

Having already accomplished the arrangement of the years 1821, 1822, 1823, and 1824, I have, during the past year, continued this work, and completed the years 1825 and 1826.

In my last report I drew your Honor's attention to the pressing want of such an arrangement of these modern State Papers—papers in constant use—as would render their production prompt and certain. This necessity has been increased by the continuous transfer, already referred to, of similar series of documents from the Chief Secretary's Office. Consequent references, often of urgency and sometimes requiring long searches, are rendered infinitely more tedious by the displacement (before their transmission to me) of very many of the papers, and I have therefore used my best endeavour to complete, as quickly as possible, the sorting of these papers and the placing them in cartons.

The advantages accruing from this carton arrangement and the cataloguing of these collections can hardly be over estimated. I am convinced that a search, consuming many hours and possibly many day's hunting through the tied up bundles of papers and the unindexed miscellaneous documents, would not occupy as many minutes, once the arrangement I contemplate is perfected. In pursuance of this design I have, since my last report, arranged the papers not only of the years 1825 and 1826, numbering about 15,000, restored the displaced documents to their proper order and added a carton catalogue; but I have also perfected the arrangement of the years 1840, 1841, and 1842 (years in the greatest confusion), numbering forty or fifty thousand papers, and I have restored to their proper bundles the displaced documents of those years. The unindexed documents that accompany each of these five years, viz. :— 1825, 1826, 1840, 1841, and 1842, have been indexed in slips, and also placed in cartons. These collections, comprising some 60,000 documents, fill 202 cartons, which have been placed in regular succession, and carefully protected against any injury from damp or dust, on the re-adjusted shelves of the old Parliamentary-room No. 6 in this Tower, in a state ready for transfer to the Public Record Office, when the time arrives for such transfer to be made, and when current business will allow of the completion of the necessary cataloguing and indexing.

The Birmingham Tower-room will also, I may here mention, be adjusted in the course of the next twelve months for the reception of cartons required for the recent transfers.

Having made these preliminary remarks, I will proceed to give an account of the additional work done during the past year.

THE CALENDAR TO THE BRITISH DEPARTMENTAL CORRESPONDENCE has been proceeded with to the year 1740, but its further progress has been delayed by the urgency, as I have just mentioned, of giving our more immediate care to the arrangement of the current papers.

THE PETITIONS ADDRESSED TO THE LORD LIEUTENANT AND COUNCIL, AND OTHER PAPERS CONNECTED WITH THEM, were arranged some time since and duly reported on in former years. The Index to this series has been, during the past year, proceeded with from No. 887 to 1,030, and the numbering continued from 8,123 down to 10,926.

THE CONVICT PAPERS of the years 1847 to 1859, inclusive, consisting of 201 compact bundles, received from the Chief Secretary's Office, have been papered and endorsed, and a catalogue made of the bundles preparatory to their being folded and placed in cartons.

A COLLECTION OF PAPERS, ranging over the years 1796, 1797, 1798, 1799, 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803, 1804, and 1805, together with a few scattered documents of dates up to the year 1820, has been transferred from the Chief Secretary's Office. This collection has been carefully arranged and indexed.

We have also received a few bundles of PRIVATE LETTERS, 1790–1802. These letters are part of the series of Miscellaneous State Papers referred to in my fifth report, and contained in cartons 291 to 499.

The following Papers and Books have likewise been received during the past year :—

APPENDIX IX.

CALENDAR TO FIANTS OF KING EDWARD VI.

EXTRACT from PRELIMINARY OBSERVATIONS of J. J. DIGGES LA TOUCHE, esq., the Assistant Deputy Keeper of the Records.

The Fiants of the reign of Edward the Sixth do not differ in form from those of Henry the Eighth, but are much more numerous. The Schedule of Records of 1633, referred to in the report of last year, gives the number of Fiants for this reign as 1,192; whilst the late Record Commissioners, in their manuscript catalogue, take cognizance of 1,257 documents. Of these latter, however, four belong to the reign of Henry the Eighth, one to that of Philip and Mary, and four are but portions of two Fiants, which reduces their actual number to 1,250. To these I have been enabled to add one Fiant which the Commissioners included amongst those of Henry the Eighth, five which I found in bundles labelled, "Fiants of various dates, and Fragments" (1 L, 93, 1 and 2), and one entered as a Fiant in the Book of Patents in the Auditor-General's Office. These make a total of 1,257 Fiants, being 65 more than appear to have existed in Charles the First's time: a discrepancy which I am unable to account for.

Of these 1,257, there are 819 marked as enrolled, although I have found on the rolls only 781, leaving 38 which, though marked as enrolled, would not appear to have been so.

Six hundred and nineteen, or nearly half, of these Fiants consist of pardons, the leases (227) forming the next largest class, while the balance is made up of the usual classes: Grants of English liberty (99), Presentations (86), Grants of Office (77), Grants of Pensions (39), Liveries (38), Pardons and Licenses of alienation (35), Grants in Fee (9), Appointments to Bishoprics, and other miscellaneous documents.

Many of the present counties of Ireland not having been formed at this period, there are many instances in which townlands are described in the Fiants as being in counties other than those to which they now belong. Mr. Mills has endeavoured, as far as possible, to obviate this difficulty by putting the present county in the Index, after the names of the lands, a task of no small difficulty and labour.

I have again to bear witness to the able and assiduous help afforded me by Mr. Mills.

THE NINTH REPORT

OF THE

TO THE MOST NOBLE JOHN, DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, K.G.,
LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE,

1. The proceedings had in execution of the several Acts of Parliament now administered by this Office are presented to your Grace's notice under the respective heads of the enactments.

Proceedings under the Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867.

Extern.

2. Records of the Court of Chancery, in continuation of the series previously deposited to the year 1856, have been received under the provisions for removal, from time to time, of accruing records from the Superior Courts. Removal of accruing collections, Chancery.

3. The collections of the Consistorial Court of the Diocese of Dublin, Glendaloch, and Kildare have been received from the custody of the Registrars, J. H. and A. Samuels, esquires. For particulars of this collection I beg leave to refer to the Report of Mr. Mills, by whom the transfer was conducted. Removal of Dublin Consistorial collection. App. I.

4. The Keeper of the State Papers has transmitted 326 volumes, relating chiefly to the Military Establishment in Ireland, and comprising Entries, Reports, and Letters from A.D. 1696 to 1810. I beg leave to refer to the Annual Report of the Keeper of the Appendix, from which it appears that large consignments are in course of preparation for removal. Referring to the observation in my Eighth Report (par. 10 c.), that it is important, for the safety of the Record Treasury, that the use of cartons of inflammable material should be discontinued, I have been satisfaction to state that provision has been made for the substitution of zinc boxes, of the same pattern, for the cartons in which the State Paper collection has hitherto been transmitted. State Papers. App. II. Substitution of zinc boxes for inflammable cartons.

Intern.

5. The final deposit of the Pleadings of the former Equity side of the Court of Exchequer has been advanced from 1st January, 1863, to 31st December, 1867, comprising 9,426 books or fasciculi of Bills and Answers, and will be completed during the current year. Equity Exchequer Pleadings.

Chancery
Cause Papers.

6. The deposit, in dictionary order, of the Cause Papers from the offices of the Right Hon. Wm. Brooke, formerly Master in Chancery, has been completed. It comprises the ancillary documents in 8,025 Causes. The deposit of the Cause Papers from the offices of J. J. Murphy, Esq., formerly Master in Chancery, has been commenced.

Inventions-
Patents.

7. The Inventions-Patents continue to be placed in order, in a uniform course of deposit, as they are received.

Ancient Pleadings,
Chancery.

8. The Ancient Pleadings of the Court of Chancery, which had been cleansed and flattened, have been arranged so far as legible dates exist upon them.

Fiants.

9. The Fiants for Letters Patent, from File 3 to File 59 of Charles I., have been cleansed, flattened, and placed in continuation of the earlier series in portfolios.

Administration and Marriage Licences.

10. The Administration and Marriage Licence Bonds of the Dioceses of Connor and Kildare have been cleansed, flattened, and arranged.

Bookbinding and Repairing.

11. In the Bookbinding Department, 18 volumes of Prerogative Will Books, 1 volume of Down Survey Maps, 1 volume of Lists of Inventories (Prerogative), and 1 volume of Lists of Administrations (Prerogative) have been rebound; and 125 membranes of Exchequer Pleadings, 64 Fiants, 10 Original Wills, 9 membranes of Patent Rolls, and 8 of Inquisitions have been cleansed and repaired.

Indexing.

Auditor-General's collection.

12. a. A Consolidated Index to the Auditor-General's collection and other records removed from the Custom House, has been commenced, and brought down to p. 196. The like Index for the Records of the Court of Chancery has been continued to p. 173 of a second volume.

Chancery.

Will Books.

b. Indexes have been added to the following Will Books of the Diocese of Armagh, hitherto defective in that respect, for A.D. 1817-19; 1823-29; 1834-39; and have been compiled to the Original Wills of the Dioceses of Derry and Dromore; and an Index has been commenced for those of the Diocese of Down.

Copies of

c. A copy has been made of the Indexes to the Prerogative Wills, Administrations, &c., letters A—E, A.D. 1831-40, the original being much injured by use; also of the Index to the Equity Exchequer Bill Book, 1773.

Calendar of Patents,
James I.

d. Steady progress has been made with the Index of Names and Places to Calendar of Patent Rolls, James I.

d. An Index to the Liber Munerum Publicorum Hibernie, one of the largest operations of this kind hitherto undertaken here, has been completed during the past year, and is presented to the public in an Appendix to this Report. The Liber Hibernie is the repertory of a vast quantity of record material bearing on the general and administrative history of Ireland. It comprises two imperial folio volumes extending to 1,757 pages of printed matter, produced at a cost to which its practical utility has not been at all commensurate. This miscarriage has arisen principally from the want of any Index; and the absence of an Index appears to be accounted for by the confused form of the compilation, which consists of several principal parts, each comprising several subdivisions, and all having independent paginations. The constituent parts, although put together without due regard to order of time and sequence of subjects, are, to a great extent, works of high value and substantial accuracy, being in effect the MS. books compiled from the original records by Mr. Lodge, formerly Deputy Keeper of the Rolls and Keeper of the State Papers, purchased, after that learned gentleman's decease, by Government in 1785. The printing of the Liber Munerum was begun in 1812, and was continued in a desultory manner down to 1830; when, owing to the confused and unsatisfactory form of the work, its further continuance was stopped by order of the Irish Government. The value of the principal matter, however, having become apparent, the sheets were collected, and the work was issued from the Rolls House of England, 7th February, 1852, with a preface giving a history of its compilation and a short abstract of its contents. Its value to this office has been such that, notwithstanding the difficulty of dealing with matter so disjointed, the task of compiling an Index to it was undertaken by Mr. Gilbert, the former Secretary; and I have now to report the completion of his design, which has been executed at various times during the last three years, in the intervals of more pressing office business.

Calendaring.

13. a. The Calendaring of the Disentailing Deeds Rolls of Chancery has been advanced from Deed 3,364, enrolled 10th October, 1857, to Deed 3,599, enrolled 21st December, 1858.

Disentailing
Deed Rolls.

b. The Fiants for the reign of Philip and Mary have also been calendared in continuation of the series for the preceding reigns published in my previous Reports. The Calendar, with its Index, is printed in the Appendix. Twenty Fiants for Presentations, of this reign, which were in existence in 1633, are not now found amongst these bundles. It is possible that the researches of the Historical MSS. Commission may lead to the discovery of these and other missing records in the muniment rooms of families representing great officers of State, and other public servants who from time to time may have had occasion to refer to such evidences at their private mansions.

Fiants, Philip and Mary.

15. I also annex the table of fees. The amount for the year was £684 4s.

Proceedings under the Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, Amendment Act, 1875. Objects of Act of 1875.

16. This enactment was passed for the purpose of removing doubts as to whether the Parochial Books and Documents of the State Established Church are records within the meaning of the principal Act, and to make provision for their gradual transfer to this office as they should be found, from time to time, to have passed into the hands of custodians other than those who had the possession of, and right of deriving emoluments from them, at the time of the disestablishment. As regards these former custodians the Act provided that, so long as they continue to discharge the duties, they shall retain possession; and it contained provisions for ascertaining the cesser of such discharge of duties in the several incumbencies, and for enabling the Master of the Rolls, in cases where entries had continued to be made in the old books after disestablishment, to allow these books to continue in the hands of such custodians as His Honor should nominate. It required the parochial officers to make returns of their records in such form as they should be directed to do, and invested his Honor with plenary powers for enforcing obedience.

[See provisions at large, App. V. Schedule A.]

17. In my Eighth Report (pars. 14, 15) I referred shortly to the proceedings taken by circulars and other communications with the parochial officers, to learn the number, nature, and bulk of the parochial records; but the returns not having been made at the end of the year 1875, I held over the detailed account of these proceedings for my present Report.

Proceedings had thereunder in 1875.

18. The objects sought to be attained by the issue of the first circular (A) were: to acquaint the parochial officers with the nature of the new legislation; and to ascertain (1) the nature and bulk of the collections for the reception of which provision should be made; (2) the custody on 31st December, 1870, so as to judge which of the records should be removed as being come into new custody, and which should remain in the hands of the old custodians; and (3) the cases in which new entries had been made in continuation of those in the books of the former establishment.

Circular A. App. V.

19. Two subsequent circulars (B and C) were issued for the purpose of explaining some matters of detail, and of expediting the return of the inventories.

Circulars B. C.

20. The general result as appearing by the inventories returned from 1,363 Depositories, showed a total of 6,115 volumes (exclusive of Marriage Registers kept under 7 & 8 Vic., c. 81), of which 2,801 appertaining to 641 Depositories, appeared to be presently attachable, as having come into the hands of new custodians since the disestablishment.

Proceedings under Act of 1875 in 1876. Result of Inventories.

21. It appeared that the practice of continuing the entries had been in effect universal, and that continued entries had in very many cases been made on the back of the same folio containing the entries up to 31st December, 1870; so that there is no possibility, in these cases, of removing the earlier part of the books without also removing subsequent entries affecting the Church of Ireland. The Master of the Rolls, in this state of facts, was pleased to direct that all the attachable collections should be removed in the first instance, and that parochial officers desiring to retain the custody of the continued books should make application under section 7 of the Act after removal.

Questions on custody.

22. It also appeared that in some few cases, although the Incumbency had changed, the custody remained in the hands of persons answering the description of parochial officers, as defined by sec. 4 of the Act, who had been intrusted with it by former Incumbents; and questions were raised and reserved for the decision of his Honor in these cases.

23. Excluding these last-mentioned cases, a warrant for the removal of the attachable portion of the collections was executed by the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls, on the 15th May, 1876, and a circular (D) was addressed to the several parochial officers having charge of the records so attached, informing them that the servants of this office would proceed at a day of which they should have notice to remove their respective collections. Each circular contained a copy of the warrant, and of so much of the schedule incorporated therewith as affected the records in the particular custody.

Records.

24. Provision was made for the reception of these, as well as of the outstanding collections in continuing custodies, in the Record Treasury, by the erection of fire-proof fittings designed for their deposit in the dictionary order of the names of the parishes; so that, as they should come in from time to time, places might be ready for their reception. The attachable Depositories were laid down on sheets of the Ordnance Survey Map of Ireland, as a local guide to the servants of this office; and, by permission of the Lords Commissioners of Her Majesty's Treasury, a limited number of Forms of Baptismal and Burial Entries, adapted for the Church of Ireland, were procured for the purpose of furnishing temporary substitutes for the books to be removed, in cases of exceptional inconvenience.

25. In this state of our preparations, in May, 1876, a Bill was introduced into the Commons House of Parliament for modifying the operation of the Act of 1875 in several important particulars. During the pendency of this measure it was judged proper to suspend further proceedings on his Honor's warrant.

Objects of Act
of 1876.

27. By this Act (sec. 4) the Parish Vestry Books, unless where they contain entries relating to baptisms, marriages, or burials, are declared not to be records, and will, consequently, be excepted from the operation of his Honor's warrant; and, by sec. 5, his Honor is further empowered to permit Parochial Records to remain in the custody of any rector, vicar, or curate of the Church of Ireland, on being satisfied by reports to be obtained from officers to be nominated, at his Honor's request, by the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, that the records are kept in fit and secure buildings, and due provision made for their custody.

28. It being considered that the rights of the continuing custodians in possession prior to 31st December, 1870, remain unaffected by this legislation, they have not been addressed in reference thereto; but no time was lost in apprising the Parochial Officers named in his Honor's warrant of the opportunity thus afforded them of retaining possession, on showing that their records are kept in the manner required. With this object a further circular (E) was issued, enclosing a form of return by which his Honor might judge provisionally of the fitness and security of the buildings, and accommodation provided; his Honor considering that the public ought not to be put to the expense of an inspection and report by the officer of the Board of Works, unless where a prima facie case of security should appear. The same occasion was taken to apprise the Parochial Officers of the exception of Vestry Books of the kind referred to from his Honor's warrant, and returns were requested in a form enclosed, showing in what cases the Vestry Books come within, or are excluded from the operation of the Act. As a general rule, these latter forms have not been filled up or returned; and it will be necessary to remove or leave the Vestry Books, where due provision shall not have been made for continuing custody, accordingly as they shall appear on inspection, at the time of removal of the other books, to fall within the statutable description or not.

Latter returns unsatisfactory.

29. With respect to the more important returns, as to the fitness and security of the buildings, &c., many Parochial Officers expressed dissatisfaction at being called on to make preparations for the better custody of their records without specific directions as to the nature of the buildings, &c., required, or assurance that, when provided, these preparations would meet the approval of the inspecting officer. It was not possible for the Master of the Rolls to foresee what the judgment of the officer of the Board of Works might be in particular cases, and his Honor considered that in all cases his final judgment should be reserved till that officer's report should be before him; but his Honor did not object to my offering the Parochial Officers such advice and suggestions as might appear to me likely to lead, as far as might be practicable, to the safe retention of the records in their proper parishes. With this view a further circular (F) was transmitted to the several custodians whose primary returns disclosed modes of custody not deemed sufficient to justify an inspection, together with the copy of a letter which had been addressed by me to a Parochial Officer, in reply to a request for information as to what arrangements would be considered sufficient. I had been early impressed with the importance of the depository being fixed, for which purpose it was considered that a safe capable of being made a permanent fixture was most suitable, and that a moveable box could not be so recognised. I accordingly intimated that on a return showing a fire-proof safe built permanently into the masonry of a vestry, assuming the vestry to be detached from inhabited houses and adequately heated and ventilated, an inspection and favourable order might fairly be expected.

30. It appeared, however, to many of the custodians that their own residences would be preferable places of deposit; and on their views in this respect being placed before the Master of the Rolls, his Honor was pleased, on a full consideration of the question, to determine that, where such residence is the Parochial Manse, it may, notwithstanding its being an inhabited house, be considered a fit and secure building within the meaning and intention of the Act; and, accordingly, it has been intimated to all Parochial Officers so desiring, that, on their returning a fire-proof safe erected as a permanent fixture either in the vestry, as at first suggested, or in the Parochial Manse, an inspection will be called for.

31. No return has been made of any attachable records being kept in a strong-room, or fire-proof chamber; but it is understood that a few such repositories exist, and, in these instances, inspections will be called for without further provision for the security of the records.

32. It is necessary in the public interests that, as far as possible, the expense of sending officers more than once into the same district should not be incurred; and, up to the present time, all the arrangements of this Office have been made with a view to one uniform inspection for which it is proposed to issue his Honor's requisition to the Commissioners of Public Works directly on the coming in of the final returns, the time for which, in the cases of Depositories included in his Honor's Warrant, has been extended to the 21st February, 1877.

33. In my next Report I shall trace the effect of this Act in expunging from the Warrant those cases in which the provisions for safe custody may justify his Honor in making orders of retention; and hope to report the removal of the residue of the collections therein comprised, the custody of which shall not have been duly provided for, to this Office, where proper lists will be kept for informing inquirers where they are to resort for certified extracts.

34. In the extended correspondence to which these directions of the Legislature have led, I have found very general willingness on the part of the Parochial Officers to make the execution of the Acts as little troublesome to this Office as possible; and in two instances only have to report refusals—one absolute, the other constructive—to return inventories. The Parochial Officers who exhibited this disregard of the Act, have rendered themselves liable to imprisonment; but it is hoped that, when they consider their isolation among so many who have willingly obeyed the law, they will, without further pressure, comply with the requisitions which have been addressed to them.

35. The literary inquiries during the year embraced Wills, Grants of Land, Down Survey Maps, Memoranda Rolls, Journals and Records of the House of Lords, Faculty Books, Parochial Returns, Documents relating to History of County Sligo, Residences represented as preferable in some cases,

and so considered by the Master of the Rolls,

36. I have to acknowledge with thanks the receipt during the past year of eight volumes of Record Publications, sent as donations to this Office by directions of the Master of the Rolls in England. The Right Honorable William Brooke, formerly Master in Chancery, has also presented to this office a volume of Proceedings in Chambers in Chancery, tempore Lord Chancellor Jocelyn, 1750-51, formerly in the custody of the Earl of Roden.

All which is humbly submitted to your Grace.

Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland.

I humbly certify to your Grace, that this Report is made by the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland, under my direction, pursuant to the Statute.

Master of the Rolls.

EXTRACT from the REPORT of JAMES MILLS, Esq., on the TRANSFER of the RECORDS of the CONSISTORIAL COURTS of DUBLIN, GLANDELAGH, and KILDARE.

SIR,—That portion of the Records of these Courts which had become Records of the Court of Probate, was transferred to this Office in the year 1871, as mentioned in your Fourth Report, p. 11. They consisted of—Original Wills, some miscellaneous Testamentary Papers, Grant Books (containing entries of Grants of Probate and Administration, and, to the 31st December, 1830, Marriage Licenses), Will Books, Marriage License and Intestate Bonds, of the Diocese of Dublin; Wills, Renunciations, Bonds, Will Books, Grant Book and Caveat Book of the Diocese of Kildare; all extending, so far as they are perfect, down to 1858, when the Probate jurisdiction of the Ecclesiastical Courts expired.

APPENDIX II.

To the Right Honorable the MASTER OF THE ROLLS—THE NINTH REPORT of SIR BERNARD BURKE, C.B., Ulster, Keeper of the State Papers in the Record Tower, Dublin Castle, dated the 1st February, 1877.

SIR,—In my last Report I drew your Honor's attention to the want under which we suffer of a comprehensive arrangement of the modern State Papers, continuously transferred in vast numbers from the Chief Secretary's Office to my department. The accomplishment of such an arrangement has now become one of urgent necessity, not only for the purpose of speedily answering Governmental inquiries—frequently of great importance—addressed to me, but also for the purpose of rendering the production of documents prompt and certain. The carrying out of this arrangement, and consequent indexing, have obliged me to suspend other work of not so pressing a nature.

I have mentioned that the documents transferred from the Chief Secretary's Office, ranging from 1700 to 1831 (with some few of earlier dates), were sent in two masses, one of them having a voluminous index, the other mass of papers being without any; and that I have compiled a draft index for current use.

The current papers commencing with the year 1821, being a continuation of the series of documents just referred to, extend to 1864; the more recent papers remaining for daily use in the office of the Chief Secretary. I have already stated, in former Reports, that these documents are such as concern the daily progress of the public business of the State. They comprise the correspondence referring to crime and outrage, the conduct of the Police and Magistracy, the pensions to public officers, concordatums, appointments to offices, corporations and colleges, fisheries, hospitals, law courts, prisons, sheriffs, &c. In continuation of the work of indexing, mentioned in my Report of last year, the documents belonging to the years 1821, 1822, 1823, 1824, and 1827, have been indexed in slips—the years 1825 and 1826 having been completed as in previous Report mentioned, and the displaced documents of each year have been restored to their proper places—a work of no small labour. For the reception of the cartons destined for these documents, the Birmingham Tower-room has, during the past year, been prepared. I anticipate that within the next two years the remaining portion of the series will be indexed.

The transcription of the CALNDAR OF THE BRITISH DEPARTMENTAL CORRESPONDENCE has been proceeded with from 1719 to 1737, which nearly completes the second volume of the Calendar. It includes the letters of the Duke of Bolton during his lieutenancy, which comprised the years 1719 and 1720. Among other topics of historical interest we find in these letters details concerning the attainted Duke of Ormonde, and the case of Annesley v. Sherlock, so much connected with the history of the claim of legislative independence. On the 14th January, 1719, the Lord Lieutenant gives the Lords Justices instructions for the capture of “the late Duke of Ormond,” His Majesty having received an account that the Duke “after a short stay at Madrid is actually embarked from Spain with intent to land in Ireland, in order to excite a rebellion,” and directs them to issue a proclamation offering a reward of £1,000 for his seizure.

Subsequently, however, on the 27th of same month he approves of the Lords Justices enforcing by proclamation the Act of Parliament which offers a reward of £10,000, His Grace not having been apprized of the Act when he wrote previously.

On the 26th March, 1720, the Lord Lieutenant approves of the Lords Justices’ conduct in prohibiting a reprint of a book lately published in London and sent over to Ireland, entitled, “A History of the Rebellion and Civil Wars in Ireland, &c,” said to have been written by Lord Clarendon, which their Excellencies considered of a seditious nature.

In the lieutenancy of Bolton’s successor—the Duke of Grafton—occurs the correspondence for the obtaining of tall Irish Grenadiers for the King of Prussia. H. Walpole, the Duke’s secretary, writes on the 6th August, 1720, to Mr. Belcher for twenty or thirty men of an extraordinary size, whether Protestants or Papists, to be raised in Ireland, at the recommendation of Lord Stanhope, to be presented by His Majesty to the King of Prussia.

The correspondence of the same period has much about the danger of the plague, the enlisting of soldiers in Ireland for France and Spain, and the rumours of a rebellion to be raised in England in favour of the Pretender. During the lieutenancy of the next viceroy, Lord Carteret, there are his letters in 1728, concerning the building of the new Parliament House (now the Bank of Ireland), according to the plan of Captain Edward Lovett Pearce.

In the papers of the Duke of Dorset’s lieutenancy, there is on 30th May, 1732, a letter of His Grace to the Lords Justices concerning Sir Edward Pearce’s scheme for employing part of the foot forces in Ireland to make a navigable canal from Lough Neagh to Newry—since effected—together with correspondence concerning the unlawful raising of soldiers in Ireland for French or Spanish service.

The indexing of the PETITIONS addressed to the Lord Lieutenant and Council, and other papers connected with them, described in my Sixth Report, has been continued to No. 1,276.

The contents of two large Boxes, containing a mass of papers and books, ranging from about 1786 to 1808, have been partly classified. Having found that these papers are similar to those alluded to in my last Report as “a collection ranging over the years 1796 to 1805,” I intend to have the two collections arranged under one index.

The following Books of Entries, civil and military, have, during the past year, been transferred to the Public Record Office :—

I.—“CIVIL AFFAIRS.”—1697–1746 ; 26 MS. vols. These are the books of the Chief Secretary’s Office, and contain entries of Warrants of the Lords Lieutenants and Lords Justices, for the Payment of Moneys, Apprehension of Prisoners, Appointments, Pardons, Pensions, and Commitments ; Grants of Lands, Peerages, Ecclesiastical Presentations, Fairs and Markets, Swearing in of Bishops, Administering Oaths, Free Schools, Oyer and Terminer, Proclamations, &c., &c.

II.—“CIVIL PETITIONS.”—1696–1749 ; 45 MS. vols. These petitions are addressed to the Lords Lieutenants and to the Lords Justices, and are in many cases accompanied by certificates, &c. The references to, and the reports by, Law Officers, Judges, Archbishops of Dublin and Armagh, Commissioners of the Revenue and Forfeitures, Surveyors-General, and various other authorities, are also entered in these books. These petitions are distinct from the great mass of original petitions which I have described in my Sixth Report. They contain much valuable information, and refer to various subjects of public interest, such for instance, as Forfeitures of Lands, Ejectments for the Recoveries of Lands, Claims of Discoveries, Payment for bringing Witnesses against Claims not to be comprehended within the Articles of Limerick, Claims for Ground, the Cutting down of Woods, French Protestants, Briefs for Collections for Losses sustained by plunder, fire, &c. ; Fairs and Markets, Exemption from Duty or Customs, Protections, Manors, Relief, Pardons, Reprieves, Leave of Absence, various Military Matters, such as Half Pay of Officers ; Clothing of Regiments, Accounts, &c., &c.

III.—“COUNTRY LETTERS.”—1701–1748 ; 37 MS. vols: Letters from the Lords Lieutenants and Lords Justices, and their secretaries, dated from Dublin Castle to various civil and military functionaries, such as Lord Mayors, the Commissioners of the Revenue, Governors of Counties and Forts, High Sheriffs, the Auditor-General or his Deputy, Commanding Officers, Judges of Assize, Officers of the Ordnance, Commanders of Ships. These letters refer to a great variety of subjects, such for instance, as Forfeitures, Pensions, Enlistment for Foreign Service, Outlaws, Quarantine, Prosecutions, Transportation, Appointments—Civil and Military, Enlistment for the Pretender, Outrages, Piracy, Rapparees and Tories, Butlerage and Prizage, Popish Priests, Recommendations, Calling out of the Militia, Courts Martial, Apprehending of Robbers, French Privateers, Maiming of Cattle, Embarkation of Troops, Landing of Scotch Rebels, Tories and Rapparees.

IV.—“KINGS’ AND QUEENS’ LETTERS AND REPORTS.”—1697–1748. These are entries of Kings’ and Queens’ Letters, and are distinct from the original Kings’ and Queens’ Letters to which an index has been made, and which were transferred to the Public Record Office. They refer to Hospitals and Free Schools, Pensions, Levy Money, Appointments, the Encouragement of the Discovery of Concealed Forfeitures. There are also Petitions entered in these volumes.

V.—“SAILING ORDERS.”—1702–1746 ; 11 MS. vols. These are Warrants from the Lords Lieutenants and Lords Justices, for the sailing of Her Majesty’s ships, directed to the Commanders, &c.

VI.—“WARRANT BOOKS.”—1711–1786 ; 22 MS. vols. These volumes contain orders for the payments of moneys, &c.

VII.—“DOCKETS OF PRIVY SEALS,” marked “M. 4.”—1703–1712.

VIII.—“LETTER BOOKS INTO ENGLAND.”—7 MS. vols. ; 1711–1786. These are letters from the Lord Lieutenant and Council to the Principal Secretary of State in England, exclusively confined to transmitting heads of Bills, under the Great Seal, both public and private, to be proposed in Parliament.

IX.—“LETTER BOOKS OUT OF ENGLAND,” marked A., B., and C.—1711–1782 ; 3 MS. vols. These are Letters and Warrants from the Queen and the Secretary of State in England, to the Lord Lieutenant and Council in Ireland, for payments out of the Revenue, Swearing in and Removing of Privy Councillors, for the issuing of Proclamations, for the Regulating of Foreign Coin, Directing Forms of Prayer and Thanksgiving, Orders for the Observance of Fasts, Correspondence concerning the Dispute about the Electing the Lord Mayor of Dublin, about Enlisting Men for the Pretender, for Extraordinary Payments to be made by Concordatum. Public Record Office of Ireland,
Four Courts, Dublin,

SIR,—Herewith you have annexed (Schedule A) an extract from the “Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, Amendment Act, 1875,” 38 & 39 Vic., c. 59, by section 12 of which you will observe that every Parochial Officer shall be bound to return to the Master of the Rolls in Ireland a complete and true inventory of all Records in his possession, custody, or care, in such form as the Master of the Rolls shall direct, within three months after he shall be directed so to do.

You will also observe that, by section 13, every Parochial Officer having the custody and care of any Record shall, if at any time during his life he ceases to discharge his duties in the church or chapel or parish with which such Record was connected, give notice thereof to the Master of the Rolls.

You are respectfully invited to give your aid and co-operation in carrying the provisions of the Act into effect, so as to ensure the ultimate deposit of the Records of the late Established Church of Ireland in the Public Record Office of Ireland.

The accompanying Form of Inventory has been approved by the Master of the Rolls, and his Honor directs that you will have the goodness, at your earliest convenience, to return same filled up as nearly in accordance with the Specimen Inventory (Schedule B), hereto annexed, as the nature of the case will permit. You will find the Form enclosed in the accompanying prepaid envelope directed to the Master of the Rolls at this address.

You will also find annexed (Schedule C) the Form in which, in the event of your ceasing to discharge the duties, as in section 6 mentioned, notice thereof may be given by you under the provisions of section 13.

I am further instructed to state that Records, while remaining in their original custody, are rarely endorsed or entitled so as to denote the parish or office to which they belong; and I am, by his Honor's directions, to beg that you will have the goodness, in order to ensure certainty and uniformity in this respect, to place on the upper outside cover of each volume, or conspicuously on each other piece in your custody, one of the enclosed Adhesive Labels, filled up in accordance with the Specimen Form of Label (Schedule D) annexed.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,
 For J. T. GILBERT, Secretary,
 JAMES H. DAVIES.

The term “record” shall mean any diocesan or parochial record, minute of proceedings, paper, book, document, or registry, of or relating to any baptism, marriage, burial, or ordination, or other diocesan or parochial matter of a public nature, which, on the thirty-first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, was in the possession or custody of any parochial officer:

The expression “Master of the Rolls” shall mean the Master of the Rolls for the time being in Ireland:

Whereas the books and documents in the first column of the said schedule shortly specified and enumerated relate to diocesan and parochial matters connected with the respective churches, chapels, and parishes of the late Established Church of Ireland, the names of which are set opposite thereto in the second column of said schedule, and were respectively on the 31st day of December, 1870, in the possession or custody of the several persons whose names are set opposite thereto in the third column of said schedule, and which said persons then respectively discharged ecclesiastical or parochial duties in said respective churches, chapels, and parishes; and whereas by reason of the premises the said books and documents have become and now are parochial records within the meaning of the "Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, Amendment Act, 1875;" and whereas the several persons named in said third column do not now, nor does any of them, continue to discharge the same or similar duties in such churches, chapels, or parishes, but have and every of them has ceased so to do; and whereas the said books and documents have, since the said 31st day of December, 1870, respectively, come into the possession or custody of you, the several persons to whom these presents are directed and whose names and descriptions are set opposite thereto, respectively, in the fourth column of said schedule, and you have now the care thereof, respectively; and whereas you or your predecessors in duty severally have, in pursuance of the said Act, returned to me, at the Public Record Office of Ireland, inventories in the form directed by me of all such records now in your possession, custody, or care, respectively, which said inventories are preserved in the said office and contain the particular description of the said books and documents so shortly specified and enumerated in said first column of said schedule. Now, I, the Right Honorable Edward Sullivan, Master of the Rolls in Ireland, do hereby under and by virtue of the "Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, Amendment Act, 1875," and of all other powers and authorities enabling me in this behalf, order and direct you the said several persons so named in said fourth column of said schedule, severally and respectively, that each of you do and shall allow the books and documents in said first column of said schedule shortly specified and enumerated opposite to your name, and more particularly described in your inventory aforesaid, and do order and direct that any other persons now having or claiming to have the custody or care thereof, do and shall allow the same to be removed by Samuel Ferguson, Esquire, the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland, and his assistants, from their present places of custody to the Public Record Office of Ireland, there to remain under the charge of the Deputy Keeper of the Public Records in Ireland for the time being, until further order.

PAROCHIAL RECORDS ACT, 1876.

(39 and 40 Vic., c. 58.)

Public Record Office of Ireland,
Four Courts, Dublin,
of 187 .

SIR,—Referring to the several communications which have been addressed to you from this office in relation to the Parochial Records in your custody, I am instructed to inform you, that under the annexed provisions of the Parochial Records Act, 1876 (during the pendency of which measure it was not deemed expedient further to proceed in the execution of the warrant lately issued for removal of said Records), some alterations have been made in the previous law, viz. :—

I. Marriage Register Books kept pursuant to the provisions of the Act for Marriages in Ireland, 7 & 8 Vic., c. 81, are not to be removed to this office.

II. “Vestry Books,” unless where they contain entries relating to baptisms, burials, or marriages, are not to be removed to this office. It therefore becomes necessary to request, and the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls hereby directs that you will, without delay, return the enclosed Supplementary Inventory as regards any Vestry Book or Books in your charge, stating whether or not any such entries are therein contained, in order that such Vestry Book or Books, if not containing such entries, may be excluded from said warrant.

III. In addition to the power given to the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls by section 7 of the Parochial Records Act, 1875, to permit the retainer of books containing entries in continuation of the entries made during the existence of the late Established Church (see first Circular from this office, Appendix A), his Honor is enabled, under section 5 of the present Act, to permit Parochial Records to remain in the care of any Rector, Vicar, or Curate of the Church of Ireland in the parish to which such Records belong, on being satisfied that fit and safe accommodation has been provided for said Records, and due provision made for their future custody. You will observe that his Honor must be so satisfied on a report to be obtained from an officer nominated, on his Honor's request, by the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland.

In case the Records in your charge are kept in such fit and safe building, and due provision made for their safe custody, and you desire that they should be permitted to remain in the parish, under the provisions referred to, you will be pleased to fill up and sign the enclosed Form of Application to the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls, and transmit it to this office not later than the 1st December next. You need not be at the trouble of paying postage.

I have the honor to be, Sir, your obedient servant,

For the Deputy Keeper,

JAMES H. DAVIES.

EXTRACT FROM THE PAROCHIAL RECORDS ACT, 1876.

(39 & 40 Vic., c. 58.)

4. The term “record” in the Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, Amendment Act, 1875, shall not mean or be held to apply to any marriage register book kept pursuant to the provisions of "the Act for Marriages in Ireland" (7 & 8 Vic., c. 81), nor to any vestry books which contain entries exclusively relating to matters other than baptisms, burials, and marriages; and in any cases where such books have been removed by order of the Master of the Rolls they shall be committed by a further order of the Master of the Rolls to the charge of any rector, vicar, or curate of the said church in the parish to which such records belong.

5. The Master of the Rolls may, if satisfied by a report or reports to be from time to time made to him on his request by one of their officials nominated in that behalf by the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland (the said Commissioners being hereby authorized and required on the request of the Master of the Rolls to obtain such report or reports) that "records" are kept in fit and safe buildings, and that due provision is made for their safe custody, order and permit the same to remain in the care of any rector, vicar, or curate of the said church in the parish to which such records belong; and may, in the case of parishes where records have been removed by the Master of the Rolls before this Act, if satisfied by such report as aforesaid that fit and safe accommodation has been provided for said records, and due provision made for their future custody, order said records to be committed to the charge of any rector, vicar, or curate of the said church in the parish to which such records belong: Provided always, that the Master of the Rolls may at any time, if satisfied that any records permitted to be retained or committed to such charge as aforesaid under this section are kept in unfit and unsafe buildings, or that due provision is not made for their safe custody, as soon as conveniently may be, issue warrants directed to the several persons having the care of any such record or records, ordering such persons to allow the same to be removed from its or their place of custody, and deposited in the Record Office; and such records shall in all particulars be regarded as within all the provisions of the Public Records (Ireland) Act 1867, Amendment Act, 1875, and the orders made in relation thereto shall have the same effect, and be attended with the same consequences, as it made under this Act.

6. Every rector, vicar, or curate to whose custody any such records shall be entrusted under the provisions of this Act, shall once in every year make a report to the Master of the Rolls, at such time and in such form as the Master of the Rolls shall from time to time prescribe, touching the condition and the safety of the records so entrusted to him, and of the building in which the same are kept.

APPENDIX VIII.

F.

Public Record Office, Dublin,
1876.

SIR,—Referring to your return (No. 2 to Circular E) received on the _____, I am instructed to apprise you that the provision for the safe custody of the Parochial Records in your charge appears to be insufficient, and that the said Records (save as excepted by the Act of last Session) will be removed under the warrant of which you have had notice, unless before the 31st January, 1877, you shall send in a further Statement (Form enclosed) that other arrangements have been actually* completed which shall appear to the Master of the Rolls to be such as will justify his Honor in desiring an inspection and report by the officer of the Board of Works.

As to what arrangements will ultimately be deemed sufficient, I beg leave to refer you to the enclosed copy of a letter addressed by the Deputy Keeper to a parochial officer desiring information on that subject, and to state that no arrangements less complete than those there indicated will be likely to receive his Honor's sanction.

I have also to request your special attention to the provision of the Act which renders it necessary that the place of deposit should be in the parish, and that the custodian should be the Rector, Vicar, or Curate.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

JAMES H. DAVIES.

(F enclosure.)

Public Record Office,
Four Courts, Dublin.

DEAR SIR,—In reply to your letter of the _____ I beg to request your attention to the provisions of the Parochial Records Act, 1876, extracted in Circular E, forwarded to you from this office. You will observe that the action of the Master of the Rolls must be grounded on reports from the proper officers of the Board of Works. This office cannot anticipate what these reports, in particular cases, may be. The best aid I can give you is to say that a fire-proof box would not, in my opinion, afford the necessary security for the records; and that, were I in your place, I would procure a fire-proof iron safe, and build it permanently into the masonry of the vestry, assuming that the vestry stands detached from inhabited houses, and is adequately heated and ventilated; but I cannot answer for what the officer may consider sufficient. I may say, however, that if you make your return, not later than 31st January, 1877, stating that such arrangements as I have indicated have been made, I have no doubt his Honor will include your case among those calling for inspection by the officer, and would suppose that a favourable report and order should follow.

I am, dear Sir, yours faithfully,

SAMUEL FERGUSON, Deputy Keeper.

* No return of prospective arrangements will be entertained.

THE TENTH REPORT

OF THE

DEPUTY KEEPER OF THE PUBLIC RECORDS IN IRELAND.

LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR GRACE,

Proceedings under the Principal Act.

1. The Judgment Rolls of the Superior Courts of Common Law, which had been left unremoved, owing to the causes specified in my former Reports, have, with the concurrence of the several Masters, been transferred to this custody. Removal of Judgment Rolls. See title "Judgment Rolls" in Index.
2. It was not considered necessary to frame Rules of Court to regulate the practice as to making entries of satisfactions, &c., on these Records. The draft order submitted by the Right Honorable the Master of the Rolls to Her Majesty's Judges on the 14th May, 1870, was found adequate to meet all the exigencies of the case. It received his Honor's signature on the 17th April, 1877, and now regulates the practice of this office in affording to the proper officers of the Superior Courts of Law facilities of access to, and means of making entries on, the Rolls of their respective Divisions. Order regulating Practice, App. I.
3. To insure a regular and responsible execution of these duties, the Masters, in compliance with my request, have severally certified the practice of their Courts, and the names of the officers thereby authorized to make such entries. Practice certified, App. II.
4. For the convenience of the Masters, they have been supplied with Place-Indexes to the Rolls of their respective Courts, and with Entry Books, in accordance with the provisions of his Honor's order. Entry Books supplied, App. III.
5. The remaining Rolls of the former Court of Common Pleas (218 in number) were removed between the 7th and 19th February, 1877. They comprise 61 Case Judgment Rolls, from Hilary, 1836, to Michaelmas, 1850; and 157 Debt Judgment Rolls, extending from 1760 to Michaelmas, 1850. The corresponding Judgment Books from 1760 to 1850 have also been transmitted. Rolls of Court of Common Pleas.
6. The Exchequer Debt Judgment Rolls (750 in number), extending from 1660 to Michaelmas, 1850, were transferred between 5th and 23rd March. The Case Judgments of the same Court (542 in number), extending from Trinity, 1772, to Michaelmas, 1850, were transferred between the 25th September and 8th October, 1877. Rolls of Court of Exchequer.

Rolls of Court
Bench.

7. The Queen's Bench collection, comprising 753 Debt Judgment Rolls, extending from Trinity, 1661, to Michaelmas, 1850, was transferred between 11th April and 4th May, 1877. All the foregoing Judgment Rolls were comprised in warrants already issued, but delayed in their complete execution by reason of apprehended difficulties, as above referred to.

No inconvenience experienced.

8. One hundred and thirty-five entries, comprising Satisfaction, Assignments, &c., under the new practice, have been made on these Common Law Rolls in this Office during the past year; and in no instance has any delay or inconvenience been experienced in consequence of the removal.

Accruing Records, Office of Registrar of Judgments.

9. A further collection from the Office of the Registrar of Judgments, comprising Memorandums for the Registration and Re-entry of Judgments, Recognizances, Lis Pendens, &c., lodged from January, 1851, to December, 1856; and for the entry of Satisfaction, Vacates, &c., lodged from 1848 to 1856; together with 33 volumes of Recorded Negative Searches, was transferred to this office on the 24th and 25th July, 1877.

Records of Expired Commissions.

10. Under the operation of the 4th section of the Principal Act, attaching the Records of all Commissions which have ceased to exist, there have also been transferred to this office from the crypt of the Chapel Royal, Dublin Castle, the papers and documents of the Expired Commission on Education in Ireland (1823-28), consisting of 9 bundles of Returns of Educational Statistics and 51 bundles of miscellaneous correspondence respecting endowed and other schools, school-books then in use, &c. Under the same section, the records, maps, and plans of the Irish Railway Commission (1867-8), in 150 bundles, comprising, besides a complete set of the Ordnance Survey Maps of Ireland, much information on River and Canal Navigation, and on the details of construction of the several lines then in existence, have also been brought into this custody from the former Statistics Office, Four Courts.

Commission of

Irish Railway Commission.

11. No actual transmission of State Papers from the Record Tower, Dublin Castle, has taken place during the past year; but it will be seen by the Report of the Keeper, to which I beg leave to refer, that preparations have been matured for the removal to this office of a large consignment of these valuable historic evidences, the receipt of which I hope to acknowledge in my next Report.

App. IV.

Intern.

Deposit of Pleadings,
Equity Exchequer completed.

12. The final deposit of the Pleadings of the former Equity side of the Court of Exchequer has been completed. The number of fasciculi of Bills deposited during the year was 2,534 (1808 to 1850, inclusive), and of Answers, 3,359 (1801 to 1850, inclusive). Besides these there were deposited as a separate series 565 fasciculi of Bills filed for recovery of Tithes (1833-38). Eighteen bundles of fragments of Bills and Answers, dating from 1806 to 1846, and 29 bundles of undated Pleadings have been collected and arranged as far as was practicable. These also are kept in a separate series.

13. The deposit, in dictionary order, of the Cause papers from the office of J. J. Murphy, Esq., formerly Master in Chancery, continues. Five hundred and seventy-one bundles have been opened and arranged into 6,222 causes. Chancery Cause Papers.

14. The Dublin Consistorial Court papers, from A to L inclusive, have been put into dictionary order under the titles of their respective causes, forming 2,801 Cause-bundles. Dublin Consistory Cause Papers.

15. The Fiants for Letters Patent, from file 60 to file 62 A, Charles I., have been cleansed, flattened, and placed in portfolios. Fiants cleansed, &c.

16. Forty bundles of miscellaneous Inquisitions, Commissions, Patents, Decrees, &c., of the collection removed from the Rolls Office, have undergone the same process. Inquisitions, &c., cleansed.

17. The other documents cleansed, flattened, and arranged in order of date during the year, include Administration and Marriage License Bonds (Killala, Achonry, Killaloe, and Tuam) Writs de Lunatico Inquirendo, Orders for Writs, Apostles, Scire Facias, and Election Returns from the Office of the Crown and Hanaper. Other Records cleansed.

18. The deposit of Inventions-Patents proceeds as usual.

19. In the Bookbinding department 62 volumes of Parochial Registry Books, 4 vols. of Duplicates of Conveyances of Quit-Rent, 1 Prerogative Index, 1 Index for the Diocese of Down, 1 Index for the Diocese of Armagh and Drogheda, 28 Fiants of Edward VI., 39 Fiants of Elizabeth, and 8 Wills have been repaired, and 692 Membranes of Plea Rolls have been flattened, pressed, and repaired. Inventions Patents.
Bookbinding Repairing, &c.

20. In my Report for the year 1871, I referred to the large mass of Agricultural Statistical Returns which had come into this custody, partly from the collections of the Custom House under the provisions of the Public Records (Ireland) Act, 1867, sec. IV., and partly from the collections which, after the deposit at the Custom House, had accumulated at the former offices of the Registrar-General. On a proposal being made to send in a further accumulation, it was considered proper to direct the attention of the Irish Government to a question affecting their admissibility in evidence, as having been obtained on representations which appeared to give them the character of privileged communications. A case having been submitted to the Solicitor-General, he advised that, owing to the terms of the circular inviting information, the Returns are not admissible under our existing law in any court or judicial proceeding. It was, therefore, determined by Her Majesty's Irish Government that they should be handed over to the Stationery Office to be converted into pulp; and, with the sanction of the Master of the Rolls, I have intimated to the Contoller that I am prepared to hand over these documents. Proceedings under the Parochial Records (Ireland) Act, 1867; Amendment Act, 1875, 38 & 39 Vic. c. 59, and Parochial Records Act, 1876, 39 & 40 Vic. c. 58.

Report IX., Pars. 23-25.

Proceedings on outstanding Warrant.

29. The warrant of the Master of the Rolls, dated 15th May, 1876, which had been issued for the removal of the Parochial Records of the several Parishes then attachable, remained unexecuted as mentioned in my last Report, owing to the power of retention by the Parochial Records Act, 1876, subsequently (11th August) given to such custodians as should provide suitable repositories in their respective parishes. The last Act also excepted from the operation of the Warrant all Vestry Books, except such as contain entries of baptisms, marriages, or deaths. It consequently became necessary to enter into correspondence with the several Custodians to ascertain the nature of their repositories, and the existence, or otherwise, of such entries in their Vestry Books.

Queries as to Vestry Books generally not answered.

Returns of preparation for
custody.

30. The Act gave no power of enforcing information with respect to the Vestry Books, and the queries transmitted in that respect, remained generally unanswered. A time had been limited within which Custodians should make their returns of the steps taken for providing suitable Repositories, and on its expiration (1st March, 1877), it was found that Repositories, such as would prima facie warrant this office in calling for an inspection by the officer of the Board of Works, with a view to Retention Orders, had been provided in 219 cases.

App. VI.

31. A Requisition was thereupon addressed to the Commissioners of Works requesting an inspection of those Repositories; in compliance with which the Commissioners, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, settled a form of report to be filled up by their inspecting officers.

Removal of the Parochial Records.

32. A considerable time being required for these inspections, it was deemed expedient to proceed with the execution of the Warrant in those parishes which had made no return of suitable Repositories. The Act had not provided any means of obliging the Custodians to transmit their books; and, in the occasional transmissions made by Custodians for their own convenience, books not within the Warrant, and which had to be returned, were almost always included. Neither could it be determined otherwise than by inspection, whether the Vestry Books were of such a character as would bring them within the exemption of the Act. An order of the Master of the Rolls, accommodated to this state of facts, was made on the 15th May, 1877, excepting such Vestry Books from the Warrant already issued; and a form of receipt, adapted to the like contingency, having been prepared, a personal visitation of all the Repositories of removable Parochial Records was commenced on 11th June, 1877.

App. VIII.

33. A short experience made it apparent that the service should be performed by officers capable of determining questions of some difficulty, and of overcoming dilatory objections. The Parochial Officers, in some cases, desired to retain their records for the purpose of transcription; in others, to consult their select vestries; in others, to take the directions of their bishops; and in others, to make appointments for dates different from those notified for the visits. In some cases new Incumbents had come in since the date of the Warrant, and were unaware of the correspondence which had taken place between this office and their predecessors, and, not unfrequently, the Parochial Officer when waited on, pursuant to previous notification, was absent. These, and other difficulties of detail, were so dealt with as to consult the convenience of the Custodians as far as could be done consistently with the prompt execution of the Warrant; the officers, however, in all cases, declining to enter on discussions with any other authorities than the Parochial Officers themselves.

34. It appeared that in numerous instances suitable Repositories had been provided, but had not been notified to the office, as directed, and had consequently been omitted from the requisition for inspection. This office having no authority to judge of the adequacy of the arrangements, the Records were in all such cases removed, subject to be returned in the event of such a Report by the inspecting officer, as might warrant a Retention Order; and for the purpose of obtaining such Reports supplemental Requisitions were, from time to time, addressed to the Commissioners of Public Works.

Practice where Repositories provided, but not notified.

App. IX.

35. It also appeared that, with scarcely an exception, entries of baptisms, marriages, and burials, had been continued in the books which were in use at the time of the disestablishment. Preparation had been made for the supply of a limited number of substitute books in cases where the removal of those so in use might cause exceptional inconvenience; but the usage appeared so general that it was found necessary, with the sanction of the Lords of the Treasury, to provide a further supply, and such substitutes have been handed to the Custodians in almost every case of removal.

which requires a personal custody by some servant of the office in every removal of a record, was sanctioned by the Master of the Rolls, in consideration of the diminished expense, and has not been attended with any material inconvenience. In those instances where custodians were absent from home at the time of the officer's visit, or occasioned other temporary difficulty by which the local collection failed, they have been invited to adopt this course of transmission, and informed that the carriers' receipt forwarded to this office will exonerate the sender from further liability under the warrant.

37. Pending these proceedings under the warrant of 15th May, 1876, a further large number of Repositories became attachable by reason of intervening deaths and changes of incumbencies. The machinery provided by the Amendment Act for apprising this office of such changes has not been effectual. Very few notices of cesser of duties have been returned by out-going incumbents, and the local registrars, although entitled to a fee on transmitting certificates of deaths of parochial officers, have generally omitted to do so. Directories and local inquiry have supplied the necessary information for the issue of a second Consolidated Warrant affecting the Records of one hundred and thirty-eight parishes in one hundred and twenty-five repositories which received the signature of the Master of the Rolls on the 17th December, 1877. It has been framed under the law as modified by the Parochial Records Act, 1876, and provides for the removal of the vestry books comprised in it, conditionally on their being found to contain entries bringing them within the operation of the Act.

38. The same steps towards learning the nature and sufficiency of the Repositories, as described in my last Report, with respect to the warrant of 15th May, 1876, have been taken under that of 17th December, 1877; and it is expected that the several cases for inspection arising under it will be ascertained in sufficient time to enable this office to proceed with the removal of the other Parochial Records affected by it early in the current year.

39. Besides the cases affected by these Consolidated Warrants some others of an exceptional nature have arisen, for which occasional Warrants, specially framed, have been issued.

40. The Reports of Inspections so far received have been generally favourable. At the close of 1877 the Master of the Rolls, acting on these reports, had issued Retention Orders, permitting the Parochial Records of one hundred and forty-six parishes, &c., to remain in the local custodies, subject to the obligation on custodians of making annual reports on the condition of their collections, as directed by the Act.

41. The local custody has been determined on the basis of the parochial areas as they existed at the time of the disestablishment, without regard to subsequent changes. The Act authorizing retention on the provision of suitable accommodation, requires that

42. The Warrant of 15th May, 1876, modified by the exception from it of the cases of Retention Orders, and of Reports on which further Retention Orders may be grounded, has been carried into effect by the removal to this custody of the Parochial Records of the several parishes, &c., set forth in the annexed schedule. It is of importance that inquirers should know to what Repository, whether here or in the country, they should resort; and that this information, which is of a fluctuating character, should be brought down to the latest practicable date. The schedule accordingly shows the state of the Parochial Record collections as they exist here at the date of this Report, and includes all the books containing entries of baptisms, marriages, or burials, which may now be consulted here by whatever authority they have been brought in. The Records of all Parishes, &c., not appearing in the schedule, must be consulted at the Local Repositories, and inquirers must bear in mind that those of some parishes, marked in the schedule with an asterisk, are only here pending Reports on which Retention Orders may soon issue, and that all are liable to be returned to the Local Custodians, in the event of suitable Repositories being hereafter provided.

APPENDIX IV.

To the Right Honorable the MASTER OF THE ROLLS—THE TENTH REPORT of SIR BERNARD BURKE, C.B., Ulster, Keeper of the State Papers in the Record Tower, Dublin Castle, dated 1st February, 1878.

SIR,—The Public Records (Ireland) Act was passed in 1867, and the first decade of its operation is just completed. During the ten years that have thus elapsed, it may be confidently asserted that the expectations with reference to our National Muniments have been fully realized. Under the able guidance and skilful direction of the Deputy Keeper, Dr. Ferguson, Q.C., the Public Record Office, at the Four Courts, has been organised and arranged, and now forms a public depository of records which may bear comparison with any in the three kingdoms. During the same period the State Paper Department under my control has carried out the requirements of the Act by the transfer of the Plea, Pipe, and other Rolls of the Bermingham Tower, the papers and documents of the Parliamentary Office, and the papers and proceedings of the Record Commissioners, in addition to the arrangement, classification, indexing, &c., of a vast mass of most interesting State Papers, referred to in my previous Reports. While these transfers were being arranged and made, State Papers of great value and extent have been received, put in order, indexed, and prepared for eventual transfer, and such a comprehensive arrangement made of the modern State Papers as will, it is expected, enable the Department to answer without delay Governmental inquiries, now of very frequent occurrence, and to produce readily documents asked for. In my last Report (9th) I have mentioned that the work of indexing the “Miscellaneous Papers” of the years 1821, 1822, 1823, 1824, 1825, 1826, and 1827, had been finished, and that the displaced documents of each of those years had been restored. During the past year the “Miscellaneous Papers” of 1828 and 1843 have been indexed in slips and secured in cartons, and the displaced documents have been put into their proper bundles.

The “Bermingham Tower Room” and the “Parliamentary Record Office No. 6,” which have been adjusted for the purpose, are now completely filled with 903 cartons, containing part of the series of 1821 to 1864. Of this series 227 bundles, which were prepared during the past year, are also ready for cartons, when a further supply shall be received. There only remain of the whole series, the papers of the years 1830 to 1839 inclusive, as well as the unindexed “Miscellaneous Papers” of the years 1846 to 1864 inclusive, to wind up the collection. Having in view the adjustment of the “State Paper Room No. IV.,” for the reception of the remainder of these Papers, I have prepared this year, and have now ready for transfer to the Public Record Office, 632 MS. BOOKS OF ENTRIES CIVIL AND MILITARY, which have heretofore been kept in this State Paper Room.

In furtherance of my desire to transfer, as quickly as a due performance of my duties will permit, the regular sequence of historical documents here, I have carefully examined the BOOKS OF THE COMMONWEALTH, preparatory to the transmission of this series to the Public Record Office, but I find indexes are required for several of the volumes. During the past year such indexes have been compiled to six of these volumes. The indexes of two other volumes of the collection are in progress and nearly complete.

I feel it incumbent on me, now that my examination of this most interesting series of Commonwealth papers is fresh on my mind, to describe as minutely as possible a series of documents and entries which tends so materially to throw light on an important period of our history.

COMMONWEALTH SERIES.

The Books of the Government of the Commonwealth in Ireland consist of 55 MS. volumes, folio size, in excellent preservation, commencing in the year 1650, and ending in the year 1659, thus embracing the entire period of the Commonwealth rule in this country. The whole of these volumes, which were in a very dilapidated condition, I have had re-bound, under my own inspection, in this Tower.

The Government was administered in the name of the Parliament of England by Commissioners, called "Commissioners of the Parliament of England for the Affairs of Ireland," formed into a Council Board consisting of the Lord Deputy and the other Commissioners, with powers over the Irish almost unlimited.

Their ORDERS, DECLARATIONS, AND PROCLAMATIONS seem to have had the force of law. The Council Board sat ordinarily at Cork House, or the Castle of Dublin, but made occasional tours, and sat more than once at Kilkenny and Athlone. Colonel Thomas Herbert was Clerk of the Council during the whole Commonwealth rule in Ireland, and certified every order. There are 4 volumes of his Minute Books, in short hand, or rather a contracted form, not difficult to decipher. These Minutes seem to have been handed, with the original petitions and papers used in support of the petitions, to his clerks, and from them the orders were drawn out at length and the entries engrossed, as now found in the Entry Books.

Of the 35 volumes of the records of this Government above mentioned there are 22 volumes of the Orders of the Commissioners for the Affairs of Ireland. They commence on 3rd February, 1651, and end in 1659. They include a most extraordinary variety of subjects; for, besides the daily routine of every Government, the Commissioners had the regulation of the setting down of the soldiers as planters, and were required to arrange and settle the differences between the several regiments and companies in their disputes concerning lands, and those which arose between the soldiers and adventurers, who were joint settlers with the soldiery. They had also to effect the transplantation of the Irish into Connaught, and to answer all the petitions of the Irish.

Next in importance to these Order Books are the TREASURY WARRANTS, contained in 5 volumes. They extend from the year 1651 to 1658; but the books of 1654 and 1655 are wanting.

There are, next, 6 volumes with Civil Lists and Establishments, including the salaries of the State, the Judges, Ministers of the Gospel, Schoolmasters, and Pensioners, besides one volume confined exclusively to pensions to Soldiers' Widows and Orphans. These volumes include the period between 1654 and 1658.

There are 5 volumes in the class of Letter Books, but they differ very much in character. Two of these volumes are entitled "Domestic Correspondence." The letters they contain embrace the period from 1651 to 1654, and comprise the correspondence of the Council with His Highness the Lord Protector, the Council of State, the Lord Deputy, the Commanders of the Army in the field (such, for instance, as Sir Charles Coote, Colonel Venables, Colonel Sankey, and other commanders) with the Commissioners of Revenue of the 15 different Precincts whose powers and duties were most extensive and multifarious, and with many other officers and other persons. They furnish very interesting information, and it is greatly to be regretted that the series comprises only the first four years of the Commonwealth rule.

Besides these two Volumes of "Domestic Correspondence," there are two Volumes entitled "Letters from the Lord Protector, Council of State or Parliament of England."

These are Warrants addressed to the Commissioners for the Affairs of Ireland in favour of particular individuals for grants of lands or of particular bodies, as for instance for the Corporations of Liverpool and Gloucester to be satisfied for their losses incurred in the Civil War in England out of forfeited house property in Galway, &c.

These Letters refer to the period between 1654 and 1658.

The remaining Volume of Letters entitled "From the Parliament of England and Council of State," concern the closing days of the Commonwealth Rule. These Letters commence on the 7th of May, 1659, and end on the 11th of October in the same year, and are few, not above 25.

The Entries of the Letters comprised in these three last mentioned Volumes, which are on larger paper than the others, are engrossed with great care.

There are two Volumes entitled respectively, "Grants of Lands," and "Orders for Land." The first Volume is for the period from 4th August, 1656, to 26th April, 1658, and consists of special grants in pursuance of Orders of Parliament to officers and other distinguished persons, setting forth the full particulars of the Lands and the tenure.

The other Volume comprises Orders regulating the differences between the several regiments and companies, concerning their allotments of land, commencing with the 15th February, 1653, and ending with the 18th of April, 1659. At the conclusion of the Volume there is a separate collection of Orders made with reference to the several compositions of Royalist Protestant Landed Proprietors, who compounded for the forfeiture of their Estates by a fine under an order of the Lord Protector made in 1654 for their relief.

Another Volume presents a Rentroll of Lands and Houses belonging to His Highness the Lord Protector and the Commonwealth. It gives the Rent of Forfeited Houses in Corporations, and the Lands within their Liberties for the year 1657-1658.

These were reserved from being set out to the soldiers, and were the property of the State, and as such leased by the Commissioners for the Affairs of Ireland from year to year.

Two other Volumes contain copies of "Commissions and Instructions from the Parliament or from His Highness the Lord Protector and Council of State." They comprise the period between 1650 and 1659, being the whole of the rule of the Commonwealth in Ireland.

All the foregoing Volumes concern the general administration of the Government. Those that are still to be described have regard almost exclusively to the proceedings of the Commissioners for the Affairs of Ireland concerning the Irish.

First of these is a Volume of "Transplanters' Certificates of the Precinct of Limerick," being an account furnished by each Proprietor about to be transplanted into Connaught of himself, his family, his stock of horses, sheep and cattle, and the sown crops he was then leaving behind in the ground.

Also a list of those friends or tenants that intended to accompany him into Connaught.

These certificates are dated December, 1653. Similar returns were made from each of the 15 Precincts, but this Volume is the only one remaining in this department, but one or two others are to be found in the Public Record Office.

Another volume is entitled Examinations concerning the "Delinquency of Proprietors of Land within the Precinct of Athlone." These must have been taken about the year 1654, and are the original returns made by William Haydon the examiner as testified by his seal affixed to each witness's answers.

There were 13 questions for the examiner to put to each witness intended to bring forth the complicity of the Proprietors in the Rebellion or war of 1641-1652.

Similar Books must have been prepared for each of the 15 Precincts and formed part of the books and papers which were used by the Commissioners of the Court of Claims at the Restoration, called "Discrimination Books" for barring the claims of the Irish to Innocence in that Court.

They were all deposited on the closing of that Court in 1669, in the Council Office, then kept in Essex-street, and were there burnt with a vast body of documents of a like nature in the great fire of 1711.

Another volume entitled "Forfeiting Proprietors in the Counties of Louth, Kildare, Longford, Kilkenny and Wexford, in Leinster; Cork and Kerry in Munster; and Fermanagh, Tyrone, Cavan, Donegal, Monaghan, and Londonderry in Ulster," was made up on 27th January, 1657.

It gives little more than is to be found in the Public Record Office in the Books of Distribution made up after the close of the Court of Claims in 1669 pursuant to the provisions of the Act of Settlement passed in 1662.

The last volume of this series of the Books and Records of the Commonwealth to be noticed is entitled "Mallow Proceedings," commencing the 27th of June and ending 27th September, 1656. It contains the proceedings of the Court erected at Mallow for trying the qualifications of the Irish Inhabitants of Cork, Kinsale and Youghal, who, after defending these places against the Irish, during the war, were driven out by the garrisons on their revolt to Cromwell in December, 1649. The Irish inhabitants, for their singular fidelity to the English, were excepted from the rest of the Nation, and, instead of being sent into Connaught at once, were retained for a special Sessions at Mallow.

The proceedings are minutely detailed and give a very curious picture of this very remarkable event.

Having thus endeavoured to give some insight into the books of the Commonwealth, I will proceed with a description of the Books of Entries of the Civil and Military class which have been duly prepared and are in a state ready for transfer to the Public Record Office.

ROYAL DUBLIN SOCIETY.

A LIVELY MEETING.

Yesterday afternoon a stated meeting of the Royal Dublin Society was held at the Society's premises, Kildare street, under the presidency of Mr. J. L. Napier, D.L. There was a representative attendance of members. The object of the meeting was to elect honorary officers, committees, and council for the ensuing year. When the ballot papers had been distributed and the scrutineers appointed,

Mr. Henry Maxwell asked whether a candidate was within the rules of the Society in canvassing members of the Society for votes?

The Chairman said that there was nothing to prevent him.

Mr. Maxwell said that he purposed moving the adjournment of that meeting for one week for the purpose of expressing their disapprobation of the conduct of a member of the Society in canvassing for votes.

Dr. Creed Meredith pointed out that the Chairman had stated that the resolution was not in order.

Mr. Ferguson summarised the adjournment. It was said it was within the province of any member when the ballot papers had been distributed and scrutineers appointed to call attention to any matter affecting the Society, and he moved the adjournment of the house for the purpose of putting himself in order in calling attention to a circumstance which had occurred within the past few days, and which was unique in the history of the Society since its establishment.

Mr. C. U. Townshend rose to a point of order. Was Mr. Ferguson in order in bringing forward a matter of which no notice had been given?

Mr. Ferguson said it was perfectly in order for any member to move the adjournment of the meeting with the object of calling attention to a matter of importance. A letter had been published by — (cries of order).

Mr. Townshend appealed again to the Chairman to rule as to whether or not Mr. Ferguson was within his right in pressing his motion.

The Chairman said it was irregular to do so now. Mr. Ferguson could bring forward any matter at the close of the ordinary business.

Mr. Ferguson, who refused to resume his seat, attempted again to address the meeting, but was met with cries of "order, order," and "chair, chair." He was unmoved, however, and continued amid signs of impatience to call attention to a letter which had been addressed by the Council to the Chamber of Commerce in connection with the establishment of an Agricultural Department in Ireland. It was a most unfortunate thing, he said, that that Society, which had attained its present high position, should enter into the region of politics or debated questions. They had all their own particular views in political matters, but as a Society the Council had no power to represent the Society, because 80 per cent. of its hon. officers were co-opted. This Society should not in any way lend itself to any agitation connected with questions which were debatable and were coming before Parliament.

Mr. Field, M.P., said that in any assembly in which he had the honour to sit it was the custom to allow the motion for an adjournment to be put. The adjournment of the House of Commons was always granted by the Speaker provided the motion for adjournment received the support of 40 members. The great Conservative leader, the late Lord Beaconsfield, said that "the cause which cannot bear discussion is lost," and he was sure they were not afraid of discussion here (hear, hear).

Mr. Maxwell then moved—"That it be referred to the Council to consider and report to this Society, whether canvassing for office or seats on the Committees or Council has recently taken place, and to what extent." He said that he considered that the honour and dignity of the Society was as dear to him as it was to the older members. He thought that canvassing for seats on the Council or Committees lowered the dignity of the Society, and ought to be discountenanced. He held in his hand a circular, which he would read:—

"Royal University of Ireland.

"Dublin, 26th Nov., 1897.

"Dear Sir—May I ask you, when filling up your voting paper for the Royal Dublin Society, to give me a vote, (a) for the General Purposes section of the Council, on which a vacancy exists; (b) on the General Purposes Committee of the Society, on which I have already served some years. I may point out that I have attended seven out of eight meetings of this Committee. The voting paper may be sent by post to the Registrar.—Yours faithfully,

"J. J. MACC...
